China Uses UN Veto

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Blocked by a Chinese veto of its application for UN membership, Bangladesh will attempt at the General Assembly debate this fall to revive its bid for admission.

China, in an anticipated action Friday night, cast the sole negative vote in the Security Council to prevent admission of Bangladesh.

Although 11 of the 15-member nations voted for the immediate entry of the former eastern region of Pakistan, a veto by one of the five permanent council members was sufficient to nullify the majority vote.

Bangladesh representatives said they would press in the three-month assembly session beginning Sept. 19 for the moral backing of the organization's 132 members.

The assembly cannot reverse a council decision. But an overwhelming expression of support in the assembly for Bangladesh's membership could result in a recommendation that the Security Council reconsider the matter.

Ambassador Huang Hua of China, defending his delegation's first use of the veto, told the council that since joining the United Nations last October China had decided "it must act according to its principles."

The principles at stake, Huang maintained, were those involving compliance with assembly and council resolutions of last December. Adopted following the India-Pakistan war, they called for withdrawal of troops and repatriation of prisoners of war.

Huang said India and Bangladesh colluded in the detention of 90,000 PoWs, 10,000 of them civilian detainees. He also charged that Indian troops were still in Bangladesh.

Taunting China over its first use of the veto, Soviet delegate Viktor Issraelyan referred to China's own exclusion from the world body for more than two decades.

"The irony is this," Issraelyan said, "Bangladesh's entry was opposed by the representative of a country that was a victim of a gross discrimination at the hands of imperialistic forces, some of which now are hastening to become one of the best friends of the Chinese People's Republic."

Barrett Urges New CS Deal

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett Friday night called for a new deal for civil servants — including the right to free collective bargaining — in a Victoria speech before 650 people.

He told an audience in Oak Bay Junior Secondary School civil servants also should have the right of voluntary early retirement before age 65, consultation and participation in the administration of their pension funds and the right to run for political office.

There were no hecklers.

He removed his jacket before beginning his speech and by the time the question period begun he had removed his tie as well.

Barrett said the Social Credit government deliberately provoked confrontations with doctors, teachers and labor unions.

"The NDP," he said, "believes in love, trust and understanding instead of fight, fight, fight."

He said all parties agree that NDP plans for government car insurance and increased benefits for pensioners were good plans but where would the money come from?

Barrett said the NDP answer is to place royalties on export of raw materials, maintain gift taxes and succession duties and increase corporation taxes.

He said corporations had received a 10 per cent cut in taxes from 1970 when they paid a total of $86 million to the past year when they paid only $75 million.

Meanwhile, in the same period, general taxpayers paid $190 million in provincial income tax in 1970 and it rose to $300 million in the past year, an increase of 80 per cent.

Barrett reminded the audience he was fired as a civil servant in 1959 when he announced he would seek the nomination as a CCF candidate.

Meanwhile, in the 1960 election Esquimalt MLA Herb Bruch listed himself as a civil servant on his own nomination papers and Ray Williston continued as a civil servant right up to the night he was nominated.

Barrett said any civil servant under a deputy minister should have the right to a leave of absence without pay to run for public office and should be entitled to get his job back if he loses.

ELECTION ROUNDUP

WAC Unveils Bag of Goodies

Premier Bennett Friday night in Vancouver announced details of proposed pension increases including a maximum $34 more per month for the elderly and $31 more per month for the handicapped.

Bennett told about 700 persons jammed into the Point Grey Secondary School auditorium the proposals would be implemented at a special legislature session in October if his 20-year-old Social Credit government is returned to power on Wednesday.

Among the measures outlined by the premier:

—A $34 monthly increase in the provincial supplement for pensioners, boosting the monthly income for some single persons over 65 to $225. Married couples will go from $337.20 to $385 monthly;

—A boost in the minimum hourly wage to $1.80, an increase of 30 cents an hour;

—A "minimum" increase of $15 raise in the provincial homeowners grant to $200 will be one of the measures in his next budget.

Bennett said he was "pleased" to have a good turnout of hecklers and added that all of them "are invited to my rally in Vancouver East that will be a lovely meeting" tonight.

The premier also zeroed in on NDP leader Dave Barrett, predicting that Barrett will go down to personal defeat in the Coquitlam riding. Barrett had the biggest winning margin of any NDP candidate in the 1969 election.

Stacking one prediction on top of another, Bennett said the NDP's next leader will be Bob Williams, incumbent in Vancouver East, who ran unsuccessfully for the job in 1968.

Thursday night, the Social Credit leader told a rally in Coquitlam that Barrett would be succeeded by Williams' running mate, former deputy NDP leader Alex Macdonald.

"Those people who vote NDP on Wednesday won't be voting for Barrett, they'll be voting for Williams," said Bennett. "Say no, no, no next Wednesday. The great issue is socialists no, Social Credit yes."

Meanwhile in Victoria Friday night Barrett said only a very few pensioners would qualify for the $225 per month announced by Bennett, "only about 1,200 in all British Columbia."

He said to qualify, a pensioner had to have savings of less than $500.

The NDP, Barrett said, advocated $200 per month for all pensioners with savings under $5,000. He said this plan would cover a high percentage of B.C.'s pensioners.

Barrett added that Bennett's plan offered only a

FROM THE HUSTINGS

The Times today looks at the election campaigns being waged in Victoria, Oak Bay and Burnaby. In Victoria, the Social Credit party is confident the "little old ladies in tennis shoes," as one campaign worker put it, will carry the riding.

The Oak Bay campaign revolves around Scott Wallace, the MLA who has switched from the Socred banner through the ranks of independent to Progressive Conservative. In the Lower Mainland riding of Burnaby, the young voters, with their problem of high car insurance, has become one of the major issues. See Page 5.

GAGLARDI MUST SUE —BENNETT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Friday that Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi must take legal action to clear himself in connection with a report that he had attacked Bennett's leadership.

Gaglardi earlier in the day said the report in the Toronto Star was "trash." He said he planned to launch legal action against the Star and the Vancouver Province, which published excerpts from the Star story.

The minister was reported to have said in an interview with Star reporter Chris Dennett that Premier Bennett is an old man who no longer understands people, and that the premier would have stepped down after the 1969 election but did not want Gaglardi to take his place.

In an interview here, Premier Bennett said:

"As premier I know he did not say it. But Mr. Gaglardi has got to clear himself before the court. He must win the case."

Heavy Crop Failures Hit Russia

Times News Services

MOSCOW — With the spectre of serious wheat and potato shortages looming, Soviet officials have launched a drive to stop people wasting bread and have introduced new potato-marketing laws.

Early harvesting of wheat has fallen far below expectations, and grain buyers have placed orders for wheat with Canada, Australia and the United States — where bakers, fearing the sale of 400 million bushels of wheat to Russia will raise domestic prices, have requested an immediate increase in bread prices.

Potatoes are the Soviet Union's second most important crop and most Russians eat them at least twice a day. Failure of both wheat and potato harvests could force Soviet leaders to revise their entire economic plan for the five-year period ending in 1976.

While there has been no visible effects of a grain shortage yet, Russian housewives have been complaining that potatoes have disappeared from state stores.

And prices charged at open markets where produce grown on private plots is sold have been reported to be up to 10 times the usual price.

Agricultural officials have been urging farmers to speed up harvesting and premium prices have been offered for potatoes sold to the state, rather than sold at open markets.

Newspapers, filled with reports on the grain harvest, also have been printing stories decrying the waste of bread and proclaiming, "It is necessary to respect every piece of bread.

Pravda, the Communist party paper, told of two men in the Ukraine each sentenced to a year in jail for trucking 1,000 loaves of stale and moldy rye bread to the garbage dump.

SIR FRANCIS DEAD AT 70

Few men in this century have caught the heart of this seafaring nation more than Chichester, who in 1967, at the age of 65, survived gales, mountainous seas, icebergs and near sinking to circle the globe in his 53-foot yacht Gipsy Moth IV.

Sir Francis, 70, had been in the hospital for more than a week, receiving blood transfusions. A cancerous growth on his spine had produced anemia.

But the Englishman was the first to do it with only a single stop, at Sydney, Australia. Chichester made the 14,100-mile journey from Britain to Australia in 107 days, and then sailed on 15,300 miles to Britain in 119 days.

Williston Cuts Triangle Rights

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Resources Minister Ray Williston has withdrawn logging rights around three wilderness lakes in the Nitinat Triangle in an apparent prelude to expansion of Pacific Rim National Park.

Lifting the tree farm licences of B.C. Forest Products on the watershed of Tsousiat, Squalicum and Hobiton Lakes is thought to be a government move without precedent.

Williston appeared surprised in a phone interview from Prince George Friday that the development was not generally known.

"I don't understand how the people are not aware of what has been done to save the lakes," he said. "I made the decision as early as May to stop logging in the area."

Williston said B.C.F.P. is fully aware of the situation. The problem now is to find a source of timber to replace what has been lost for the company's mill at Youbou.

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday the provincial government favors including the controversial wilderness lakes in the new national park but he made no mention of tree farm permits being cancelled.

Hobiton, Squalicum and Tsousiat Lakes lie 65 miles northwest of Victoria, near Nitinat Lake and north of the West Coast Trail. They have

20th Olympics Open

MUNICH (AP) — The president of West Germany officially opened the 20th Olympics today, turning them over to competition by the finest athletes of 122 nations after weeks of bickering over power, politics and prestige by the rich old men who run the Games.

President Gustav Heinemann said: "I hereby declare the Olympic Games celebrating the 20th Olympiad in the modern era to be opened."

The teams marched under skies sunny for the first time in more than a week.

The first official sounds of the Games was the mellow baritone of eight Alpine horns, the signal to start the parade. This was followed later by the rattle of old blunderbusses instead of the customary military cannon salute.

Guenther Zahn, a West German runner, carried in the Olympic torch accompanied by Olympic runners of four other world areas.

The Games opened before a crowd of 80,000 crammed into the stadium and uncounted thousands on surrounding hills that were built of wartime rubble.

Doug Rogers of Vancouver, judo heavyweight who won a silver medal in the 1964 Tokyo Games, was the Canadian flag-bearer, leading the largest Canadian team in Olympic history — 217 athletes.

There were 8,000 athletes in the march-past.

Absent from the parade were the 43 athletes of white-dominated Rhodesia, voted out of the Games when the International Olympic Committee yielded to the clamor of black African nations to reverse an agreement made a year earlier.

PORT TIE-UP THREATENS EXPORTS

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Future export sales of Canadian wheat are at stake in the B.C. shipping tie-up, warns R. M. Esdale, commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Esdale's concern is shared by many others as railway grain cars continue to stack up in B.C. and Alberta. Not one grain has moved from the port of Vancouver since Aug. 7.

About 40 deepsea freighters swing idly at anchor in Vancouver harbor. Twenty of them are waiting for grain, and every one of these is going either to Russia, China or Japan.

That scenario has the federal government, the governments of B.C., Alberta and Sakatchewan, prairie farmers, shipping agents, port authorities, railwaymen and ship captains biting their nails.

Russia faces the threat of a poor harvest and is bidding heavily on the world grains market; Japan will call tenders Nov. 1 for wheat shipments; China promises it will be a long-term customer for Canadian wheat.

When President Nixon announced in July that the United States expected to sell $750 million worth of grain to Russia over the next three years, a lot of Canadians saw some ominous handwriting on the wall.

When port officials at Seattle, Wash., just across the B.C. border, moved quickly to set up separate facilities to handle Canadian cargo diverted by the strike, it hurt.

Ottawa's concern was shown in the arrival 10 days ago of William Kelly, deputy labor minister, to act as an observer while the ILWU and the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association, representing about 50 companies, tried to settle their differences.

When negotiations broke off a week ago, Labor Minister Martin O'Connell got ready to move in. He arrived Thursday and got the two sides back to the bargaining table.

But O'Connell was not issuing any ultimatums. He agreed with the hopeful assessment of local observers that a settlement probably would be reached quickly.

The federal government, which takes responsibility because the biggest ports come under the authority of the National Harbors Board, was under intense pressure to legislate a return to work. That course was taken to end a dock strike at St. Lawrence ports in July.

Attorney-General Roy Romanow of Saskatoon flew in early in the week on a fact-finding mission and later demanded that Ottawa intervene directly. He said prairie farmers have had three years of recession and couldn't stand another blow this year.

Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Opposition Leader D. G. Steuart issued statements saying an emergency situation is fast approaching and that if the strike isn't settled within days, Parliament should be called back from vacation to deal with it.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of B.C. sent a telegram to Ottawa asking for the declaration of a national emergency.

Woodwyn's Entire Herd Put on Block

The entire herd of purebred Aberdeen Angus cattle at Woodwynn Farm in Saanichton was sold Friday to buyers from both Canada and the United States.

At the sale C. N. Woodward, president of Woodward Stores Ltd. and the late Mrs. W. C. Woodward's son, announced that Woodwynn Farm would not be sold. "The farm will remain a farm and in all likelihood will stay in the family," he said.

The herd of 240 bulls, cows, bull and heifer calves was sold for a total of $110,000 on the picturesque, 290-acre farm overlooking Brentwood Bay where Mrs. Woodward had lived for almost 30 years until she died last April.

Mrs. Woodward spent 20 years putting the herd together through different breeding programs. It was sold in less than seven hours.

More than 200 persons attended the sale, including several local residents.

A two-year-old bull, bought by the farm a year and a half ago for $3,000, was sold to Angus beef breeder Arthur Kreiger of Ladysmith and Dick Moore of Victoria for $3,500.

Both animals were considered the farm's top herd sires.

Kenneth Lane, from California, was the biggest buyer. He bought 24 head for $11,750.

The American buyers were from Nevada, California, North Dalota and Washington. Most of the purebred animals went to cattlemen from the Fraser Valley, central Interior and Alberta.

Civil servants also should be granted improvements in leave for education purposes to increase their qualifications.

And if the NDP were to form a government it would institute a policy of advancement within the service, if all other qualifications are equal, rather than bringing in outsiders for top offices.

The provincial government should listen to the recommendations of the civil servants to a greater extent than at present.

He said it is a myth that civil servants can not work as efficiently as those in private industry. Those civil servants who do work at low efficiency do so only because they are frustrated by a system that does not give them a feeling of participation.

"We are the only party in British Columbia to say civil servants are people equal to everyone else."

Barrett was given three standing ovations. A collection at the end of his speech brought in $788 from the 650 people.

Barrett scarcely mentioned Bennett during his 40-minute address but he zeroed in on cabinet ministers Phil Gaglardi and Waldo Skillings.

Said Barrett: "I'm glad I got to this meeting without having to punch my way here."

He said he was referring to a scuffle between Skillings and freelance photographer Dave MacFarlane, a Liberal, which is alleged to have occurred Thursday night before an all-candidate forum was held.

Barrett said Social Credit has never repudiated Gaglardi's statement that greed and selfishness can be good things in society.

Barrett also quoted Gaglardi as once having said in the legislature: "If I tell a lie it's only because I think I'm telling the truth."

The NDP leader said it was incredible that the Social Credit party seemed to be conducting a leadership contest during an election campaign.

Barrett also repeated a statement he had made earlier that British Columbians should be permitted to draw about 10 years' worth of family allowances as a lump sum for a down payment on a house.

Chairman of the meeting was Cowichan-Malahat MLA Robert Strachan, a former provincial NDP leader.

Strachan said he traced the names of persons in Social Credit television commercials who said they were citizens who had decided to vote Social Credit.

Strachan said one of the private citizens turned out to be the president of the Social Credit Association for Nanaimo, two others were employees of realtor Frank Ney, the Nanaimo Social Credit MLA.

The only one not tied to the Social Credit party in the ads turned out to be a car insurance salesman, Strachan said. A major plank in the NDP program is to put private car insurance plans out of business by starting a government plan at low cost.

Scouse Downs West Ham 3-2

LONDON (CP) — A goal by defender Emlyn Hughes kept Liverpool at the top of the First Division of English League soccer today with a 3-2 win over West Ham.

Arsenal stayed in contention in the early championship race with a scoreless draw against Manchester United while Chelsea picked up two points by defeating Manchester City 2-1.

A header from Bryan Robson put West Ham into a 37th-minute lead. Within six minutes it was level again when a centre from Kevin Keegan was headed home by John Toshack.

maximum of $385 per month to married pensioners based on a strict means test. The NDP would set pensions at $400 per month for married couples, $200 each.

Barrett said the premier's announcement of increased pensions made it obvious a conflict between Bennett and Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi had "broken wide open."

"This can only be interpreted as a direct assault on Mr. Gaglardi," said the NDP leader. "With this anouncement the premier is taking direct responsibility away from that minister. Even though the rehabilitation department is Mr. Gaglardi's department he is no longer making statements on its policies."

This week, controversy broke over statements Gaglardi was alleged to have made about Bennett's leadership, including one that Bennett was only running in this election to prevent Gaglardi from taking over the leadership.

Conservative Leader Derril Warren told 450 persons at a Tory rally in Dawson Creek that Gaglardi was making a move now for the leadership because he sensed that Social Credit will lose votes in the election.

"He made his move now, partly to test the waters, to get reaction and partly because he who moves first is probably going to stand the best chance," said Warren.

Liberal Leader David Anderson was in Kamloops. He appeared on a radio program and blasted Gaglardi for distributing what he termed hate literature through his campaign headquarters. Kamloops is Gaglardi's riding.

DISREPUTABLE

The Liberal chief said the literature was "guttersnipe, dishonest, disreputable and absurd." Some of it, he said, included a reprint from an American magazine: "Canada — How The Communists Took Over," and another termed former Prime Minister Pearson "Red Mike."

Gaglardi denied that he sanctioned such literature and said he knew nothing about it.

U.S. Bombs Near China

SAIGON (AP) — American jets swept to within 35 miles of the Chinese border Friday and smashed four bridges on the northeast railway supplying North Vietnam from China, the U.S. Air Force announced today.

North Vietnamese anti-aircraft guns downed an F-4 Phantom flying fighters escort for the bomb attack but its crew — two of the leading U.S. combat pilots in Vietnam — bailed out over the sea and were rescued.

The bridges that were knocked out had been attacked several times before but had been rebuilt, the air force said. In Friday's raids, three were reported destroyed while the approach of the fourth was damaged.

The main ground fighting was centred in the northern part of South Vietnam in the Que Son district 30 miles south of Da Nang.

Young Artists Use Emily's Home

Bill Bowie, Provincial Museum technician, got a brainstorm last year while strolling past the famed B.C. artist's home. In July, the idea became a reality — a children's art program called Discovery.

He approacred the Junior Chamber of Commerce, owners of the building, with his idea.

"I thought the building could and should be used for more than a museum."

Andrew Blaney, Emily Carr building director until June 30 this year, was interested. With his help and that of the museum's education service, program plans got underway. Classes were delayed until this summer because Bowie had a bit of a clean-up job to do at the home.

With the loan of museum filming equipment, easels made, other supplies purchased and clean-up complete, 15 eight to 12-year-olds who paid their $2 fee for the five two-hour Saturday sessions began classes July 8.

The first session started with movies — NFB film Klee Wyck, about Emily Carr, and a film called Fiddle De Dee. From there, painting, drawing, more films, sculpturing and photography filled the hours.

Alan Graves of the NFB provided each with a 10-foot-strip of 16 millimeter film and felt pens. The children drew and filmed their work, Graves spliced together the results.

For the noise — tin cans, beans in jars, and other contraptions were jingled and jangled, then taped, providing the background for the four-minute Kids Capers movie.

Bowie hopes to set up another five sessions in September — "20 more children have expressed interest in taking the course," he said.

But his ultimate ambition, he says, is to arrange a permanent program, expanded to include classes for adults, children younger than eight.

Bowie hopes to set up an-been described as the last wilderness lakes on the south half of Vancouver Island.

Williston's announcement appears to climax a three-year campaign led by the Sierra Club of Victoria to have them included in Pacific Rim national park.

Rick Careless, chairman of the local Sierra branch, said Williston has always dealt sincerely and frankly with environment groups.

"The minister's announcement is most significant but the matter of including the lakes in the park is not a fact," said Careless.

"This will depend on the provincial parks department and the federal government when the park boundaries are fixed."

In a phone interview from Ottawa Friday, Jack Nichol, head of the federal parks branch, said the provincial government will never regret including the trio of lakes in the national park.

He said the lakes have a high recreation value and as such would benefit the provincial economy.

During the Sierra Club's campaign to save the lakes and their watershed from logging, 10,000 Victorians as well as hundreds of citizen clubs across the province petitioned the government. The controversy received publicity in other parts of Canada and through the Pacific Northwest states.

While negotiations between Ottawa and the province are not complete, it is understood addition of the three lakes and watershed involves about 13,000 acres of land.

But adding the lakes appears to mean a trade off of part of Pacific Rim park at its north end, land lying east of the Tofino-Ucluelet Highway.

With addition of the three lakes, Pacific Rim will become the first large park on the south half of Vancouver Island.

Liberties Body Picks Candidates

The B.C. Civil Liberties Association is urging support for 37 candidates in the Aug. 30 election who advocate a provincial ombudsman and better appeal procedures against decisions of government agencies.

The 37 candidates representing three parties agreed unanimously on the two civil liberties proposals and more than 90 per cent supported other CLA arms of broader public participation in police commissions, strengthening of the provincial Privacy Act and the right to sue the Crown without first obtaining permission of the Crown.

About 200 questionnaires were sent out and replies were received from 16 Conservatives, 15 New Democrats and six Liberals. No Social Crediters filled out the questionnaire.

Said Dave Robertson, secretary of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association: "We urge everyone who agrees with these aims to support the candidates who answered the questionnaire, regardless of party."

He urged support for the following Vancouver Island candidates:

Victoria — Any two of Edith Gunning, PC, Kathleen Ruff, NDP, Clyde Savage, PC.

Esquimalt — John Williams, PC.

Oak Bay — Gordon Neuls, NDP.

Saanich and the Islands — Hugh Curtis, PC.

Comox — Either Lawrence Foort, PC, or Karen Sanford, NDP.

N.Y. BUILDERS FIND BRIBERY NOW BASIC

By HARLOW UNGER
The Manchester Guardian

NEW YORK — New York City's mammoth $2½ billion-a-year construction industry knowingly pays about $125 million a year, in bribes to city building inspectors, agents of the U.S. government, policemen, state safety inspectors, highway officials, clerks in various city agencies, and union representatives.

That was the startling conclusion of a massive investigation of the city's construction industry earlier this year.

According to the study by a city investigation agency, not a building is built nor a structure renovated without the payment of as much as tens of thousands of dollars in bribes to government and union officials.

Just a particle of dust in the air at a construction site, for example, could be enough for a policeman to issue a summons to the contractor for violating air pollution laws. It is far less expensive to bribe the policeman.

The corruption begins from the first moment a building or renovation is planned. Blue prints could literally be held up for years by the city buildings department if contractors did not hire so-called "expediters" to bribe the city's plan examiners to assure speedy approval of the plans. Expediters receive $1,000 on average and spin-off about 10 per cent of their fees as bribes to city officials.

Once the blueprints are approved, the bribes grow larger and more numerous. Speedy permission to tap the nearest city water main to the building site costs a $10 bribe. A $20 dollar bribe to the water inspector and another $20 to the sewer inspector allows the contractor to dig and fill the water main trench section by section, with the inspector standing by.

The next set of bribes involves getting inspectors to the site on time. Each step in construction must be approved before the job can continue. Delays can cost tens of thousands of dollars in pay for hundreds of idle workers.

Many tradesmen earn as much as $20 an hour. Daily charge for such equipment as cranes vary between $750 and $2,000. An inspector's failure to appear can prove financialy disastrous.

Knowing this, the typical inspector generally calls the job site in advance, threatening possible delays in his arrival. Promptness can be assured with the promise to "take care of you."

Towards the end of construction, the inspectors must test all finished building materials. An inspectoor could literally demand that holes be punched in finished interior walls to check thickness. For a bribe, he will simply use scraps to test for thickness.

The final certificate of occupancy is the most costly document to obtain in the construction industry. Every day of delay of occupancy of, say, a $40-million mid-town skyscraper, can cost $10,000 in interest on the construction loan. If tenants are waiting to occupy their offices and begin paying rent, the owner will gladly pay a building inspector $5,000 to $10,000 to issue the CO and overlook minor problems, on the promise they will be corrected.

Corruption is now so widespread, according to investigators, that chief inspectors have actually organized it. Many approach a contractor at the beginning of the job and for a flat fee of $15,000 agree to take care of all problems by paying out all necessary bribes to their subordinates. Some inspectors can triple their annual $11,000 salaries this way.

In addition to building inspectors, contractors must also bribe police to overlook hundreds of day-to-day traffic violations at the site—from blocking pavements and roadway, to dumping dirt on the streets. Most contractors would be forced to pay $1,000 a week in fines for such violations. A $250-a-week bribe to the police is less costly.

Contractors area also forced to bribe local union officials to ensure themselves the highest calibre workers and to prevent worker sabotage. Every day's delay can jeopardize the survival of the typical, underfinanced building contractors. Only recently, the secretary-treasurer of the International Brotherhood of Painters an Allied Traders was indicted on charges of accepting $840,000 in bribes.

His indictment marked one of the first instances in the history of the construction industry here in which any action had been taken against corruption. Most of the building unions here have connections with the underworld. Crusaders in the industry who have brought charges of corruption against union leaders have been known to "disappear."

It is no coincidence that only 17 building inspectors have ever been arrested. Only one has ever been jailed. The rest received suspended sentences. No contractors or union leaders have yet been jailed.

Fortunately for the public, the pattern of widespread corruption has not led to any tragedies. For most contractors seldom bribe inspectors, police, or union leaders to overlook unsafe construction — and it is doubtful if even the most dishonest inspector would approve such construction.

Most contractors say bribery is the result of out-dated, confusing laws that cannot be followed to the letter. "We will always be subject to rape by these inspectors," says one contractor. "No building can afford to undergo the kind of scrutiny the city's unrealistic codes demand."

Federal Judge Whitman Knapp, who headed the investigation, declared that, "the key to the situation is that the men who are giving this money are powerful people in this community. If they faced the possibility of going to jail, they would use their political muscle to see that things get cleaned up. You need hard-nosed prosecution of the people who pay the money."

City investigations commissioner Robert Ruskin sees little hope of cleaning up the industry. "The industry refuses to send witnesses to court to testify against these thieves. The contractors are afraid of retaliation."

Shorts Slim Wallet, Not Waist

By CAROLE SHIFRIN
Special to the Times

WASHINGTON — U.S. government tests indicate that "Sauna Shorts," advertised to take inches off the body, apparently only manage to slim the checkbook.

This is the conclusion drawn from a clinical study conducted by the food and drug administration to determine just how effective the inflatable shorts are.

Sanua Shorts, other shorts and similar products such as belts are widely advertised and sold at prices ranging from $4 to $13, along with promises that a person can take inches off his or her hips, thighs, and waistline using the product in conjunction with an exercise program.

However, the FDA study showed "no significant differences" between a group doing the exercises in Sauna Shorts and a group doing the exercises without.

In fact, some people using the Sauna Shorts put inches on.

The instruction sheet and four pages of illustrated exercises which come with the Sauna Shorts explain how the Sauna Shorts Inches-Off Program is supposed to work.

Purchasers are supposed to do the exercises each day "before" putting on the shorts. "The exercises will create body heat which must not be allowed to escape," the user is told. "That's where your Sauna Shorts come in! They will keep the heat close to you, creating a sauna-like warmth which is vital to your Inches-Off Program." If they are worn for 15 minutes, "you'll feel the gentle massaging action" of the shorts, the instructions declare.

The FDA study of Sauna Shorts calling into question their effectiveness, was conducted last year at Lorton, the District of Columbia correctional institution in Virginia, by Dr. Vincent Coradro with the help of 37 mostly overweight prisoners and some female employees. They were divided into two groups; one group did the exercises and used the Sauna Shorts as instructed by the manufacturer; the other group did only the exercises. They were all measured the same way on the same days.

After 10 days, "with respect to reducing waist, hips, and total things, Sauna Shorts and exercise together did not differ significantly from exercise alone . . ." The report written by Charles Dewitt Roberts and Walter Sloboda concluded.

The results in both groups varied depending on the individuals. One 28-year-old man using the Sauna Shorts, for instance, lost 3 inches on his waist but gained it on his thighs. A 48-year-old man picked up a half-inch on his waist, lost an inch on his hips, and gained 1¾ inches on his thighs.

In contrast, a 19-year-old woman doing only the exercises lost three-quarters of an inch off her waist, the same off her hips and 2¾ inches off her thighs.

Dr. Joseph Davis, director of the division of scientific review in FDA's office of medical devices, said the nation's food and drug laws do not require manufacturerers of devices such as these to submit evidence to support claims they make in advertising them.

The FDA nevertheless has a problem in developing a case that will hold up in court, Davis said, because finding the clinical and scientific evidence to disprove claims in court is difficult.

B.C. Bar Presses Ban on Handguns

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia members of the Canadian Bar Association will ask the CBA annual convention in Montreal next week to support their proposal to outlaw possession of handguns.

Only two exceptions would be permitted. Police or other public officers could wear handguns, along with those who can prove that it is for "the purpose of protecting human life in connection with a lawful occupation."

The B.C. proposal, passed by the annual meeting of the provincial CBA branch, also calls for registration of all types of firearms. An individual would have to obtain a certificate from the authorities and demonstrate competence.

Tony Pantages, chairman of the criminal justice subsection of the B.C. Bar Assocation, said Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, whose brother Robert was assassinated with a cheap handgun, supported the Canadian move.

Pantages said the senator was "encouraged to learn that steps are being taken to restrain the misuse and abuse of firearms." In a letter to the B.C. jurists, Kennedy said that in the U.S. "weak or non-existent controls support massive proliferation of firearms and a shameful record of gun violence or gun killing."

Rain Lashes Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Torrential rains, much heavier than even the U.S. Weather Service was prepared for, hit Chicago and its suburbs Friday night sending water up to eight feet deep running through the streets in some areas.

In a northwest Chicago suburb, police waded through waist-deep water to rescue a 65-year-old crippled woman from her first floor apartment. Neighbors rushed from their homes to pull a small boy from atop a car in danger of being swept away by swirling waters.

Local television and radio stations broadcast warnings of the impending storm and danger of flooding before it hit, but even the weather service was unprepared for the seven inches of rain, widespread flooding and damage that followed.

Authorities said the storm caused so much damage it is too early to assess it all.

At least six persons were injured in the suburb of Bridgetown when the roof of a grain company factory collapsed. Police said some were "very seriously" hurt.

Flood waters up to eight feet deep rambled through some suburbs. In Lombard, 50 persons left homeless by the flood were housed temporarily in the Peter Hoy School.

State police called for volunteer boats to evacuate residents in suburbs surrounding the Du Page River where a levee was in danger of breaking. The evacuation was called off, but police said if the rain continues, "we're in trouble."

Boat companies in the area contributed boats, being held on standby today, in case the levee gives way.

The storm caused widespred power and telephone failures. Hundreds of cars and trucks were trapped in flooded viaducts. The Wilmette harbor lock was opened to allow water from the swollen Chicago River to flow into Like Michigan — an action taken only in emergencies.

In the matter of expense

The thought that bereavement should impose a financial burden upon anyone is not a pleasant one. At Hayward's Funeral Chapel we are prepared to serve anyone from any walk of life. It is not necessary to join a so-called "Society" in order to achieve minimal expense.

At Hayward's we respect each family's financial circumstances, and we provide the type of service you prefer. We will discuss costs fully and frankly at any time with no obligation.

We stand ready to serve the family's wishes, quietly, sympathetically, with efficiency and dignity.

Response to a Human Need

The twentieth century deluge of international refugees has been augmented by Uganda's decision to expel some 50,000 Asians, most of whom are said to be first or second generation natives of Uganda. Canada has earned the gratitude of Britain, which is faced with an influx of many thousands of passport-bearing Asians claiming their right to immigrate. Ottawa's offer to accept some thousands — possibly five or six — of the evicted people was a humane act and a credit to the government.

One problem inherent in large-scale acts of humanity these days is the economic and social effects which may result. It is reasonable to expect that several thousand Asians can be easily absorbed into the Canadian structure, but the success of the process will depend on the immigrants themselves as well as on the governmental arrangements for them.

With a large number of unemployed, it would be asking for trouble to settle sizable numbers of refugees in areas where unemployment is a particular problem. Britain has already experienced the reaction of traditionally broad-minded people when jobs were threatened and strange social customs were introduced into relatively small localities. In the present case, delegations are now urging the British government to restrict the influx, and even to bar all entry.

The practice in Canada, therefore, should be to disperse the newcomers throughout the population as much as possible, find jobs for them which will not conflict with long-term employment of resident Canadians, and encourage the refugees not to form small population blocs which will make it more difficult for individuals to become integrated into the population.

The sad fact is that the world is not a very happy place for refugees in this age. Fears of the population explosion, the tragic examples of many thousand of persons who have become lifetime refugees in the Middle East and elsewhere, and the new twentiety-century concern with the ability of the environment to sustain ever larger populations — these considerations form a background of caution whenever a sizable influx of newcomers is discussed these days.

But there is no reason why these people should not find a useful place in Canada, just as the British and French did when the native Indians were faced with a growing tide of strangers from across the ocean. We should give them a decent welcome and a chance to make their contribution to our country.

Prevost Island — Bill Halkett

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Back to the Theorem

The coming election sets me thinking. Some years ago I remember the Rogers Pass Highway when the NDP cried out that it was a waste of taxpayers' money —and all the noise that was raised over the PGE. The same opposition again showed themselves to be wrong. This seems to be the way they work.

Don't think that I have no criticisms for the Social Credit government. It is far from perfect. The Liberals aren't worth anything and a Conservative vote at this time would only split the anti-left wing vote. Now, considering the S.C. Government, one of my criticisms is that not enough of the members know anything about C. H. Douglas' monetary reforms, or any other S.C. reforms. A good understanding of the system by our M.P.s would help immensely in giving us a better government.

Another criticism I have is not for our government, but the people in general of this country for being so apathetic when it comes to politics. They most often know all about sports, but their government, they couldn't care less. The latest fads in clothing or fishing, or the virtues of the different makes of cars, or modern music makers. But government, and politics—ugh, who wants to talk about that!

I think Social Credit is the lesser of the evils to choose from, and that the people of B.C. should study C. H. Douglas' works and press for these types of reforms.—R. Hamersley, Sayward, B.C.

Literacy

I think the best reply to Mr. W. A. C. Bennett's attack on the New Democratic Party is the following quotation from George Orwell's essay "Politics and the English Language":

"Political language is designed to make lies sound truthful and murder respectable."

No Reply

I read with amazement and downright anger a statement made by Dr. McDiarmid, Social Credit candidate for Oak Bay. He states that some of the candidates, once elected, feel they needn't heed the feelings of their constituents but he does . . . what a laugh. When Dr. McDiarmid was the Social Credit member for Alberni I wrote him a letter explaining to him how I had expended practically all my funds in buildng and stocking a gocery store fronting on the Island highway close to French Creek.

I had checked with regional planning and the health department, and received an okay to go ahead from both, including permission to open a small trailer court. I built the store and applied to the Department of Highways in proper manner for access to the business premises.

For six months they gave me the runaround, refusing any kind of an access, even to my own home. I was facing financial disaster.

In my letter I asked Dr. McDiarmid to please intercede in some way as my M.L.A. He, Dr. McDiarmid, didn't even have the decency to answer my letter. I wrote to him March 24. The latter part of April I telephoned him and he told me he had talked to the District Engineer and that the matter was under control. Shortly after this I was informed by the Department of Highways, Victoria, I could not have an access (second refusal) and that the present roadway to my property was illegal. This property had a business enterprise going for eight years before my taking over. Dr. McDiarmid sure worries about his constituents.

It was the editor of the Parksville-Qualicum Progress, Mr. Peter Caley, who came to my rescue through a stinging article in his weekly "Bouquets and Brickbats" of May 10. Mr. Caley also contacted the Minister of Highways and the Minister of Municipal Affairs. Needless to say 24 hours after the Progress was on the news stands I received a call from the Highways Department to go ahead.

In my humble opinion Dr. McDiarmid in his statement about candidates not heeding the feelings of his constituents describes himself most accurately. I am not the only Alberni constituent who wrote to Dr. McDiarmid and did not receive a reply.

In contrast, I wrote Dr. Scott Wallace on another matter and received not only an immediate reply but immediate action. — H. J. Bourgeault, R.R. 1, Island Highway, Parksville, B.C.

Tory Dignity

Something new and unexampled has been added to this electoral campaign: a large billboard is being trucked around suburban Victoria bearing the slogan Anderson for Premier, clearly implying that his election alone would bring this about.

As an instance of unmitigated arrogance this gimmick seems to be characteristic of his party, and in direct contrast to the orderly compaign being waged by the Progressive Conservatives who prefer dignity to imprudence.—H. V. Green.

Change the System

Canada and the United States have too many parties politically and spiritually. That's why many persons don't know for what and for whom to vote, and many don't vote at all. That is not good, because it leaves a small group to rule the large group. Lawlessness cannot be controlled by our present governing system. Therefore it is necessary to drop the existing Godless party system and make new laws with a Biblical background. The government is to make law and order, not disorder. Therefore let us bring in again that old Biblical teaching book. Put that in the schools and we will not need police on the streets.

I am going to vote for Social Credit as I think it is the best party for the time being. — J. W. Thiessen, 1343 Finlayson St.

Perplexing Questions

It would be a boon to have, without political distortion or rancor, answers to some questions that perplex intelligent people.

Statistics published in the U.S. last year show that in the last two decades, while the number of workers in wealth-producing industries (manufacturing, mining, lumbering, construction, etc.) held nearly steady, the number working in the sector providing services (government at all levels, teaching, etc.) rose from 28 million to nearly 48 million.

Furthermore, productivity in the services sector advanced only half as fast as in the goods-producing sector. Wage increases are dissipated by inflated costs elsewhere, largely the result of paying more for services without a corresponding increase in their worth. A government spokesman says that the same trends prevail in Canada.

Does this not suggest that any government must, sooner or later, establish priorities and place ceilings on expenditures? As it is, only the home-owners' grant prevents many an aged couple from being uprooted in their closing years by ever-increasing taxes at the municipal level.

Europe is in a grave dilemma regarding priorities. In the words of a famous French doctor with many years experience in public health, it is the "terrifying problem of 'selection' which must be faced in a world of aging and growing populations where there will never be enough money or services to go round."

Can any political candidate carry out election promises in a situation dominated by the crazy, three-cornered struggle between big business, big labor and big government at all levels for every cent they can lay their hands on? Far from abolishing poverty, it is a situation which is creating poverty where it did not exist before.

In 1980 there will be 300 million more people of working age than in 1970, many of whom will join the swollen ranks of the world's unemployed. Among those "gainfully employed" the Turkish peasant of today knows that he toils for a whole week in the hot sun for little more than a Canadian plumber asks for an hour's work: the Greek family, struggling to wrest 350 dollars a year from a reluctant soil, knows where it stands on the economic ladder. Armed force alone keeps them in subjection.

President Senghor of Senegal, highly-regarded by those who know him well, predicts a third world war brought about through the desperation of those with nothing to hope for and nothing to lose. Is there no lesson for us here?— S. G. Woodeson, 6456 Pat Bay Highway.

Burning Fewer Dollars

As partial compensation for a summer of erratic weather, British Columbians are enjoying a substantial reduction in the forest fire-fighting bill. Up to this weekend suppression costs amounted to $1.79 million—less than a quarter of the cost for the corresponding period last year, and the peak of the fire season is over.

There is still the possibility that a hot, dry spell, stretching into September, could create serious trouble in the woods, but longer nights with heavier dew are reducing the hazard.

This — combined with the fact that intermittent rains earlier in the season, coupled with a heavy snowfall last wnter and the summer melt of the snow pack, have kept the woods relatively moist — has eased the situation generally. Fires, where they have occurred, have seldom been in areas where the woods were explosively dry. Outbreaks could be contained with smaller crews and quicker response.

The outlook for the rest of the season is favorable. That, however, creates a hazard of its own. When the forests are tinder dry, the public moving in them, or along roads beside them, is usually more careful with fire and with cigarettes. When the risk diminishes, the inclination is to relax caution.

The remedy, if we wish to avoid burning up our own dollars, is to retain that carefulness which has been a factor in fighting fire the most effective way — by preventing it wherever possible.

Transfusion

Canadians who appreciate the purpose of native friendship centres — including those on Vancouver Island — will note with satisfaction the action taken by Ottawa to speed funding in areas where the money is needed to keep the service in operation. This appears to be the case in Victoria where, according to Chief Philip Paul, inconsistent financing had prejudiced the value of the plan to provide some location where Indians, bewildered and lonely away from their own localities, can find advice and comfort from their own kind.

As long as the friendship centres provide help, counselling, reassurance and the friendliness their name connotes, they serve a highly valuable purpose. If relatively modest outlays of federal funds can keep them in operation, the money will be well spent.

Improvement

City Council is to be congratulated on passing the sign bylaw which will impose controls on roof signs, third-party advertising and billboards. Despite the expected heavy lobbying by the sign industry the mayor and aldermen stuck by their guns — a show of responsibility which should have been exercised in a similar situation nearly a decade ago.

The improvements from the bylaw will not show up for another three years — the maximum period which advertisers have to bring their signs into conformity with the regulations. But the step has been taken and the benefits to the city's appearance will be automatic. With this job well done — what's next on the list?

A Nature Ramble With Skipper

FREEMAN KING

When we go down to the beach these summer days and watch the waves as they ripple over the sand it is interesting to wonder just where the sand comes from.

Sand is a substance that is both beautiful and mysterious; each grain on the beach is the result of processes that go back into the very development of the earth itself.

Most of the sand on the shore has come from the weathering and decay of rocks, perhaps from some mountain top or from some rugged cliff far inland. Each grain has been brought from its original place by the streams and rivers, perhaps some of the lighter material by the winds.

Take a handful and let it trickle through your fingers. Each particle is different both in shape and in color.

You may see the different colors in patches and wonder why. Possibly the heavier minerals overlying the quartz particles have been separated and sorted by wave action. Some of the grains are the remains of creatures from the sea itself. Where the sand is white it may be comprised of lime-hardened particles of the calcareous sea creatures.

Sand has many uses for mankind; it is used in the making of glass, for concrete, stucco and the plaster on our walls. And perhaps one of the most delightful uses of all is for sand castles for little children who go to the seashore.

Take a pocket glass and study some of the grains of sand; you will be amazed at the fascinating variety and beauty of them.

The World Has Learned Singularly Little From Its Massacres

C. L. SULZBERGER

Four centuries ago, on Aug. 24, 1572, the massacre of Saint Bartholomew, worst of a series of Protestant killings by Catholics, tore apart a France whose politics were deeply mixed with religious bigotry.

Catherine de Medici, the queen mother, is awarded blame for the events that led to this dreadful tragedy. Before the butchery was over — and it raged sporadically for perhaps three weeks — some 10,000 people had been slaughtered, not a bad figure for those earlier times when the tools of murder were still primitive.

Two hundred years after this grim event the great Voltaire wrote that its "memory must be perpetuated, so that those who are always ready to begin unhappy religious disputes may see to what excess a partisan spirit ultimately leads." Voltaire had already written in 1764.

"Fanaticism is to superstition what delirium is to fever, or rage to anger . . . Its most detestable example is provided by those bourgeois of Paris who on Saint Bartholomew's night ran to assassinate, butcher, defenestrate, and chop in pieces those of their fellow citizens who did not go to mass."

VOLTAIRE
". . . detestable example"

Although France is a happy exception, the world as a whole has learned singularly little from the Bartholomew massacre or from the 17th-century religious wars which subsequently engulfed so much of Europe. Indeed, today as much as yesterday and on a more impressive scale because there are more people and more terrible weapons, one might recall with historian von Ranke that all ages are equidistant from eternity.

★

Religion remains a contemporary inspiration for killing, and death continues to be a scourge in the name of God. Hindus and Moslems are just recovering from their latest violent bout on the subcontinent.

The simmering war between Israel and the Arabs cannot wholly be dissociated from religious origins, strongly as it is mixed in other emotional derivations. And the steady trickle of North Irish blood is based on the definition of whether the victim was a Catholic or a Protestant.

John Foxe, in his "Book of Martyrs", prepared a melancholy ledger of Christians killed in the name of various merciful gods, generally their own. A papal legate shouted at his troops besieging the reformist Albigensiand of Beziers: "Kill them, kill them all; kill man, woman and child; kill Roman Catholics as well as Albigenses, for when they are dead the lord knows how to select his own."

It is astounding how differences of creed or race have persevered as an excuse for slaughter. World War II was preceded and accompanied by Hitler's Jewish holocaust. It was succeeded in a burst of national liberation by the wholesale extinction of each other by Indian Hindus, Sikhs and Moslems.

Under the cross of the Crusaders, under the six-point Star of David, under the crescent of Islam and even under Buddha's peaceful prayer wheel, Bedouin, Samaritan, Philistine, Roman, German, Sudanese, Slav, Tamil Khmer and Ulstermen have killed and been killed. And, if one rightly includes communism among religions even though, like Buddhism, it professes allegiance to no divinity, the roster takes a quantum jump.

On this quadrecentennial of its own tragedy, France disproves the theory of its native son, Voltaire, who wrote with reference to Saint Bartholomew night: "The people of Paris are mad. They always have been and they always will be." But the lesson has been poorly learned elsewhere in this "enlightened" century.

Although the almost unchartable slaughters of military and civilians during World War II ended 27 years ago, these were followed by other tremendous mass-murders in South Asia, East Asia, Southeast Asia and only quantitatively less deadly events in West Asia, Central and Southern Africa.

Moreover, with the exception of largely racial conflagrations as in south Sudan, Chad or Rwanda-Burundi, most others have been either largely or partially related to ideological beliefs, either old-fashioned religious wars or new-fashioned holy wars, for or against one or another form of Marxist credo.

Whether killing for reasons of faith or of race is more depraved is an argument impossible to win, commonplace as this terrible event remains today. On this anniversary of an event that was once so awe-inspiring and now figures only as a footnote in history books, one might pray with Voltaire, who was so profoundly influenced by it: "Oh God, reveal to us then that man must be human and tolerant."

Scott Wallace Still Major Oak Bay Issue

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Within the immaculately-trimmed confines of the Oak Bay riding, there is one issue which stands above all the others in this election campaign.

Its name is G. Scott Wallace.

As much as Wallace's opponents hate to admit it, he is the prime factor. Without him in the race, the riding would likely revert to the traditional Liberal-Social Credit confrontation which saw a succession of Liberal candidates win over the Socred challengers.

But with Wallace in the thick of things, the form charts can be set aside, at least temporarily.

In 1969, Wallace, running under the Social Credit banner, dropped a bombshell on provincial election-watchers by dumping barely-seated incumbent Allan Cox. When the smoke had cleared, Wallace had run up an overwhelming total of 52 per cent of the vote to Cox's 36 per cent.

The margin of victory was attributed to Wallace's appeal to Oak Bay voters as an individual, as a man who would do what he felt was necessary to properly represent his constituents.

After two uncomfortable sessions as a Socred backbencher, Wallace did what he felt was necessary — he bolted the Socred ranks and sat as an independent before joining up with the rejuvenated Progressive Conservative effort led by Derril Warren.

And in the opinion of the three leading candidates for the Aug. 30 election, that is as far as the issue needs to be explained.

Wallace stands by his actions and is waiting for his two principal opponents to come and do something about it.

Social Credit candidate Howie McDiarmid is one who did something about it — he abandoned his original plan to retire from politics after six years as MLA for Alberni and is going after Wallace with a vengeance.

McDiarmid doesn't mind admitting that the primary reason he is running this time, and the reason that former South Peace River Socred MLA Don Phillips has re-entered the political arena, is because Wallace and South Peace MLA Don Marshall both quit the Socreds to join the Tories.

★ ★ ★

McDiarmid calls Wallace a "Trojan horse", ("he was elected under false colors,") and says, "I want to see him get his come-uppance."

The Socred's somewhat unconventional newspaper advertising campaign has been strongly slanted against Wallace's performance in an attempt to galvanize the anti-Wallace vote and strengthen the basic Social Credit party support.

Although he labels Wallace a "carpetbagger" for having deserted the party with which he was elected, Couvelier is more willing to fall back on the history of the riding as a Liberal bastion to justify his own predictions of personal success.

"If I can hold on to the hard-core Liberal vote in this riding, I'm a natural winner," he says.

From Alan Macfarlane's 1963 and 1966 victories over Charles Ennals to Cox's 1968 byelection defeat of Peter Pollen, the Liberals' percentage of the vote rose from 43 to 54 to 60 per cent.

But Wallace's 1969 triumph threw tradition out the window and his highly individualistic actions since that time can only add to the confusion.

In predicting first-place finishes for themselves, both Couvelier and McDiarmid appear to have underestimated the widespread personal attraction throughout the riding of Scott Wallace the man.

Many of the people you speak to say Wallace is enough of an individual to make traditional party lines a secondary factor in this election.

★ ★ ★

They say Oak Bay has for a long time been voting for the man rather than the party and that men like Alan Macfarlane, now a judge, and former mayor Cox would probably have been elected no matter which free enterprise party they stood for.

Wallace is compared favorably with these men and is given much credit for his willingness to speak out on the issues, regardless of the consequences.

McDiarmid and Couvelier are quick to point out, and Wallace agrees, that Wallace is bound to lose a number of votes which went his way in 1969 because he was a Social Credit candidate. "He couldn't have expected to take them all in a carpet bag across the floor with him," Couvelier says.

But two additional factors are expected to work as counter-balances to this possible loss of Wallace support.

One of them is the bloc of votes that is likely to fall into Wallace's lap because he is now a Progressive Conservative. The last Tory candidate in Oak Bay, lawyer Hugh Henderson in 1963, polled 17 per cent of the vote, by no means disgraceful in a four-candidate race.

The other factor is the undetermined number of voters who did not support Wallace in the last election because he was a Socred.

Some people who say they used to vote Liberal and some people who say they would normally vote NDP admit a liking for Wallace's way of doing things and will vote for him this time.

Wallace himself feels that his actions since the 1969 election are merely an embodiment of his "fundamental policy — to stand up and be counted."

He feels there will be repercussions among the electorate but that these "will not be sufficient to defeat me."

★ ★ ★

Asked about the long-standing support for Liberal candidates in Oak Bay, Wallace said it is possible that there will be a return to past voting patterns, but added that he has encountered sufficient disenchantment with the federal Liberal party to keep him from losing too much sleep over Couvelier's candidacy.

McDiarmid says that he too has run into a general feeling of discontentment with the federal Liberal government and, like Wallace, is predicting a close three-way fight for the seat. The NDP candidate, 25-year-old UVic student Gordon Neuls, is not considered much of a factor.

McDiarmid is confident that there are enough staunch Socred voters in the riding to carry him in.

His blunt newspaper ads and loud, festooned campaign trailer have raised more than one eyebrow in the quiet, residential riding.

"Sure, we may offend some of the staid Oak Bay people who think it's all hucksterism," he said. "But with me, what you see is what you get."

Couvelier bases his election hopes on the strength of a restructured Liberal party and his long and ardent personal campaign in the riding.

And so the battle is shaped. Wallace, whose supporters call him an individual and whose opponents call him a loner, leads the pack into the home-stretch.

The betting says it will be close but it remains to be seen if a "Trojan horse" of a different color can win.

Car Insurance Cost Swings Young Burnaby Voters

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

BURNABY — Fear of a socialist takeover has sprung up among older voters here while the younger ones say they are more interested in the possibility of low-cost government car insurance.

The car insurance issue is causing the main erosion of Social Credit votes here, with young people who pay $300 or $400 for insurance switching from Bennett to the NDP ol the possibility that the rate may be as low as $25 per year.

An older NDP party worker who described himself as one of the few genuine socialist left in the party, said he had converted several young Social Credit supporters on the car insurance issue.

"One young man said he was coming over to us because it would save him maybe a couple of hundred dollars a year," he said.

"That's not my idea of a very committed voter."

He signed deeply. "It's a long way from the class struggle."

This is the area where fiery socialist Ernie Winch used to pile up huge majorities for the CCF but now it is changing from a working class area to the affluent home and apartment bedroom for Vancouver.

Social Credit comes closer and closer every year as the nature of the riding changes and car insurance is the only thing giving the NDP MLAs a feeling of confidence.

In the 1969 election James Lorimer won Burnaby-Willingdon by 557 voes, Gordon Dowding held Burnaby-Edmonds by 952 and Eileen Dailly won Burnaby-North by 2,185 votes. In each case it was an NDP win over Social Credit.

Says Lorimer: "It will be quite close but my canvassers tell me I will win again. If this riding falls, a lot of them will fall as well."

On Kingsway, in the centre of the Burnaby-Willingdon riding, young John Bowack works in a barber shop.

"I'm not a barber, I'm a hair stylist," he says.

"Election issues? the young people who come in here are really interested in the NDP plan for car insurance is changing a lot of votes.

"Why not? Some of them are paying hundreds of dollars for car insurance. It's too much. Myself, I voted for Bennett last time but not this time.

"I'm paying $750 a year for insurance. I figure any party that can get it for me for $25 can't be all bad."

Conversely, the car insurance plank has almost no interest for the older voter but the fear of socialism does.

After Bennett made his ringing declaration last Monday night that the socialists were at the gate and the NDP was in bed with the communists, many committed Social Credit supporters were cautions and even hostile about discussing election issues.

Said one retired man: "The election? No comment. I'm undecided. Put me down as undecided. Issues? The socialists. Keep the socialists out. That's all. Otherwise, things are fine."

An elderly woman said she was too upset to talk about the election.

When asked what the issues were she said:

"Communism!"

She refused to elaborate and, like many of the elderly persons interviewed, said she was afraid to give her name.

The interviews were conducted on Wednesday, two days after Premier Bennett's speech on the socialist threat.

Younger voters seemed to laugh off the premier's warning.

Burnaby-Willingdon is a long north-south riding to the right of Boundary Road which divides Vancouver and Burnaby. The northern section of the riding is opposite Vancouver-East and is NDP territory.

The southern section borders on Vancouver-South and like that riding it leans to Social Credit.

Kingsway runs through the middle of the riding and it is the area with the highest number of new voters, moving to the high-rises which are going up around the developing business centre.

Both the NDP and Social-Credit canvassers claim to be out in front among these new voters. NDP candidate Lorimer says that even with a 50-50 sawoff he has enough votes to hold the riding.

The only local issue is Oakalla, the provincial medium security prison that takes up 200 acres in the centre of Burnaby.

Lorimer says the provincial government in 1960 promised to move it out of Burnaby-within 10 years and the deadline has come and gone.

He says Oakalla is hampering development in the core of the municipality which is nearing city status.

Former Burnaby alderman Dave Mercier (prounced mercy air), the Social Credit candidate, says some of Oakalla's 200 acres could be converted to park but there is no need to move it out of Burnaby.

Conservative Cal Davis, a 25-year-old ironworker, said he has heard a lot about the Socialist threat from voters in Burnaby but he counters it by saying that the NDP will win by default if Conservatives fail to get a large representation in the house.

He argues: "When Bennett retires, Social Credit will collapse. We need a viable free enterprise alternative or the NDP will win by default. Voters seem to be accepting this argument but I am a bit nervous. Everything is too quiet to suit me."

Meanwhile, the Liberal campaign in this riding is literally coming unglued.

There are many signs urging support for Bernice McDonough, the Liberal candidate. But she isn't running. Due to ill health she had to step down and professional engineer Don Jamieson was nominated.

The name Don Jamieson was pasted over the McDonough signs but a rainstorm knocked some of the Jamieson pastings off. In one area checked, there were more McDonough signs than Jamieson signs.

All in all it is not a good sign for the Liberal campaign in Burnaby-Willingdon.

'Little Old Ladies' at Polls Keep Victoria Socreds Happy

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

Premier Bennett is fond of saying that in politics as in love, a little mystery is important.

By that standard, one of his most faithful constituencies makes for an unexciting mistress.

The two-seat riding of Victoria is not only tedious in its solid Social Credit support. It is painfully obvious (to Socred opponents) why that allegiance exists. A city full of "little old ladies in tennis shoes" is an exaggerated description but a city with large numbers of elderly citizens — and elderly voters — is no exaggeration at all.

★ ★ ★

Nice Mr. Chant is 74 years old, Bennett's oldest MLA and a particularly old-fashioned sounding and looking gentleman, who was cabinet minister in Alberta way back during that dirty decade that the old folks remember so well. Chant's reward in the 1969 election was 15,899 votes, more than any other candidate in the province received.

By way of contrast, the other city-centre riding in the province, Vancouver Centre, returned hip Herb Capozzi, a Socred, albeit one of the seemingly more reluctant of their numbers.

Chant is leaving the riding to Waldo Skillings, no mean vote-getter (15,443) and a new running mate, a political nobody in the city, Newell Morrison. If this forced change in the Socred drawing card is a sign of trouble, there are very few reading it that way. Victoria is still thought of as one of the surest of the Socred ridings.

★ ★ ★

If for no other reason, this can be proved by the fact that the central Socred office is giving no money to Victoria from its reputedly corpulent war chest.

Victoria is the kind of riding that causes people to sigh and say that the government will be re-elected again in 1972, just as it has for so many years.

But the yawning has to stop when considering the attempt by the Liberal party to find a home for its leader, David Anderson, in a riding that shows little inclination to upset its voting pattern.

"Why didn't he take Esquimalt," said a perplexed Socred staff worker this week. He judged Anderson's chances to oust Herb Bruch as excellent in an area that has already approved Anderson at the polls in a federal election.

That question, if Anderson should lose, will linger on, as will the elderly people in Victoria riding who are one of the few really predictable voting blocks in B.C. politics.

Undoubtedly, the elderly Victorians respond in large numbers directly to Premier Bennett's cash incentives. The incentives are particularly enticing in this election. The homewoner grant has gone from $170 to $235 for those over 65 years of age and Bennett has promised an increase in the old age pension supplement if he's re-elected. There are further goodies like the senior citizens' courtesy card and cut-rate fishing licences for the elderly.

Canadian taxation statistics show that Victoria is indeed heavily populated with old folk. By last count, 32 per cent of the income tax forms from the city area reported superannuation, and 17.5 per cent reported receiving old age pension or supplementary pensions. The average figures for the province were 13 and 12 per cent.

To the pensioner whose static income is being eroded by inflation, the Bennett-designed dividends could mean the difference between independence and welfare. For the elderly who have a little more to live on, life can be easier.

But the power of the elderly voter may lie as much in his or her willingness to actually cast that vote as in the numbers of the age group.

Because the riding is a safe Socred area, Anderson's attempt to establish a base camp there makes it a pundit's delight. The fact that he chose Victoria dictates that the candidacy be taken seriously, but it doesn't make the formula for success any easier to develop.

Anderson is relying largely on the personal appeal he created as a pollution-fighting Member of Parliament, though the elderly may not be the group most attracted to that image.

In any case, he is far better known by the public than the Socred newcomer, Morrison, whose hope is to inherit the Socred seat by riding the Skillings coat-tails and while the memory of Chant is fresh.

Anderson has made no special attempt to run against either Morrison or Skillings, or anyone else, except Bennett. His strategy seems to be to break the pattern of voters who choose two candidates from the same party. It is a chance to get elected without topping the polls.

Working against that format, however, is the presence of the Progressive Conservative ticket. Both Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning and city Ald. Clyde Savage are names that have been around in print longer than Anderson's and they also will be attempting to fracture the Socred double seat.

Observers in an out of the PC camp predict a better showing from Gunning than from Savage because of the former's work in social services that has often brought her in contact with the elderly — a dimension in her campaign that Anderson also lacks. Then there is the disconcerting (to the Liberals and (PCs) fact that in the 1969 election, the New Democrats brought in 29 per cent of the vote, a portion which in the possession of the NDP is always considered a "hard-core" vote that is difficult to dislodge.

(The Socreds won with 54 per cent of the vote, while Liberals got 17 per cent. No PC candidate was entered.)

Still, NDP campaign organizers admit their two candidates are swamped with all the big names in the riding and will be happy to hold that 29 per cent.

Kathleen Ruff, 32, and David Hobson, 29, will if nothing else provide a good experiment of how elderly Victoria reacts to youthful candidates.

So far the Victoria campaign lacks any compelling issues and is running merely on the name recognition factor plus the built-in appeal to old age. So at another level, the campaign that succeeds best in reaching the voter with personal visits or pamphlets stands to make gains.

Door to door canvassing is difficult in Victoria riding because about half or more of the people live in apartment buildings. Although a provincial law authorizes political canvassers to do their work in apartments, none of the campaigns here are using the right to bull their way in.

★ ★ ★

It would hardly be worth it, says Socred manager Byron Barker. The Socred campaign began early in July, in the belief an election was coming Aug. 25 and many apartment dwellers were first reached by phone. Some of the riding's areas will have been hit a total of four times before voting day Aug. 30. This is by far the most intensive coverage. It is supplemented with garden parties, a favorite function for the elderly.

The NDP claims to be completing a second full canvass before voting day, which makes that party's road work the second most intensive. The Liberals are relying on mail drops but have only completed one canvass. The PCs, late to organize, may cover 80 per cent of the riding with person-to-person contact.

The punch line of the Socred campaign is a mailed out postcard that could be mistaken for a voter-registration card except for the party name on it.

"You have two votes," it says, "Youf Social Credit candidates are Morrison, Newell R. . . . Skillings, Waldo M. Vote for both of them."

★ ★ ★

Barker says the card is to remind elderly people still confused after the 1966 redistribution, that in Victoria there are two, not three, votes, and that the boundary changes brought some voters into the riding from outside.

What seems more likely is that the card is an attempt to fight off the Anderson bid to barge through the double support Social Credit has been accustomed to in Victoria.

If he does barge through he may have cracked Social Credit in the middle, and he may open up new voting patterns, perhaps with the help of the new young vote and the 6,000 new registered voters in the riding.

The elderly vote shows little signs of changing. For one thing, it doesn't always see change as good for its own sake.

Election Year Facts, Fiction

• YOUR TAXES •

By L. H. ASPER

This being an election summer, we people can expect to hear many interesting things. And since every political public-opinion survey worth its salt always tells the politicians that one of the top issues is tax, we can assume that as the political temperature rises, the tax rhetoric will escalate in direct proportion.

Serious observers of the tax scene will be forgiven if they sit this one out, because it's meaningless. Everything worth saying about tax reform has already been said since the Carter commission reported in 1967.

Like it or not, the compromise of opposing views has already been made, tax reform is upon us, and the most positive contribution politicians can now make is to work toward tying the loose ends, removing unintended anomalies and inequities, and generally improving the everyday working of the system.

Since that is hardly the stuff of the hustings, it will be understandable if the two major opposition parties attempt to make taxation an election subject.

That may be playing into the hands of the government, for in populist terms it can make fairly appealing taste.

To those who have in the past claimed that capitalists were getting away with something, the government can now point to its new capital gains tax, while still telling the financial community that it has protected the concept of private capital by abolishing federal estate taxes.

As to the criticism that the government is anti-business, it will point to Finance Minister John Turner's May budget which cut taxes for manufacturing and processing companies to the lowest level in recent memory.

The government's strongset political appeal can be made to the low-income earners.

Because of the increase in personal exemptions in 1972, plus the new $150 working-cost deduction, the child-care deducations for working mothers, and the increased special exemptions for senior citizens, the government estimates that more than one million persons are being removed from the tax rolls this year, while another five million will enjoy a tax reduction. That's not bad in an election year.

Faced with these statistics, the opposition parties will have difficulty making taxation a major election issue. Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has already staked his ground in his proposal to allow a tax deduction each year equivalent to the inflation impact.

The Stanfield constant-dollar plan will have an instant appeal to those voters who can understand it, but if he presses his case to his point he will have to show where he intends to cut government spending to make up the revenue loss his plan would create. However, the Conservative leader does have a case worth discussing.

The NDP appears content to go with its traditional material — that corporations are not paying their fair share and that the tax system must be amended to stop this corporate free loading.

In this endeavor, NDP Leader David Lewis has been firing his howitzers almost daily. His attack is aimed chiefly at resource companies which he names, and then proceeds to demonstrate how much cash profit they make and how little income tax they pay as a result of federal tax incentives.

This argument, while emotionally appealing to the uninformed, was considered throughout the entire tax-reform debate and resolved by reducing the incentives over the next few years, while not making it unattractive on an international competitive basis for resource industries to continue operating and expanding in Canada.

Another of Lewis' statistics is more worthy of comment. In order to prove that corporations generally aren't paying enough tax, he says in 1950 28 per cent of all direct taxes were paid by corporations and 26.7 per cent was paid by individuals, but that in 1973, corporations will contribute only 12.2 per cent of the toal while government will extract nearly 50 per cent from individuals.

Without studying the accuracy of his specific figures, it can be acknowledged that in principle it is true that the individual income tax is rising each year as a percentage of government revenue. But this does not help Lewis' argument that corporations are freeloading, and in fact, he becomes vulnerable on the point.

For the last complete year, it appears that individual income tax amounted to $6 billion compared to $2 billion in corporate tax. In 1950, individual federal tax was $575 million while corporate tax was $760 million. However, what damages the Lewis argument is that the labor force being taxpayers has skyrocketed compared to the growth in the number of profit-making organizations.

In 1950 there were 31,000 taxable companies. Today there are slightly over 100,000—about an increase of 70,000 corporate taxpayers. In 1950 there were only 2.4 million individual taxpayers, but this has escalated to eight million today. It is not corporate free riding which accounts for the comparative rise in individual share of income tax, it is the great increase of six million individual taxpayers compared to an increase of only 70,000 new corporations.

Also, the Lewis theory is shaken when one considers that through more intensive bargaining with employers over the past 20 years, employees are getting a much larger piece of the pie today, and therefore have a greater percentage of the taxable income. Canadian Tax Foundation figures show that in 1950 Canada's individual taxpayers received income of $7 billion while the corporations got $2.4 billion. Today, individuals take home $50 bilioln — a 700-per-cent increase, while the corporations earn about $7 billion, about a 300-per-cent increase.

Thus Lewis' argument is self-defeating. The grater individual percentage of tax is caused by rapidly growing earnings being received by a rapidly expanding number of people, rather than because of a tax-free ride for Canadian corporations, which remains, along with Canadian individuals, amongst the highest tax in the western world.

Penn Rail Refinances

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Penn Central Co. shareholders have voted 6 to 1 in favor of a controvesial refinancing plan they hope will save it from following its subsidiary, the largest U.S. railway, into bankruptcy.

However, a federal court may have the last word on whether the plan to refinance $64.3 million in Swiss notes will be implemented over the opposition of some dissident stockholders, including newly elected director.

More than 12 million shares supported the plan Thursday while less than two million shares were voted against it.

A slate of 10 management nominated directors was elected, with the most votes going to Andrew Allen, 61, a San Francisco millionaire who owns 165,000 shares and is the leading opponent of the financing proposal.

A federal judge had refused to stop the annual meeting, as Allen demanded, but set a hearing for Sept. 8 to determine whether shareholders were given "false and misleading" information on the refinancing plan. The company denies Allen's charge.

Allen said he would prefer bankruptcy for the company, whose principal asset is the railway, rather than give the Swiss noteholders a chance to take over control of the biggest transportation organization in America.

He contended the railroad, the stock of which would be used to back the refinanced note, can be made to turn a profit.

7,000 Watch Ship Launch

QUEBEC (CP) — The 80,000-ton deadweight tanker Kriti Star was launched today at the Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. yards at Lauzon across the St. Lawrence River from here.

About 7,000 persons thronged the yards to watch the ship, nearly the length of 2½ football fields, slipped down the ways.

The 785-foot Kriti Star, the largest built in Canada, is the first of three identical oil tankers being built by Davie, a subsidiary of Canada Steamship Lines Ltd., for the Varnima group of companies in Greece.

Death-Camp Experiments 'For Science'

VIENNA (Reuter) — Fugitive Nazi Joseph Mengele has written memoirs claiming his Second World War death-camp experiments were guided by science and not sadism, says a Jewish investigator.

Vienna-based Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal says Mengele, still a fugitive 27 years after the war, has written a book about his medical experiments, apparently in an effort to rehabilitate himself.

Wiesenthal, who has spent many years tracking down Nazi war criminals, claims the 61-year-old Mengele lives in Paraguay but has always managed to keep several jumps ahead of pursuers.

Mengele was responsible for the deaths of thousands of Jews in the Auschwitz concentration camp. Many died after experiments he conducted apparently in an attempt to develop a "super race."

Vice-Like Waiting Game Grips Mill Town

TEMISCAMING, Que. (CP) — This western Quebec town of 2,400 is in the vice-like grip of a waiting game, it's destiny sealed for the moment behind corporate and government doors nearly 400 miles away.

The men of Temiscaming, most of whom worked for Canadian International Paper Co. much of their lives, are waiting to hear whether the mill will reopen.

The optimism surging through the town when its only industry — no longer profitable — shut down May 31 is guarded now and in some places paper-thin.

The skeleton-like mill, its 200-foot smode stacks towering over the peaceful Ottawa River, is silent.

The only sounds in the winding, hilly streets are the voices of the jobless who gather early in the morning to exchange rumors, news and hopes.

They are waiting to hear whether five Montreal men are able to create a company which, with government assistance, would reopen the mill under new ownership and give them back their jobs.

They are waiting to hear if 75 of their fellows will get unemployment benefits before their life savings run out.

They are also waiting to hear what effects community action will have. A committee of interested citizens has canvassed former employees and found 60 per cent in favor of putting savings into a $500,000 fund to help pay costs of reopening the mill.

The committee has also sent a telegram to Premier Robert Bourassa urging all possible action to get the mill operating.

LACKS HEAT

When the mill closed, the rumors spread that it would reopen by September.

"I think September is too early," said Dr. Gilbert Theberge, the town's only dentist and Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly for Temiscamingue. "But it's this fall or it's finished."

The mill is without heat and the talk around is that if winter comes before the new company, the water pipes will freeze and the machinery will deteriorate beyond economic repair.

The mill's vast store of raw materials has been depleted and most workers estimate it would take more than a month to restock. The mill required 400 tons of coal and 950 cords of wood a day.

If the mill does not reopen "we'll just have to aim at something else," said the dapper Theberge. "Something will be better than nothing."

Theberge has been in touch constantly with government officials and the men who are trying to create the new company. He is getting no answers.

The workers will tell you their morale is slipping and their patience coming to an end.

Charles Carpenter, president of Local 233 of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Papermill Workers, said the Ontario and Quebec governments have been unco-operative.

He said officials calculated the amount received by workers in the form of severance, holiday and back pay in their final cheques.

"If the worker got a total of $2,000, and his weekly pay was, say, $100, they said the worker had enough to live on for 20 weeks and that he can't apply for benefits until all the money is used."

Claude St. Pierre, 51-year-old father of seven, is one of them. He exhausted his savings a few days ago and the family is getting by on "small wages" earned by his wife.

"We're having so many problems with the UIC (Unemployment Insurance Commission) marry-go-round that it's not even funny," said Carpenter.

Of the plant's 540 workers, 404 lived in Quebec and 136 in Ontario communities just across the river.

"Ontario has been more helpful," said Carpenter.

Four persons awaiting benefits are from Ontario.

Canada Manpower has been "good to us," said Carpenter. Manpower officials come to town twice a week to help the jobless find work.

Thirty-eight families have left. The heads of another 32 families are commuting to outside jobs.

The 50-year-old union leader said at least a dozen men have gone on welfare because they could not get unmpeloyment benefits or jobs, but many others "are just too proud to do it."

Carpenter, former army paratrooper and knife-fighting instructor, said the financially-pressed union is unable to help its members.

Charlie Thompson, 59, said "I'm one of the lucky ones." He went on early retirement which brings him $225 a month. His wages, among the highest in the mill, were $788.

Rene Cayen, 44, said "five of the guys went down to Hull where they're advertising for workers." The five, all in their mid-30s and with about 10 years mill experience, were turned away from a paper mill there.

"They only had Grade 8 and you had to have Grade 9."

Cayen is living on vacation and severance pay, waiting for unemployment benefits. He will find it difficult to find another job. He developed emphysema, which he attributed to working in an area where there are sulphur dioxide and acid fumes.

Thompson said "most of us have lung problems" and even if they could get jobs without medicals, they would be junior jobs at much lower pay.

They would also get laborers' jobs. Of the 540 former mill workers, 374 were between the ages of 40 and 60.

"Lots of the older guys just couldn't take all that slugging again," said Thompson.

Eighty-two per cent of the workers owned or were buying their homes. "Lots of us had mortgages of $36 or $40 a month," said Mr. Carpenter.

"Where else are you going to get that?"

"Everybody is so old now. We thought we'd be able to retire gracefully. Now what are we supposed to do? It's just so damned sad."

Paul Benoit, the mayor and owner of one of the town's two grecery stores, said: "There is optimism in the air — I don't know where — but so they tell me. I don't really think this mill will be closed forever."

If it is, the town stands to lose $165,000 a year in buiness taxes, 50 per cent of the town's annual budget. The area's two school systems will lose $320,000. And property taxes will then have to rise.

Benoit's business— which includes the only beer outlet it town — is not suffering. Other businessmen report some decreases, but tourist dollars have helped. In the fall, it may be different.

Ross Sparling, owner of an electrical service shop, estimated the town's population will drop by half if the mill doesn't reopen.

At the town's only hotel, where business has dropped $600 a month, mainly in liquor and beer sales, manager Hermes Larocque was trying to create ways of attracting new business.

Bartender Denny Rossignol, 26, poured beer in the smoke-filled bar and said "It's really bad."

Grape Pact Reached

KELOWNA (CP) — Wineries and grape producers here have reached an agreement on grape prices for 1972 and 1973.

The agreement was reached Friday after a 15-hour bargaining session between the B.C. Grape Marketing Board and winery representatives.

A price of $198 a ton for this year's crop and $213 a ton in 1973 was agreed upon.

The board bargained on behalf of about 130 grape producers, most of whom operate vineyards in the Okanagan and Similkameen area.

Three Seek Sask. Seat

REGINA (CP) — Three candidates are contesting a Sept. 27 provincial byelection in the northern Saskatchewan constituency of Athabasca, announced Friday by Premier Allan Blakeney.

The seat was declared vacant in February because of "voting irregularities" in the June 23 provincial election last year.

The 1971 contest was won by Liberal Allan Guy with a margin of 12 votes after a judicial recount over Robert Dalby, the New Democratic Party candidate.

Guy and Dalby will again contest the seat. Ray Jones, a Metis from Uranium City has declared himself an independent candidate. No Progressive Conservative candidate has been announced. Nominations close Sept. 11.

Guy, 46, a school principal who lives in Regina, was first elected to the legislature in 1960 and re-elected in 1964 and 1971.

FRIENDSHIP CENTRE OPEN SEPTEMBER 16

Three second-storey rooms at 1291 Gladstone will officially become Victoria's new Indian Friendship Centre Sept. 16 at 2 p.m.

That's when the area will be opened for public viewing. Until 6 p.m. on the 16th and from 2 to 6 p.m. on the 17th, everyone is invited to examine the large, L-shaped lounge, which boasts brick and wooden walls, hardwood floor and overhead fishnet laden with Indian carvings.

The room is also equipped with kitchenette and living room furniture. Renovation work just began on the two smaller rooms across the hall but is expected to be finished for the opening.

Board chairman Phillip Paul said Friday they took a three-year lease on the centre in June, using money from $7,500 provincial and federal government grants obtained earlier this year.

Concern earlier this month about delays in distribution of the secretary of state'se $1.4 million fund for Canadian centres was abated when Gerard Pelletier announced interim grants from $10,000 to $25,000 per centre on the 13th would be given to keep things running until original funds are released.

This money will be deducted from the $1.4 million. Paul says he neither knows when it will arrive or how much this centre will receive but opening plans will proceed anyway.

Last year the centre at 1408 Broad closed because of financial and operational difficulties "but this one is better organized," said Paul.

The 12 board members "are all more aware of the kinds of needs the centre should serve Greater Victoria Indians."

The centre's purpose is to help Indians new to the area reorient themselves.

There is a need for some kind of organization to help Indians adjust, he said.

"The federal government encourages them to leave reserves but that's where their policy ends."

Paul says increasing numbers of Indians are moving to urban centres. Victoria attracts a lot, but because of its size it doesn't have as many problems as larger cities, like Vancouver, and its educational facilities are just as good.

Plans for a program are still indefinite because this will be "dictated by who is interested in what."

Priorities for this year are education and counselling refamily — extensive recreation programs, arts and craft classes. Eventually the centre should provide its own counselling in all areas — alcohol, family — extensive recration and cultural programs and a housing development scheme, said Paul.

Shot Unionist Goes Home

TORONTO (CP) — Former union leader Bruno Zanini, shot in an ambush Wednesday, says organized crime has not been the focus of his investigation into labor practices in the construction field here.

As he left hospital after treatment for a bullet wound in his thigh, Zanini said Friday inquiries he has been pursuing point to individuals rather than to organized crime.

"A few individuals in unions, the kind you find anywhere, and a couple of contractors," he explained.

Frank Drea, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Scarborough Centre and a former labor reporter, said he and Zanini have been looking into a "well-organized group effort" in labor racketeering here.

UMW-Owned Bank Springs Boyle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Washington bank owned largely by the United Mine Workers advanced UMW president W. A. "Tony" Boyle a $179,000 line of credit without any collateral so he could escape going to prison last June, court testimony has disclosed.

The testimony, elicted Friday from Boyle himself and an attorney for the bank, John Wilson, revealed that the National Bank of Washington extended the credit June 27 within minutes after Boyle had been sentenced to five years in prison for a series of federal crimes, including illegal conversion of union funds.

The credit line extended personally to Boyle, once a director of the bank, enabled him to obtain a surety bond from the Maryland Casualty Co. that was posted to secure the union chief's release from the lock-up at the U.S. District Court here pending appeal of his conviction.

U.S. District Judge Howard F. Corcoran ruled Aug. 15 that the insurgent group was entitled to damages and called Friday's hearing to determine Boyle's worth before deciding how much he should pay.

Rauh said the hearing disclosed that the 70-year-old UMW chief has assets "in excess of a quarter of a million dollars," including the $190,000 in savings and a $50,000 house.

Last March, Boyle was convicted of making illegal political contributions of $49,500 and converting union funds to unauthorized use. Besides the prison term, Boyle was ordered to repay the $49,500 and fined $130,000.

Judge Charles R. Rickey, who imposed the penalties in June, refused to release Boyle unless he posted bond for the full $179,500.

It was not until last week that Boyle met with bank officials and pledged more than $190,000 in various savings accounts to assure the credit. The UMW owns more than 70 per cent of the bank's stock.

"The only reason he got out was because the bank guaranteed the bond," Joseph L. Rauh Jr., the lawyer who extracted the information from Boyle and Wilson, said today. "It's just absurd. It was obvious to everyone in the courtroom that only because Boyle is president of the UMW that owns the bank that he got the loan."

The testimony came at a district court hearing to determine Boyle's net wortr in connectiin with a civil suit for damages against him by the Miners For Democracy, an anti-Boyle insurge[illegible] the UMW that Rauh represents. They filed the suit in 1969 after Boyle fired Joseph A. Yablonski from his union post after he announced he was running against Boyle for the union presidency.

Yablonski subsequently lost the election and shortly thereafter was found murdered, along with his wife and daughter.

Italy Gets Color TV

ROME (AP) — Italy's government television network began experimental color transmissions today, but anyone who wanted to watch had to buy two TV sets at a cost of $850 each.

The transmission coincided with start of the Olympic Games in Munich. The transmissions may become permanent if it is decided which color system should be adopted — the German Pal or the French Secam.

During the trial period, half of the transmissions will use one system, half the other.

Window Washer Falls 4 Storeys

James Stuart Messenger, of 4945 Lochside, received multiple injuries when he feel 40 feet to the sidewalk below.

Messenger, an employee of Excelsior Building Maintenance Ltd., 1121 Vancouver, had finished washing a window on the Grant Street side of the school when he fell.

He received a broken arm, multiple fractures to his pelvis, a dislocated hip and internal injuries when he hit the sidewalk.

Police said it appeared Messenger undid one side of his safety belt to climb into an open fourth-floor window.

He lost his balance and fell, ripping the inner part of the safety belt that was still attached.

Federal Legal Aid Welcomed in B.C.

A Victoria lawyer says if B.C. participates in the proposed federal legal aid program, up to 40 per cent more criminal-case clients could be handled — depending on how the provincial government uses the money.

Bub Hutchison, a Legal Aid Society neighborhood law clinic lawyer, also said legal aid in civil matters is still necessary.

He was commenting on Justice Minister Otto Lang's announcement Thursday that the federal government would pay provinces 50 cent per person for legal aid and five cents per person for victim compensation, with a limit of 90 per cent of total provincial spending in those areas.

Hutchison said there is great need in Victoria for such aid, but if the provincial government participates, there is the question of what extent.

B.C. Legal Aid Society director Frank Maczko said in Vancouver any improvement in legal aid would depend on whetéher the provincial government used the money in addition to current funds it provides or to save provincial money.

He suggested the best way for the province to use the federal aid would be to divert the current $750,000 funds to family court, administrative boards and neighborhood legal counselling.

He said the federal aid would probably provide B.C. with $1 million.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said in Vancouver he welcomes the federal proposal, adding it will allow the province to expand the existing legal aid program.

BLACK: 2

White to play and mate in two moves. Solution below.

SHUNNE DEXCITEMENT

Sarajevo, which has the melancholy distinction of being the birthplace of the First World War, is known today as a chess centre. A major tournament was held there this past spring — and the most exciting game in it was probably this one between young Anton Gasic of Yugoslavia and Ernesto Tatai of Italy. (Gasic was particularly annoyed because the attention of spectators was distracted by a surprising loss by Grandmaster Laszlo Szabo. "Now," said Gasic, "Szabo's loss will get all the publicity, although my win against Tatai really deserved it!")

(b) Threatens 27 ... QxPch; 28. PxQ3ch, etc.

(c) How can Black stop the mating threat? The only solution is to sacrifice the Queen for the Rook.

(d) Has a Rook and Bishop for his Queen, but counts heavily on his passed Queen's pawn.

(e) Cannot stop K-R6, and P-B6 wins easily for White.

Drug Inquiry Called Off

MONTREAL (CP) — Sessions Judge Claude Wagner says he will not carry out a threatened personal inquiry into alleged drug trafficking by guards in Montreal jails because he is "satisfied with the measures taken."

Judge Wagner warned two weeks ago he would carry out the private investigation unless the justice department opened a full inquiry. The threat came after William Elford, a self-admitted cocaine addict pleaded with him not to be returned to prison where he said hard drugs were easier to get than on the street.

The government had said the allegations are being investigated.

Hadrian Casting In September

Casting for the production of Hadrian VII, scheduled for Christ Church Cathedral, February, 1973, will be held early in September.

Anyone interested in participating in any capacity, should notify Allan M. Purdy by phone, 477-1480.

The brilliant play concerns a man's consuning desire for priesthood, so strong that out of frustration he creates a startling fantasy.

Waste Disposal

DELTA (CP) Canopus Industries Ltd. has asked municipal council for a rezoning of 105 acres of farm land to light industrial use for a proposed $1.5 million industrial waste disposal and recycling plant. Council asked for more detailed specifications of the development. Canopus spokesman Dr. B. H. Levelton said the plant would be the only one of its specific type in North America. It would handle such wastes as oils, solvents, acids, heavy oils and tars.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 17-year-old youth who fouled Thetis Lake with coal tar June 12 pleaded guilty in provincial court Friday to violating the city's parks bylaw.

Richard Michael Alexander, of 2273 Bellamy, was remanded to Sept. 1 for sentence on that charge. He also was given a suspended sentence and placed on three months' probation on a charge of common assault against another 17-year-old boy at the park.

Hijacker Sentenced

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Convicted hijacker Robb D. Heady was sentenced Friday to 30 years in prison for the attempted air piracy of a United Air Lines 727 jetliner.

Heady, a Vietnam veteran, had pleaded guilty to boarding a United Air Lines jet at Reno International Airport on June 3 and demanding $200,000 in cash and parchutes. He jumped the plane about 10 miles south of Reno and was captured soon afterward. The money was recovered. Heady was armed with a hand gun during the hijacking and fired two shots. No one was injured.

Charges of breaking and entering with intent to steal and committing public mischief were withdrawn by the Crown.

David Willard Gavin, 29, of 1341 Craigflower, was fined $50 for assault by trespassing, after he refused to leave the Army, Navy and Air Force club premises Aug. 24.

★ ★ ★

Wayne James Nicholson, 20, of no fixed address, was setenced to one month in jail and had his parole revoked on a charge of stealing a wedding gift cake plate from a parked car.

The offence occurred June 13 on Burdett.

Nicholson was on parole from a 1971 sentence of nine months for possession of stolen property when the theft occurred.

★ ★ ★

John George Sinker was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months probation for possession of MDA.

★ ★ ★

In traffic court, Gordon Edward Chambers, 21, of HMCS McKenzie, was fined $350 and prohibited from driving for four months for driving while impaired Aug. 15 in Esquimalt.

Music in the Streets

Young musicians are filling Victoria streets with song and everybody approves. Whether it's an impromptu concert in Bastion Square or a lone guitarist on the street, tourists and locals, youngsters and pensioners, and even passing policemen, smile with approval and "drop a penny in the hat." Shirley Cox, Nathan Tinkham, David Cahill, Dale Brophy and Marjorie Cahill (upper left) have been playing in the streets throughout the summer and say as many as 500 passers-by a day hear their music. Smiling guitarists (left and right) identified themselves as just Children of God spreading their song.

Candidate Sees Break In Heroin-Crime Cycle

Progressive Conservative Oak Bay candidate, Dr. Scott Wallace said Friday part of the drug addiction problem could be alleviated by providing heroin to addicts under clinical supervision.

Addressing a meeting at the Windsor Park Pavilion, Wallace said such a partial solution would help the addict avoid resorting to crime to raise the $20 for a cap of heroin.

"When money is not available, the heroin addict resorts to crime and embarks on the heroin-crime-jail roundabout," he said.

"From listening to young addicts, I am told that if psychiatric and counselling help were available, he might find it possible to fight the mental anguish, since he has proved he can withstand the physical pain."

Wallace cautioned that treating addicts with heroin as is being done in England wouldn't "by any means" solve the whole problem.

He added that the present methadone treatment method appeared to be of little lasting value since the addict merely becomes dependent on methadone.

"But an addict is a medical problem not a criminal problem, so that putting young addicts in jail to be exposed to hardened criminals and sex perverts only further destroys the victim's personality and further reduces his chance of achieving rehabilitation."

He suggested a program of prevention through educating children from the very early age about the hazards of drug use.

A director of the Victoria Convention Centre Foundation, and Liberal candidate for Saanich and the Islands, Malcolm Anderson suggested today that such a centre be built with hotel room tax funds.

During a talk at the Town and Country shopping centre, Anderson urged the provincial government assign its portion of the five-per-cent room sales tax collected in the Victoria area for the "immediate construction" of a civic centre.

"We have had good co-operation with the city in regards to a site. We can get a low-cost loan from the federal government and the addition of this money from the province should let us get started," he said.

"No one has acknowledged that Elk-Beaver Lake Park has been increased by approximately 70 acres through the widening of the Patricia Bay Highway," said Social Credit candidate for Saanich and the Islands Foster Isherwood today.

During a talk at a coffee party, Isherwood said the provincial highways department bought all the farms along the edge of the old highway back to the park.

"And all these farm lands and open spaces have been added to the park. This is a most important acquisition and it was given for nothing, just turned over to the regional board at the cost of many thousands of dollars."

Saanich and the Islands Conservative candidate Hugh Curtis said Friday that some campaigners for opposing parties had been saying it would be a pity to lose a good mayor by electing him as MLA.

But he made it clear in his statement that he would not run again for mayor whether he is elected to the legislature Aug. 30 or not.

Curtis said he had made the decision that this would be his last term as mayor before he decided to run provincially.

"I believe that all levels of government benefit from changes of leadership. This is what the Conservatives are saying at a provincial level and I think the same holds true municipally."

Curtis has been mayor of Saanich for nine years.

Criticizing the Social Credit government for delaying completion of bridge construction at Port Renfrew, NDP candidate for Esquimalt, James Gorst said Thursday, the government had promised it be finished by May, 1972.

Addressing an all-candidates' meeting at Langford, Gorst said the Socreds purchased the wood pilings to support the bridge in the United States.

"This is no way to create employment in B.C. or to support our own forest industry," he said.

HELPERS CAUSE HEADACHE

Deputy returning officers and poll clerks for the Aug. 30 election are creating a headache for at least one returning officer.

Elmer McEwen, returning officer for Victoria complained today that advance polls had been heavier this year because many people working election day at the polls were voting during the past three days rather than picking up transfer certificates.

These certificates are available for poll staff to enable them to vote at the poll they are working in Wednesday, rather than missing an opportunity to vote at their home polling stations.

The advance poll, which began Thursday and ends tonight at 9 p.m. has been unusually heavy with 800 voters the first day and 650 Friday.

"Most of our polling staff are new this election," explained McEwen, "and aren't aware they are entitled to transfers."

Commenting on a report from West Vancouver that a number of voters in that riding had lost their chance to vote Thursday when an advance poll ran out of ballots and hour before closing, McEwan said, "locally this is impossible."

Liberal candidate Allan Williams charged Friday the situation is the result of delays in institutions of election machinery revisions."

But McEwen said that even if the advance polling authorities had run out of certificates which voters must obtain before they vote in an advance poll ensuring they don't vote again on election day, "the returning officer can use the ballot envelopes as affidavits."

None of the returning officers in the four local ridings reported running short of certificates or ballots Friday.

Police Shoot It Out At View Royal Home

By DAVID CLIMENHAGA and LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

No one was injured in a gunfight between police and a group of men early this morning in View Royal.

Six men were charged with armed robbery following the incident and appeared in Victoria provincial court this morning.

Colwood RCMP said six men, each carrying a rifle or shotgun, were spotted entering a house at 211 Helmcken Road by drug squad officers watching the house.

The policemen, two from the RCMP, two from Victoria and two from the Saanich police, heard three shotgun blasts go off inside the house, RCMP said.

Moments later six men left the house and were confronted by the six policemen. In the ensuing moments six shots were fired, four by the police and two by the gunmen.

No one was hit or injured in the shooting, police said.

Five men were arrested by the police, the sixth escaped and was apprehended near the scene by an unnamed citizen.

RCMP said the three occupants of the house, Peter Durkworth and Craig MacIntyre, both of 211 Helmcken, and Ken Robinson of Vancouver were robbed of $275.

The police declined to name the six drug officers involved.

In court one of the Victoria police testified that six men were seen running up the gravel driveway of the house wearing stocking masks and each carrying a rifle.

They smashed a window to gain entry to the house, he said.

When the six ran from the house and encountered the police they fired two shots at them. The police then returned the fire.

The charges read that the men robbed Robinson of the $275. Police testified that one of the gunmen held a gun to Robinson's head during the robbery.

The six robbers held the three men inside the house by firing shots in the house, court was told.

'A neighbor who stopped one of the gunman as he fled across his lawn, said he was awakened by the shots, saw a figure running on his property and convinced him to stop by telling him he had a gun. He kept him there until the police arrived.

The man said it was not the first time they'd had problems with shooting from the house below them.

"There's shooting going on there all the time," he said, "once my wife was hanging out the laundry and shot rang past her head."

He said he and other neighbors had complained to the police about the shooting on several occasions.

Other neighbors in the area reported hearing shots and shouting in the night but no one had seen the incident.

Four men—Kenneth Conarroe, 18, of 1848 Fairburn Drive, Ralph Brock Hare, 19, of no fixed address, Paul Warren Jarvis, 19, of 205 Island Highway, and Gary Dean Korble, 18, of no fixed address were remanded to Aug. 29 by Judge William Ostler for the Crown to prepare a case against bail.

Richard David Moyes, 19, of 2512 Douglas, chose trial by Magistrate without a jury and pleaded not guilty, he was remanded to Aug. 29 to set a trial date.

A sixth man, Donald Lira Wickham, 22, of 3202 Douglas, pleaded guilty to the armed robbery charge. He was remanded to Aug. 29 for sentencing or to have a pre-sentence report made if it is found he has a previous criminal record.

All six are charged with armed robbery.

SCALP WITH IMPUNITY

By DOUG MacRAE
Times Staff

Scalpers will be able to traffic with impunity in tickets for the Canada-Russian hockey game in Vancouver Sept. 8.

There is no law in British Columbia prohibiting sale of tickets for more than their box-office value.

One winner of a pair of tickets in the draw for the Vancouver game already has offered the ducats for sale in the classified sections of two Victoria newspapers, for "best offer." Ads offering tickets for the Vancouver game also have appeared in papers on the mainland.

The sales are perfectly legal in B.C., a spokesman for the attorney-general's department said Friday.

Not so in Manitoba. A 26-year-old man who tried to sell two tickets to the Winnipeg game was fined $100 under provincial legislation called the Amusement Act, which prohibits scalping.

Dennis Parr had offered the tickets for "best offer" in the personal column of the Winnipeg Free Press and accepted an offer of $50 by police.

Victoria police chief John Gregory said that in the absence of any provincial law governing scalping, his department could act only on receipt of a specific complaint.

Sidney Asked to Take Over Crowded Federal Wharf

Commercial fishermen are petitioning Sidney council to assume control of federal wharf facilities in Shoal Bay where overcrowding is resulting in an "impossible situation."

The many pleasure boats moored at the protected government wharf take up valuable space which should be reserved for commercial fishermen, says Willie Egeland, 2215 Amity.

An emergency meeting was held aboard a fishboat in Shoal Bay Friday morning and the resulting petition is being circulated among 50 owners of commercal fishing vessels.

"We pay 40 cents per foot to moor here," said Sheldon Mooney, 10462 Resthaven "but we would pay more if the supervision and control was better."

WINTER WORSE

The situation is much worse in winter when the local fishing fleet are all at home. Sometimes, fishboats "nest" four and five abreast while small pleasure craft have wharf space to themselves, charged Mooney.

"All we want is a safe place to tie up," said Bud Rooke, 2426 Lovell, who has fished out of Sidney for 25 years.

A fisherman's boat represents a large investment "tied up on two pieces of rope," said Rooke. "On stormy nights, you have to keep checking your boat because of the crowded moorage."

Several months ago the town of Sidney investigated chances of leasing Shoal Bay and Beacon Ave. wharf from the department of transport because public health authorities were concerned about crowded and unsanitary conditions.

NOT WILLING

Mayor Stan Dear explained this week that council had shelved the idea because of possible problems although the transport ministry was willing to come to some arrangement.

Local fishermen say that Sidney owes them some protection in return for the money they spend locally. Willie Egeland estimates he spends $8,000 annually in Sidney and has done for 25 years.

Earlier this month, council, fishermen and the transport department officials met to discuss unsatisfactory loading facilities and the federal wharf.

Mayor Dear said on Friday that the whole question of Sidney taking over the federal wharves has been "revived" and will come under council consideration.

Ask the Times

Q. You remarked about Canadian money across the line. Try cashing an old age pension anywhere outside of Canada. Our government prints on the back of the check, "not to be cashed outside of Canada." Why? — F.D.

A. If you inform the Health and Welfare department of your absence 30 days before you leave and provide a forwarding address they will send a special cheque negotiable outside Canada. Otherwise regular cheques, non-negotiable outside Canada, will be sent. The only reason given by the department for this is that it is an Ottawa ruling.

From Back of the Hall, a Single Boo

THIS WAS ALL CANdidates rally week at Campbell River, lively hub town of a high-stepping municipality, and we turned up early in anticipation of a hectic evening. Thunderous confrontations on the platform. Thrust and counter-thrust between candidates and hecklers.

Let me report that the facts were otherwise. I have never been to so mild and decorous a political clambake in my life.

At one point in the proceedings, these ears did catch a rather genteel "Boo!" from the back of the school auditorium. But the candidates went largely unchallenged and the questions put to them were not of a sort to raise a sweat.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, who quit smoking three long months ago, raised his voice above normal speaking level a time or two. Strongly-supported NDP candidate Mrs. Karen Sanford achieved a certain briskness when she criticized floor-of-the-house decorum. For the rest, the affair was well-nigh a love feast . . . kind of like Campbell River's annual salmon festival brought indoors and minus the salmon.

As ex-Victorians whose hearts occasionally yearn for the Capital, this calmness in the shadow of a provincial election strikes us strange. The grey heads that assembled in Cadboro Bay scout hall wouldn't let four candidates get off without a tousling, you bet!

But it was an interesting evening all the same. What made it so was the fact that grey heads were in the minority among an audience that left no seat of a roomy auditorium vacant, and lined three walls with its overflow.

All ages were represented, from babes in their mothers' arms to granddads. It was, in fact, a true community turnout of residents come to hear what their candidates might say.

I can only wish that those candidates had offered less duff and more relevant listening.

The new Courtenay-to-Campbell River expressway we so badly need remains pie in the sky. But just by the merest coincidence in this election season, the villainous old Island Highway is getting a few splats of fresh blacktop along these tortuous reaches. This cosmetic treatment subjects the hasting traveller to an occasional delay, and permits a more leisurely inspection of the vehicles that make up its traffic flow.

There are still plenty of recreation rigs heading north. But even with a bumper tourist summer still on the land, there are signs that a tide is turning. Each day now, we see more campers, trailers and travel vans posting south.

Because of those same swarming campers, trailers and vans, the holiday season runs longer than it did when the tent was king. Even so, tourist numbers decrease even before Labor Day weekend is past and the kids back in school.

The country is given back to the inhabitants. A resort operator, hellish busy for two months and more, may even get a chance to go fishing.

The rest of us are less directly affected, although we have our own comings and goings of welcome summer visitors. At our place, we now have a lineup of projects waiting for fall.

With one of these in mind, Win phoned the Busy B's Glass company of Campbell River today. She found herself listening to this recorded message heartily delivered:

"We are on holidays till Sept. 5. Sorry for any inconvenience. The competition will help you out till we re-open. Hope you will drop in to see us and say Hi. We specialize in glass insurance replacements for cars, trucks and houses . . . and God bless little boys with baseballs and slingshots!"

In the clear understanding that the Aug. 30 returns could make a monkey of me, here's how one ex-patriate Victorian picks 'em:

Victoria: Finally, a split. Anderson (L), Skillings (SC).

Esquimalt: Bruch (SC), worse luck!

Saanich: Hugh Curtis . . . Who else?

And when the voters of B.C. have had their day, these party standings: Social Credit, 29; New Democratic Party, 12; Progressive Conservatives, 10; Liberals, 4.

History's Most Lavish Olympiad Open

COMPETITION STARTS SUNDAY

MUNICH (CP) — Germany opened her first Olympic Summer Games in 36 years today with peacetime pomp and ceremony, guaranteeing a 16-day run that has been billed as the most lavish Olympiad in history.

Officials said they hoped the bitter in-fighting that resulted in Rhodesia being barred from the Games would be the last "political" decision taken here as they turned over the grandoise spectacle to the athletes— 10,000 of them from 123 countries.

A worldwide television audience had a bird's-eye view of the opening ceremony that began at 3 p.m. (10 a.m. EDT) in Olympic Stadium, where 80,000 were on hand—seated and standing.

Some 12,000 athletes and officials paraded in their team dress uniforms and a lithe West German middle-distance runner, blonde Guenther Zahn of Passau, lighted the Olympic flame.

Greece, where the Olympics were born, by tradition led the parade of athletes into the stadium and West Germany, as host, brought up the rear.

Between Greece and West Germany, the countries marched in alphabetical order, but the alphabet used was German. So Canada—Kanada marched with the Ks and Ethiopia — Aethopia — with the As. However, an exception was made for the United States, which is Vereinigte Staaten in German. The U.S. Athletes marched with the Us.

The Canadian team of 217 athletes and more than 40 officials was led by Doug Rogers of Vancouver, a heavyweight judo contender who won a silver medal in the 1964 Tokyo Games. It was the biggest Canadian gathering yet at an Olympics.

Canadians were on the scene to survey as well as contend for medals. They will stage the 1976 Summer Games in Montreal at a much lower cost than the $600-odd million the Germans spent to prove that the "Nazi Olympics" of 1936 run by Adolf Hitler can never happen again.

The Montreal organizers concede that their production will be more restrained. One Canadian official said: "We haven't anything to prove."

But after 1936, the Germans want to prove themselves to the world, he said, and "they have, too."

West German President Gustav Heinemann, official sponsor of the Games, entered the stadium on the signal of eight Alpine horns—curved wooden instruments about 20 feet long that emit a deep-throated tone. A 60-man military band played the German national anthem.

The teams followed to a combination of tunes from various countries played in march time.

With the huge array of athletes in place, more than 3,000 schoolchildren darted into the stadium with bouquets.

President Heinemann opened the Games, using the words of the Olympic constitution:

"I hereby declare the Olympic Games celebrating the 20th Olympiad in the modern era to be opened."

Eight gold medal winners—West German rowers who won in Mexico in 1968—hoisted the Olympic flag.

Another Olympic flag was transferred from Mexico City, site of the 1968 Games, to Munich, where it will stay in the city hall for the next four years until its shift to Montreal.

Then 5,000 Bavarian doves were released from the track and circled into the sky.

The most dramatic moment came when Zahn, an 18-year-old police cadet holding a torch lighted in Olympia, Greece, and accompanied by four other runners, circled the track. Then he mounted 162 steps up the stadium and over a ramp to the platform from which he touched off the flame that will burn through these Games.

Six mountain men from Berchesgaden using ancient blunderbusses fired three 20-gun salutes.

More than 5,700 relay runners had carried the flame 3,400 miles, from Mount Olympus to the heart of this Bavarian city of more than 1.3 million people. A cheering throng of 50,000 was on hand to welcome the torch as it was brought into Koenigsplatz —King's Square—Friday night by a white-clad runner.

As the Olympic flame rose, 22-year-old Heidi Schueller of West Germany mounted the podium and became the first woman to take the Olympic oath in Summer Games history.

The athletes departed ready to compete, starting Sunday.

Russia and the United States sent the largest teams to the Gamts, each numbering more than 400.

U.S. athletes topped the gold medals list with 45 in 1968 and Russia was second with 29. But here their production could be considerably less in the face of strong teams from both Germanys challenging in all events.

A record 195 championships will be decided in a record number of sports — 22. Despite complaints that the Olympics seem to be growing like Topsy, the International Olympic Committee has added two new sports to the program planned for Montreal, host to the 1976 Games. They are women's rowing and handball.

On Swimming and Fishing, Knuckleballs and Football

One week's work, or whatever became of Peter Tupling? Peter Who?

In the post this week was a copy of the British Open Golf Tournament program, and a note from a wandering offspring.

"I was walking over to the practice fairway, see, and I noticed this big crowd following me. It was just about then that Arnold Palmer gave me his autograph."

Peter Tupling? Oh, he was the first-round leader of the Muirfield Open. Remember?

UP WITH THE BOYS — Shane Gould, the Australian Super Miss, is the girl that every freestyle swimmer in the world will be shooting at in the Olympics, opening today, one after the other, as the distances vary, and it's just possible that she might lose one or two events. But don't put the family jewels up as security. Shane was considered so good by her coach in the pre-Olympic training program, that she was put on the men's team, for the competition. The forecast is that "she will swim tremendous times at Munich." Canada's top hopes in the water may be Donna Marie Gurr and Wendy Cook. They are one-two in the 1972 world rankings in the 100 metre backstroke. Which is fine, but there's trouble dead ahead. Their best marks of 1:06.4 and 1:06.9 were broken by two U.S. girls in the U.S. Olympic trials. Another medal possibility is Leslie Cliff in the butterfly or medley.

FISHING ANYONE? For the person who cared, yes there was a transposition in the Wednesday item here on Rivers Inlet. Three paragraphs got misplaced. Still, no fish! At least not in the category of a Seattle doctor. It was a few days ago, after we left dear old whale-town, that Dr. Tony Kahmann landed a 70 pounder. He was using a 15-pound test leader on 20 test line. Then there's the story that Art Abbott, formerly of Qualicum and way points, tells. He was out fishing by himself one day, hooked a whopper, which promptly sounded. Art tried his best to move the lunker, but every time he attempted to start the motor (there was no other way this tyee would budge) the fish would move, and Art would enjoin the battle. For two hours, the stalemate continued. Then a plane appeared overhead. It was Johnny Buck. He had been up to a nearby lake to collect some glacier ice for his Northwest Safaris camp. He spotted Art, recognized his problem, and landed his plane alongside Art's boat. Out hopped young Don Avis, a guide at Northwest. He worked the moror for Art, and soon the tyee was persuaded to move. Art and Don headed for shallower water, and finally took their prize. It weighed 55½ pounds, and promptly was encased in centuries-old refrigeration. Art wishes to be remembered to all his friends on the Island.

A TIP FROM THE TOP — Wilbur Wood, the knuckleball expert of the Chicago White Sox, who has been the surprise of the Majors this year, has the following five bits of advice for young pitchers: Lesson No. 1: "Don't try to throw the knuckle ball as an adult unless you threw it as a kid." Lesson No. 2: Don't try to be a part-time knuckler. No. 3: "Never let the ball spin." No. 4: "Throw every day." No. 5: "Don't panic if your knuckler isn't working today; it will come back tomorrow." Frank Robinson, now back in the National League, and a most valuable player in both the American and National, says the National League is the stronger of the two, but that the Baltimore teams he played on for the past six years is as good as any team, and maybe the best team in baseball, over that period.

HELP WANTED — The Vancouver Island Bantam Football League has jumped to six teams this year, and picked up a problem doing it. There aren't enough players to stock the new JBAA entry, and more are needed in the 14-16 age group. Quick. Contacts are JBAA coach Adam Ustick, and league PR man Ted L'Heureux . . . and when Lenny Wilkens got his trade notice from the Seattle SuperSonics (he's gone to Cleveland), the Sonics did it up well. The phone rang one morning at the Wilkens residence, and the voice said: "Is Lenny in?" His wife answered "No, he's golfing; is there any message?" The voice replied: "Yes, tell him he's traded." Oh boy, what a way to go for a guy who lifted the Sonics into national prominence, and was one black coach who had succeeded, even though he gave up the coaching job this spring. It was more like: "Get lost."

Olympic Flame Is Lighted in Munich

Million Visitors Expected; Most Events Are Sold Out

MUNICH (CP-AP) — A million visitors are expected to pass through the expansive Olympic Games site during the 15 days of competition starting Sunday. Tickets are sold out for most events.

In what amounts to a major military manoeuvre, some 25,000 members of the West German armed forces are helping run the mammoth operation.

Willie Daume, President of the West German Olympic Organizing Committee, says without the help of the nearly two divisions of troops it would be impossible to put on the games.

Soldiers are working as everything from drivers to medical orderlies, house boys, musicians, plumbers, printers, communication experts and interpreters.

The army has set up 29 kitchens staffed by 1,493 men capable of feeding 40,000 persons.

BEDS SUPPLIED

The military also has supplied some 46,000 beds for athletes and journalists.

The troops have built 12 bridges, 12 large parking lots and 43 guest houses at the youth centre.

The soldiers, many of whom wear their hair nearly shoulder length in the style of the modern German army, are under orders to be on their best behavior.

As for the troops themselves, there are complaints about long hours, high prices in Munich and the loss of their normally free weekends.

A substantial number of the city's 1.3 million residents believe the Games have done little more for them than raise the high cost of living.

The Olympic budget has soared to 1,972 billion marks or the equivalent of $612 million—triple the original estimate, and four times higher than the costs of the 1968 Games at Mexico City.

PRICES GO UP

Munich newspapers and civic groups have started campaigns against "Olympic profiteers." Their targets are hotels and restaurants that have raised prices for the Games.

An economics student said he believes food and rent prices will remain at higher levels after the Games are over.

"Munich is an expensive town, maybe as expensive as some in America," he said. "I'd estimate a single person needs around $400 a month to live here. That's without a car, of course."

A housewife said she had noticed price increases in downtown stores and she attributed this to Olympic profiteering.

A waiter in a downtown restaurant said he was shocked by prices charged by restaurants in the Olympic Park.

Can Macs Trip Roadrunners?

On the mainland, it's said the Richmond Roadrunners are the best thing that's happened to junior lacrosse in a decade.

Coach Ron Phillips turned a last-place club into the first western team to win the Minto Cup in eight years.

Richmond's game is running, and the excitement they generate on the floor has made the Roadrunners the biggest attraction in the league.

Just how much of a threat Victoria poses may be determined tonight at Memorial Arena, starting at 8, as McDonalds and Richmond square off in the second game of the best-of-seven Pacific Junior A League final.

Victoria coach Bill Munroe promises a different story tonight and points out that Richmond scored just four goals in the final two periods Wednesday after racing into a 9-3 first period lead over the travel-weary Macs.

John Hamilton, voted the best goalkeeper in the league this season, is the key to Victoria's chances.

"Hamilton is a great goalkeeper," says Phillips "We have to get to him before he gets to us."

In Bob and Brian Tasker, Dave Durante and Jerry Pinder, Richmond has four of the top junior players in Canada and Hamilton should have lots of work.

Vikings Lose Second Game

BRISBANE — University of Victoria Vikings lost their second game on a three-game Australian rugby tour here Thursday when the University of Queensland defeated the Canadian visitors 20-7.

Earlier in the tour, UVic downed University of Sydney 10-6 and lost 10-9 to the University of New South Wales.

Futility No Reason To Give Up On Ken

By The Associated Press

Southpaw Ken Reynolds of Philadelphia Phillies has lost 12 straight baseball games, but, says manager Paul Owens, "I don't want to give up on him."

Reynolds dropped a 6-1 decision to Cincinnati Reds Friday night to tie a team record for futility.

The left-hander, who hasn't won since last season, duplicated Russ Miller's mark of 1928 and continued to flirt with the National League and major league records.

The National League record for consecutive losses is 18, shared by Clifton Curtis of the 1910 Boston Braves and Roger Craig of the 1963 New York Mets. John Nabors set the major league record of 19 with Philadelphia Athletics in 1916.

"I hope that Reynolds doesn't want to give up on himself," said Owens. "With a little luck, and if we'd score some runs for him, he could easily be pitching .500 ball instead of being 0-12."

REDS STRENGTHEN LEAD

With their win, the Reds improved on their strong first-place margin in the National League West as the second-place Houston Astros lost to Montreal Expos 4-3 and fell nine games behind.

Elsewhere, the Pittsburgh Pirates split a doubleheader with Los Angeles Dodgers, winning the first 3-2 in 12 innings and losing the second 4-3. The Pirates boosted their front-running margin in the East to 12 games as second-place New York Mets dropped a 2-1 decision to Atlanta Braves.

San Francisco Giants whipped Chicago Cubs 11-2 and St. Louis Cardinals split a pair with San Diego Padres, winning the first game 7-4 and losing the second 8-7.

AN INTERRUPTION

Mother Nature stepped into baseball's frantic American League division races Friday night and Oakland Athletics only wished it had rained in California the way it did in Minnesota and Milwaukee.

The slender leads enjoyed by Detroit Tigers in the East and Chicago White Sox in the West took a dousing of rain with the Tigers washed out at Minnesota and the White Sox at Milwaukee. As a result, one margin shrank and the other grew.

It was dry on the West Coast where the second-place clubs, Baltimore Orioles and Oakland clashed. And the defending champion Orioles used some ninth-inning lightning to rally for three runs and a 5-3 victory.

OAKLAND SLIPS

The comeback triumph, built around a clutch pinch single by journeyman Tommy Davis, boosted Baltimore into a tie with Detroit at the top of the East Division. The Athletics, meanwhile, slipped one full game back of Chicago in the West.

Elsewhere in the AL Friday night, New York Yankees, third in the East, remained 2½ games off the pace by splitting a double-header with Kansas City Royals. The Yanks won the first 4-1 and dropped the second 5-1. Fourth-place Boston Red Sox moved within three games of the top with a 4-0 decision over Texas Rangers and Cleveland Indians edged California Angels 2-1 in 11 innings.

ASTROS FIRE WALKER

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astro's general manager Spec Richardson announced today that manager Harry Walker had been fired and Leo Durocher, former manager of Chicago Cubs, had been hired to manage the Astros.

Richardson said Durocher will be in Houston Sunday to assume control of the National League baseball team.

He said the decision was reached late Friday night following Houston's 4-3 loss to Montreal, Espos.

Durocher, who was replaced at Chicago last month, was the only other manager he talked to about the Astro position, Richardson said

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

Putter Helps Bob To Locate Birdies

MONTREAL — Bob Beauchemin finally began to bag birdies, and the 17-year-old Victoria southpaw just hoped it wasn't too late.

He recorded four birdies Friday en route to a one-under-par 71 to charge into contention in the 72-hole Canadian junior golf championship.

Beauchemin's field-topping round left him with a three-round total of 222, four strokes off the pace set by Winnipeg's Kevin Snell. Beauchemin fired rounds 76 and 75 — without the benefit of a birdie — the first two days.

The 18-year-old Snell managed a 75, his worst round in three days, but still took a two-stroke lead over highly-regarded Robby Jackson of Montreal. Snell's 54-hole total was 218 while Jackson, who blew to a 77 Friday, has 220.

MacMILLAN BLOWS

Gerry MacMillan of Kingston, N.S., also blew to a 78 and, along with Mike Mealia of Thornhill, Ont., joined Jackson in the second-place, 220 group.

Beauchemin, the Victoria City junior champion, recorded his first birdie on the 40th hole — the fourth on Friday. He also went under par on the ninth, 10th and 14th holes but took bogeys on the sixth, eighth and 13th.

Out in 35 and back with a 34, Beauchemin was bolstered by an improved putting performance. He took only 31 putts Friday to become the leading B.C. player.

MacMillan ran into disaster on the 18th hole in scoring his 78. He was 60 yards from the closing, 483-yard, par-five hole but needed three chip shots and two putts before finally getting down.

TOM WILKINSON

Wilkie Calls 'Good Plays' As Eskimos Maul 'Cousins'

Eskimos, after their easy 29-7 romp over the Lions before a record home crowd of 22,641 Friday night, now are alone at the top of the conference standings with wins in all their four outings. Half of those triumphs have been in Edmonton at the expense of the last-place Lions.

BEST PERFORMANCE

"It was the best all-round performance we've had," Jauch commented after the mauling of the Lions. He was particularly pleased with Tom Wilkinson, the stubby ex-Lion who has taken over as starting quarterback now that Bruce Lemmerman is out for two months with a shoulder separation.

"Wilkie called all the good plays," Jauch said. "We made some suggestions to him, but all the good plays were his."

Wilkinson got off to a rather shaky start before settling down to confound B.C. with an adroit mixture of running and passing plays. On his third play from scrimmage, he went back to pass, fell and lost nine yards. On the first play after getting the ball back, a handoff went astray and he scrambled on the turf to recover the fumble.

"I was goofing up out there," he said later in the dressing room, "but the defence was doing a hell of a good job. Then I started to get a few plays going."

AVOIDS INTERCEPTIONS

One thing he tried to avoid was interceptions, and he did. He didn't want his former team-mates to get "excited."

In the B.C. dressing room, coach Eagle Keys was bitterly disappointed with his team's performance. The linebackers weren't plugging the holes. "I can't believe it," he muttered.

Besides suffering their fourth loss in five games, Lions lost the services of punt-return man Mike Wilson, who went off after the first quarter with a dislocated shoulder. Eskimos escaped injuries.

Lions were never in contention. They couldn't get any sustained drive going. When they did get the ball, the front wall protection for sophomore quarterback Don Moorhead broke down and he spent a good deal of time trying to evade Edmonton pass rushers in his own backfield.

Wilkinson passed for touchdowns to end Tyrone Walls, a first-year man from University of Missouri, and veteran Canadian flanker Bobby Taylor. Backup quarter Dave Syme, a rookie from Simon Fraser University, passed to high-scoring Kansas end George McGowan for Edmonton's third TD.

Dave Cutler converted all three, kicked two field goals from 45 and 13 yards, and two singles on wide field goal attempts.

Less than two minutes remained when Lions escaped a whitewashing, second-string quarterback Don Bunce firing deep to Larry Highbaugh for a 54-yard pass-and-run touchdown, converted by Ted Gerela.

Eskimos had 27 first downs to B.C.'s nine. They outrushed Lions 222 yards to 94, bruising halfback Gene Foster gaining 119 yards on 18 carries. His backfield partner, fullback Sam Scarber, plunged for 75 yards on 13 carries. Jim Evenson led B.C. with 52 yards in carrying the ball 11 times.

Through the air, Eskimos had an edge of 212 yards to 178. Wilkinson got 170 in completing 13 of 21 passes while Syme clicked on both of his two for 42 yards.

Moorhead, bothered by a swollen finger on his throwing hand, completed eight of 23 passes for 111 yards and Bunce collected 67 yards by making good on half of his four passes.

Highbaugh led the receivers with 95 yards on four catches, followed by McGowan with 88 yards on three receptions.

HUNTERS' CAPTURE TITLE

PORT COQUITLAM — Mike Wilson scored four goals here Friday night as Saanich E. J. Hunter defeated East Vancouver Bluejays 17-8 to win the British Columbia junior B lacrosse title.

Hunters swept the best-of-three final in straight games.

It's the second successive year that a South Island team has won the provincial crown. Victoria McDonalds, currently in the B.C. junior A final, captured the B.C. and Canadian "B" championships last year.

Saanich advances to the Canadian playoff next month in eastern Canada.

At Port Coquitlam, Hunters scored seven times in the second period to vault into a 12-7 lead and breezed through the final session.

Dolphins Face Bombers

Victoria Dolphins will open the home-field portion of their Junior Big Four Football League schedule at 6:30 Sunday night when they tackle Vancouver Blue Bombers at Royal Athletic Park.

Both clubs have chalked up one victory in two starts and are deadlocked in second place, two points back of the undefeated Vancouver Meralomas.

Dolphins blasted the Bombers 40-7 in an exhibition contest last month, but Victoria coach Frank Hindle has warned his charges that the Bombers have developed into a much stronger squad.

"They've improved tremendously since then, and beating North Shore last week has to give them a real lift," says Hindle. Bombers edged the Cougars 13-12 last week for their first league victory in a year.

Hindle has been pleased with the balanced attack that has been engineered by quarterback Greg Gardner during three pre-season and two league games.

Backs Sean Flynn, Gordie Mitchell and Leon Mitchell have provided much of the Dolphins' running game.

Brian Utley, who has left for the University of Hawaii and Gary Leitch, off to Simon Fraser University, are two Dolphin regulars who will be playing their football elsewhere the rest of the season.

Tennis Site Set

NEW YORK (AP) — An agreement has been reached between the United States Lawn Tennis Association and the Romanian Tennis Federation whereby the Davis Cup final between the two countries will be played in Bucharest Oct. 13, 14, 15, Robert S. Malaga, executive director of the U.S.-LTA, announced.

Wendy Takes Open Crown

GOOD NEWS for Victoria owner Tom Druce (above) came Friday when his four-year-old Shadow's Dividend was drawn in to start from the No. 9 position in $35,000 Longacres Mile at Seattle. Assigned 112 pounds, Shadow's Dividend will be ridden by Jim Arnold in Sunday's race.

VANCOUVER — Wendy Barlow captured a national title here Friday and another Victorian still has a shot at two crowns today in the Canadian open junior tennis championships at the Burnaby Tennis Club.

Miss Barlow, who won the Canadian closed championship last week and has been playing competitive tennis for only two years, took little time in taking the girls' 12-and-under crown as she took a straight-set victory, 6-1, 6-4 over Susan Matthews of West Vancouver.

Brenda Cameron, Victoria's other title hopeful, reached the finals in the girls' 14-and-under singles and doubles.

However, Miss Cameron was beaten in the 16-and-under singles and clubmate Glen Bradshaw was eliminated from the under-16 boys' singles race.

Miss Cameron bounced back to score a 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Lise Senn of Toronto in the 14-and-under semis and meets Sandra Tsumas of San Diego in today's final. Miss Tsumas beat Brenda, 6-2, 6-0, in the 16-and-under semi-final.

Miss Cameron and Sue Smith of Vancouver combined to beat Julia Kentish and Pat Sinclair, 6-4, 7-6, in the doubles semi-final and meet Miss Senn and Lee Myers of Toronto in the final.

Bradshaw dropped a 6-1, 6-4 semi-final decision to Kevin Cook of Midland Mich.

In reaching the finals of two events, the 13-year-old Sandra Tsumas duplicted the feat of her 14-year-old sister, Tina.

Tina, a 14-year-old who is ranked 12th in the U.S., barged her way into two finals with convincing semi-final victories in the 16-and-under and 18-and-under competition.

Thus, it will be a family affair in the 16-year-old final. While Sandra toppled Miss Cameron, Tina was taking a 5-7, 6-4 victory from Ottawa's Marjorie Blackwood.

Tina will meet Kathy Morton of Galt, Ont., in the 18-and-under final. She drubbed second-seeded Janet Hall of Vancouver 6-2, 6-2. Miss Morton eased by Toronto's Adrienne Straub — last year's champion — 6-2, 6-0, to enter the final.

In boys' 14-and-under play, Garth Naumoff of Toronto grabbed the championship with a convincing 6-2, 6-4 victory over Owen Pellew.

In doubles play, Steve Whitehead of St. Catharines and Mark Berner of San Diego are scheduled to meet Vancouver's Kostie Killas and Peter Vick in the boys' 18-and-under final.

Kim Tindle and Janet Hall teamed up to enter into the finals of the girls' 18-and-under competition with a convincing victory over Miss Blackwood and Leslie Harris of Montreal. They will meet Miss Mirton and Miss Straub in the finals scheduled for today.

In boys' 18-and-under singles, the top-seeded foreign player, Rob Casey of Perth, Australia, and the second-seed, Mike Caarnicki of Midland, Mich., are scheduled to meet in the finals.

Casey advanced with a matter-of-fact 6-1, 6-3 victory over Toronto's Mike McLoughlin while Czarnicki came from behind to defeat Ernie Ewart of Melbourne, Australia, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Playoff Loser Becomes Leader

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Deane Beman doesn't intend to give any ground to Jack Nicklaus going into today's first round of the rich U.S. professional match play golf championship.

"Anybody would be a damn fool if they said they'd be happy to play him head-to-head for a living," Beman said.

"But when I turned pro five years ago, I didn't come out here to back off from anybody."

The others have Miller Barber vs. Lanny Wadkins, Arnold Palmer vs. Don Bies, Jerry Heard vs. Len Thompson, Frank Beard vs. Paul Moran, George Archer vs. Babe Hiskey and Dave Stockton vs. Bob Barbarossa.

Jerry McGee, meanwhile, held a one-stroke lead going into the third round of the $100,000 Liggett and Myers Open, being played simultaneously on the 6,988-yard, par-72 Country Club of North Carolina course.

He had a 36-hole total of 140, four under par, after a second round 69. One-stroke back, at 141 were Dan Sikes, Ken Still, Dave Eichelberger, Dick Lotz, Jim Wiechers and John Schroeder.

Two Canadians qualified for the last 36 holes of the L and M tournament and two missed the cut. Qualifiers were Ken Fulton of Montreal, who shot a 71 Friday for a 143 total, and George Knudson of Toronto, who had a 73 round for 146.

Today's format call for the first round of the match play, which carries a total purse of $150,000 with $40,000 to the winner, to be played first. It will be followed by the third round of the L and M event, and that will be followed by the second round of the match play.

EIGHT EXEMPT

Eight players—Nicklaus, Palmer, Trevino, Barber, Archer, Heard, Beard and Weaver—were exempt from qualifying for the match play. The others got into the 16-man bracket off their play in the first two rounds of the L and M.

Barbarossa had a second round 70 for a 136 total.

Behman, at 137, Wadkins, 138 and Stockton, Hiskey and Thompson, tied at 139, followed. All moved into the match play bracket. That left two spots open, with Moran, Bies and McGee tied at 140.

They went to a sudden death playoff after Friday's round had been completed. Bies got in with a 15-foot birdie putt on the second extra hole and McGee bogeyed the fourth playoff hole to let Moran in.

By losing, McGee stayed in the L and M event.

Vets Share Denver Lead

DENVER (AP) — Veterans Sandra Haynie and Marlene Hagge each carded two-under-par 69s Friday to lead a field of 64 pros and four amateurs after the first round of a $25,000 Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament.

Young Lions Win

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's youthful Lions chased Washington's "over-the-hill gang" almost out of Tiger Stadium with a 20-point outburst in the second quarter Friday night and took a 23-10 National Football League exhibition victory before 52,647 fans and a national television audience.

Regal Pilot Hoping Preece Can Produce

Regals, who haven't scored in their last two games and won in seven, meet Vancouver Eintracht tonight at 7 in a Premier Soccer League game at Royal Athletic Park.

"I hope he can instill some life in there," said Hughes on Preece's proposed switch. Preece, who recently came here from England, joined the Regals about six weeks ago.

Victoria can move into fourth-place tie with Eintracht with a victory. Croatia meets Richmond and Spartans take on league-leading Columbus in other PSL games this weekend.

Sydney Tops Girls; Ross Leads Seniors

An 82 earned Sue Metcalfe of Gorge Vale the low net title by one stroke over Mary McKinnon of Uplands.

ROSS WINS

Also on the Victoria golf scene Thursday, two Royal Colwood contestants collected top honors in a Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association tournament at the Gorge Vale course.

Don Ross earned low-gross laurels on a countback after finishing in a three-way deadlock at 79 with Eric Wright of Gorge and Doug Peden of Uplands.

Bill Davidson turned in a low-net tally of 64 on the par-72 layout to capture the handicap award.

Also receiving prizes as leaders of divisions were Nanaimo clubmates Alan Fields and Norm Taylor, Mount Brenton's John Gourlay, Ray Parsons of Victoria, Don Sutherland of Glen Meadows and Peden.

Visitors Defeated

Victoria scored 87 for the loss of only two wickets and the Californians were all out for 86. Dave Shaw of Castaways with 59 runs not out, was Victoria's leading batsmen.

Cartwright Richards of Oak Bay retired three batsmen for 11 runs and Albions' Alec Porter got the same number at a cost of 17 runs.

Bell's 'Zero In' On Softball Title

It's tough to win games when you can't score any runs, and for the third straight game Century Inn have been blanked by Bell's Men's Wear pitching.

Which is another way of saying Bell's are just one game away from the Stuffy McGinnis Major Men's League crown after Brian Pearce blanked the Innkeepers 6-0 on a two-hitter Friday night to give Bell's a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven final.

Pearce slammed a two-run homer in the first inning to provide the margin of victory. He finished with 10 strikeouts and allowed just four base runners.

400-Acre Cordova Bay Tract for Sale

One of the largest developer-owned tracts of acreage on Saanich Peninsula is for sale, nine years after it was first touted as a site of a $22 million housing and recreation project.

Some 400 acres including the former Turner and Mattick farms at Cordova Bay are held by a subsidiary of the internatonal engineering, transportation and development firm, Dillingham Corp. through its Canadian subsikiary Dillingham Corp. Canada Ltd., of Vancouver.

Vice-president and general manager R. J. Myers said there is nothing active in the way of negotiation. "Some people are looking at it, but that's all," he said.

An option had been taken on the property overlooking Sayward Beach by a large B.C. real estate firm, but this has been allowed to lapse, Myers said.

Te project, compared to the British Properties development in West Vancouver, was planned originally by San Juan Development Co., a subsidiary of Marwell Construction Co. Ltd.

There was to be an 18-hole golf course and yacht club integrated with the housing, which was to be of superior quality, with construction beginning early in 1964.

No work was commenced even though Saanich council in July 1964 gave its approval to the undertaking, conditional on normal cost-sharing of services built in stages.

Saanich planner Tom Loney said as far as the municipality is concerned, "unless someone comes up with a pretty new slant on it, we'd just as soon it stayed that way."

He said the development proposal is seven to 15 years premature in terms of installation of services and population growth northward from Gordon Head and Swan Lake areas of Saanich.

The initial council endorsement came before Saanich adopted a sewer enterprise program which has been pressed over the past four years.

The sewer enterprise due for completition before the end of next year — probably by mid-1973 — will enable previously undeveloped residential lots in suburban Saanich to be filled in with single family and a variety of multiple housing units for many years to come. The municipality is committed to development within the enterprise as a first priority.

Saanich council is not expected to make major exceptions to this policy, although one notable addition likely to take place next year is the inclusion of Broadmead Farms 700-acre subdivision at Royal Oak, where the developer is installing sewers in expectation of a new municipal trunk connection to the south.

Another factor is that zoning at present in the Dillingham acreage limits subdivision to five-acre parcels, but this may be an unrealistic limitation for property within the eight-mile circle from downtown Victoria.

It is understood one firm showing an interest in the property offered to give Saanich $2.5 million to pay for trunk sewer and water extension if the municipality permitted the expansion. The offer was declined.

INSULTS URGED FOR BALLOTS

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of the Confederation of National Trade Unions will be encouraged to spoil their ballots in the next federal election by scribbling an "insult" to Prime Minister Trudeau, a union executive said Friday.

Fernand Foisey, secretary of the Montreal central council of the CNTU, said at a news conference people in the labor movement will be asked to use phrases such as fuddle-duddle.

Mr. Foisey said the scribbling of insults on ballots will be all the CNTU, which has about 200,000 members, plans to do in the next election "because we have already decided not to concern ourselves with the federal structures anymore."

B.C. Farm Acreage Increases

The acreage devoted to farming is increasing in B.C. while decreasing for Canada as a whole, according to Statistics Canada.

Figures for the whole of Canada show that the trend is toward larger farms — of the 366,128 tabulated, 17 per cent covered 760 acres or more, compared to 13 per cent in 1966 and 11 per cent in 1961. Total farm acreage was 174 million in 1971, 170 million in 1966.

Sure, they gave us our money's worth for a while...but now we're getting short changed. Something's happened. Something serious. Problems on all levels are being overlooked and British Columbians are worried.

Arrogance can't solve our problems. It can't provide employment. It can't prevent strikes. It can't put an end to pollution. It won't stop the rising cost of living or spiralling taxes. It's time to get the "good life" going for everyone.

Irish Head for Canada to Avoid Strife

BELFAST Reuter) — The killing and violence in Northern Ireland is resulting in more emigration than at any time since the Great Potato Famine of the 1840s.

The sound of gunfire in the streets, bombings and murders are driving young families away in droves, mostly to Canada and Australia. More than a century ago, they headed to the United States to escape starvation.

Walter Jennings, the immigration attache of the Canadian high commission, said 330 persons applied to his office to emigrate to Canada in July. And he believes the figure for August could be much higher.

Jennings said the people applying to emigrate are highly qualified.

"These are the kind of people Northern Ireland cannot afford to lose. Not only the quality, but the number of applicants continues to increase.

"Last year 1,412 people applied during the first seven months of the year. Up to the end of July the figure this year is 2,822, almost double. It's Canada's gain and Northern Ireland's loss, I'm afraid."

Northern Ireland's chronic unemployment situation has always led to a high rate of emigration. But three years of sectarian strife has sent the figures sky-rocketing.

Neither the Canadian nor the Australian high commissions breaks the applications down into religious categories. But a travel agency manager said that Protestants tend to go to Canada because so many of them were already there and Roman Catholics tend to choose either Australia or New Zealand.

Last year 8,452 citizens of Ulster filled out forms to go to Australia. This was three times the number in 1967, the last year of real peace in the North. Aleady in the first six months of this year there have been nearly 4,000, or 1,000 more than in the first half of last year.

Jennings says the emigration graph seems to be particularly sensitive to large bomb blasts which cause death and injuries to women and children.

John MacAuley, who leaves Belfast for Sydney soon with his wife and two young children, said:

"We thought about it for two months before we definitely made up our minds. A bomb that injured a friend of my wife was what finally swung the scales in favor of Australia.

"We decided that no matter what political solution was reached eventually, our children would still grow up in an atmosphere of fear, hate and bigotry.

Bombing, Riots Raise Death Toll in Ulster

BELFAST (AP) — A bomb planted in an abandoned car killed two militiamen, two men were found dead, and three persons were shot and wounded in a riot against British troops today, authorities reported.

The deaths brought to 535 the number of persons killed in three years of violence in Northern Ireland. More than 320 of the killings were logged this year alone.

The two militiamen, members of the volunteer Ulster Defence Regiment, were part of a four-man patrol investigating the car when it blew up near Enniskillen, 65 miles southwest of Belfast. A second explosion in the Enniskillen area slightly wounded 13 soldiers and wrecked an army truck.

The bullet-riddled body of the man was found in the Roman Catholic Old Park section of Belfast. Later the body of another man, dead from multiple bullet wounds, was found in an area between the Protestant Shankill Road area and the Catholic Crumlin Road district.

Rioting broke out in the small town of Portadown in County Armagh and one rioter was shot and slightly wounded by members of a four-man army patrol.

Two youths were also wounded in the melee, both seriously, but the army said its men did not shoot them. Police believed they were cut down by someone in a passing car.

An army spokesman said the patrol was investigating shots that they heard when a mob of Catholics started tossing bottles and bricks. The soldiers warned them to disperse and then fired two warning shots over their heads.

Most of the crowd then left, but four men kept on throwing missiles and the soldiers shot one of them in the leg.

The spokesman said: "It was a very ugly situation. Our men were greatly outnumbered and I think they feared for their lives. They were very badly bruised and battered by the onslaught."

Spassky Hopes Dim

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — To retain his world chess championship, Russia's Boris Spassky will have to beat Bobby Fischer in at least four of their last six games and draw a fifth.

Fischer and Spassky play their 19th game Sunday in the 24-game match and the American challenger is leading 10½ to 7½.

To become the new champion and end Russia's 24-year hold on the title, Fischer needs only to collect two more points.

The Russian and the American drew Friday and in the preceding four games, Fischer could coast into the title.

Spassky has beaten Fischer only twice in the first 18 games.

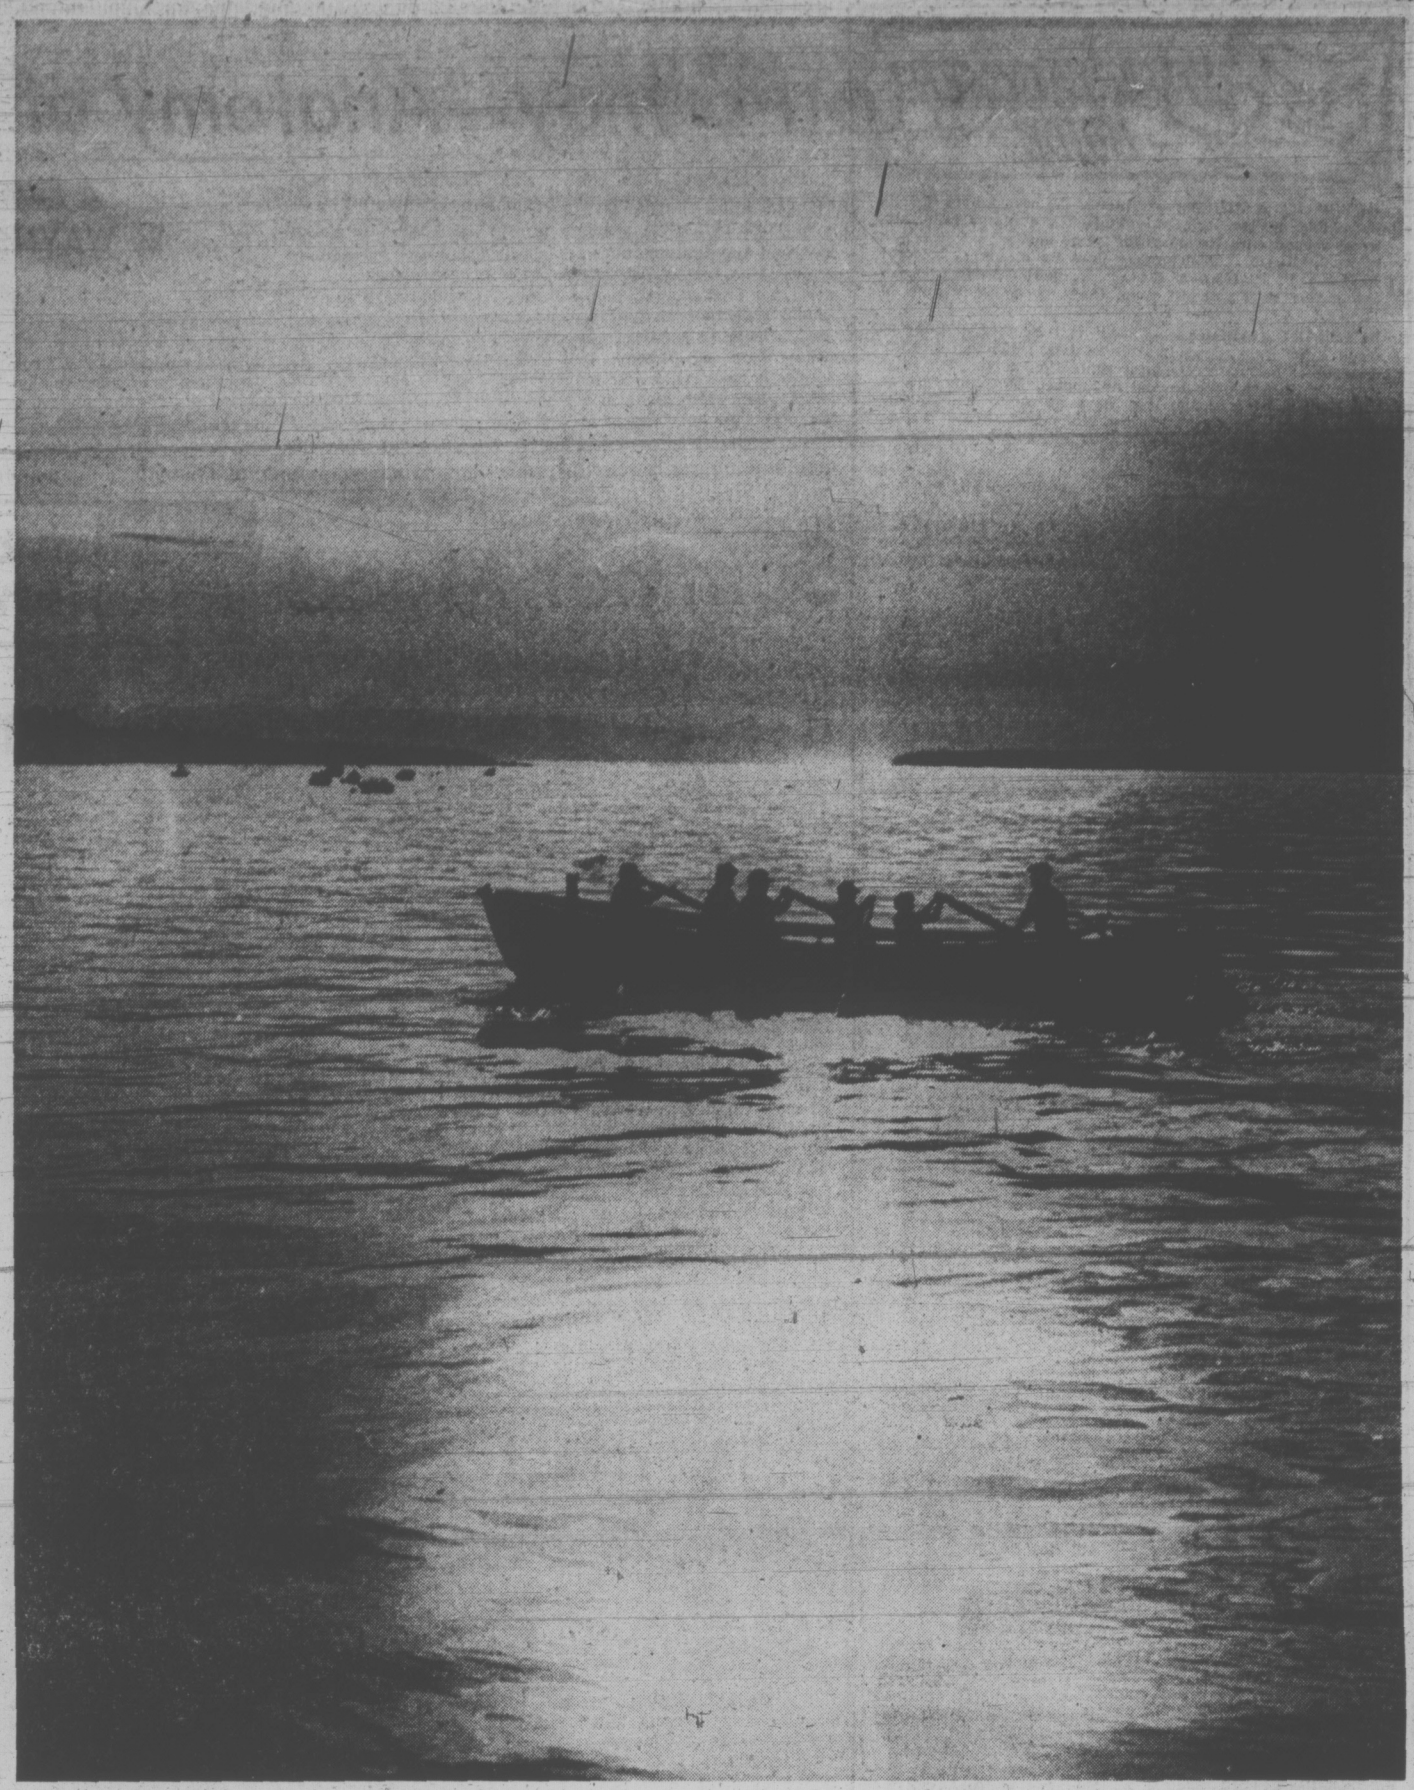
Major G. C. Colwill, of Chilliwack, commander of training flotilla Group North, six days out from HMCS Quadra on sea exercises, scans position from bow of HMCS Grizzly. (National Defence Photos.)



New Cadet Program Puts Citizenship Training First

By PAT MURPHY

While scores of yachts and motor cruisers stood off, three training ships manned by 15 to 17-year-old sea cadets moved in on a furiously-flaming 62-foot, $100,000 pleasure cruiser in Tendos Bay late last month and doused the fire.

The cruisers kept away because the owner of the doomed vessel, who escaped in a skiff, warned that there was a very real danger of an explosion from two high-pressure propane tanks.

The sea cadets moved in because they and their officers felt it was part of the job they were doing in accepting responsibility for search and rescue duties in a 3,000-square-mile reach in the Cape Mudge-Desolation Sound-Bute Inlet area north of Campbell River in the inland waters.

When the 20-foot flames began to subside Cadet Chris Martin, of Nanaimo, went aboard the still-burning hulk and hack-sawed through the anchor chain. It took 20 minutes.

The three cadet ships, Grizzly, Cougar and Wolf, converted 80-foot harbor tenders, then nudged the Adventurer, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Eric Lange, of Bellingham, 200 yards in to the beach where it smouldered.

Cougar was commanded by Rev. Trevor Williams, pastor of St. Martin's in the Field, Victoria, a former skipper of Anglican Church mission ships which plied the inland waters, and Wolf's commander was Kenneth Neilson, 1335 Richardson, Victoria. Flagship of the flotilla was captained by Major G. C. Colwill, of Chilliwack.

There were 21 such incidents in July, most of them less dramatic than the fire at sea but all of them, towings and the provision of first aid, engineering help and anchorage and passage information, provided practical experience for cadets of search and rescue at sea.

"Such experience is far greater value than any contrived drills we might lay on," says Major Frank Greenwood, commander of sea operations at Quadra.

All of the 1,260-odd sea cadets who attend camps this year at HMCS Esquimalt, commanded by Major F. W. Conconi, who is also commander of the Victoria Sea Cadet Corps, RCSCC Rainbow and HMCS Quadra, commanded by Commander Stewart Alsgard, of Powell River, spend some time at sea during July and August.

Younger cadets, 13 to 15 years of age, who come in the hundreds for two-week courses, get overnight sea trips and outings in sailing cutters, whalers and dinghies. More senior cadets, most of them in camp for the whole summer, receive intensive training in navigation and seamanship during 10-day trips at sea.

The Sea Cadet movement, which began after the First World War and still has its roots in the navy, follows the marine tradition.

Sea-going terminology prevails.

You still "go ashore" from a land-based camp, live in cabins, sleep in bunks which are above or below decks and eat in the galley or wardroom even if you are a thousand miles from salt water.

Things have to be "pusser" and while tri-service rank designation seems to prevail in the lieutenant to major range, above and below these brackets, navy cognomens are in order. A sergeant is still a petty-officer and a lieutenant-colonel a commander.

But the old order is changing.

Young men in tailored green tri-service uniforms have been circulating through cadet camps all over Canada, including those on Vancouver Island, this summer to give cadets a look at the uniform of the future.

Inside of two years, it is estimated, the Department of National Defence will have all cadets, army, sea and air, in green. Commissioned officers are all in green now.

However, insignia and headgear will be distinctive, berets for the navy, peaked caps for the army and wedge caps for all air force.

And the uniform is not the only thing that is changing. The Sea Cadet Corps, officers insist, is no longer a recruiting arm for the navy. The emphasis is on citizenship rather than soldiering.

"We are more concerned with turning out responsible citizens than recruits for the armed forces," says Major W. Conconi.

"The framework is, of course, military and military standards of dress and deportment are demanded of trainees but this is definitely not a training ground for soldiers. Our program is diversified and intensive. We hope to turn out self-reliant, physically-fit, resourceful people no matter what course they follow in life."

The diversification referred to by Conconi includes an extensive land-based program which begins in the morning on the drill square with "divisions and colors" and ends at about 9:30 in the evening.

★ ★ ★

Physical education, swimming, wilderness training courses and two and three-day outdoor trips keep cadets on the top line physically and, for the mind, there are lectures and training in everything from cooking to communications.

One course even includes sessions on extemporaneous public speaking.

Esquimalt and Quadra training programs are designed to supplement each other with the southern camp emphasizing land-based programs and Quadra placing stress on sea phases.

Although Esquimalt camp is part of the Canadian Forces Naden establishment, its administration and operation is separate and self-contained. Quadra is wholly and solely cadet.

The aim is to detach the cadet operation completely from the regular armed forces and this may come about before long. Supplementary services, provisioning, medical, band and transport are all handled by cadets and the cadet camps have and operate their own budgets.

Routed out of bed at six o'clock in the morning, trainees run to the end of the long jetty at Quadra camp and drop anywhere from 12 to 24 feet into the 52-degree sea. This starts a day in which there is no let-up.

Wilderness training, long gruelling treks on minimal rations, obstacle course, range firing and periods of command over more junior cadets are varied with lectures on a variety of subjects including communications, navigation, electronics and even self-expression and public speaking.

The course is designed to test senior cadets, all of whom are volunteers, to the limit; to test them even byond what they think are their limits; to develop self-confidence and enterprise and to teach them the value of decisive action coupled with a group approach to a problem.

"Outward Bound" climaxes the course.

The leadership course of 48 is divided into four crews and each group of 12 sets forth in a sailing cutter in fair weather or foul. In four days they must, by rowing or sailing, cover a 100-mile course touching three points in the lonely Desolation Sound area.

Slim rations for 12 men for four days. To survive cadets must live off the land and the sea — and they do.

There is no supervision and no officers with the men.

Strange things happen on Outward Bound, say people who have been there. It makes men out of boys.

This, after all, is the whole aim of the Sea Cadet movement.

Six men in a cutter on the lonely waters of Desolation Sound. Actually the oarsmen are sea cadets and the waters of the sound are far from lonely. They are plied by thousands of pleasure craft during the summer and provide ideal conditions for cadet training.

Portnoy—Anatomy of a Male Chauvinist Pig

A Film Review
By WAYNE HARDING

Ernest Lehman's film version of Portnoy's Complaint is a bit more than a long smutty joke as it may first seem.

It is true, of course, that when Lehman adapted Philip Roth's novel for his film, he made a point of not missing a single item of prurient or simply naughty value. At the same time, there is much of the book that he chose to ignore.

Stil, Lehman's film does make some contribution to the project founded in Roth's novel — to create an anatomy of the male chauvinist pig.

The story develops through the seldom resourseful confession of a sophisticated young New Yorker who balances the order of his career as an assistant human rights commissioner in the city government with an unchecked penchant for what used to be called "womanizing."

Lehman has developed this story as something of a social satire and in so doing he eliminates much of the uniqueness of the hero, Alexander Portnoy.

In the film, more than in the novel, the protagonist of the confession is a caricature of his peers. He is the epitome of the fraternity whose constitution is written in Playboy magazine.

Here is the plastic young man with his plastic sensibility and his plastic sexuality and the same sad plastic eyes that peer out from after-shave ads and campus fashion features each month.

This exaggerated character — hopefully it is still an exaggeration — is handled rather well by Richard Benjamin. He manages to create his character just as the admen have made the original mold — an ugly soul in a Botany 500 suit.

Unfortunately Benjamin isn't given much help from the rest of the cast. They are all weak but they vary in demension and satirical quality with little relation to the development of the protagonist's character.

Inconsistencies like these can only leave one wondering if we have here a satire by accident. Or have the playboys sabotaged the original plan?

Summer Mood

Introduces Many to Symphony

Popularization of the arts by using the mood of summer to bring their performance to the people at low cost is spreading around the country.

Taken into the open air, or into a more or less rustic setting from the formality of the regular concert hall, the manoeuvre has worked well in areas where it has been practised for some time.

People who have never ventured into a theatre or concert hall get to know that special feeling that comes when watching and listening to performances that are not electronically processed.

EASY ENJOYMENT

They find out for themselves what a symphony orchestra is all about. And they find out what some of us have always believed — that a lot of people who have shunned so-called classical music because they think they won't understand it find themselves enjoying it without effort.

(After all what's to understand? Music is for listening and enjoying basically with the emotions rather than the intellect. Although if intellectualizing music is your dish there is plenty of scope for the exercise of that enjoyment.)

But if one person appreciates a Bach suite on the intellectual level it doesn't mean that another listener lacking profundity, cannot experience a pleasurable "gut reaction" to the same music.

These are the truths within the fact that summer initiates to symphonic music are discovering how fallacious terminology can be.

That for instance, "good" music is not a to-be-shunned category, but that good, mediocre and bad exist side-by-side within all categories, from folk through jazz, rock, Broadway, baroque, romantic, contemporary.

There are great numbers of people all over this continent whose love affair with the living stage began when they came under the spell of some straw-hat theatre project.

No reason why the same thing should not happen in music.

There is nothing novel in barn theatres, nor in Shakespeare or symphony outdoors.

What is somewhat rare and tremendously encouraging at least on our side of the 49th parallel, is what has happened this summer in Victoria and Winnipeg, to name two instances where free performances have been made possible by government subsidization.

Three government levels — through the Victoria Summer Festival Society — took a hand in sponsoring five weeks of Victoria Symphony concerts with spectacularly successful results.

And in Winnipeg, dance took to the outdoors with similar success.

Dancing in the park was the Royal Winnipeg Ballet's contribution to Festival Manitoba, but the intention is that the experiment will be repeated next year.

Grants that made the free performances possible came from the Manitoba Department of Tourism, Recreation and Cultural Affairs and from Canada Council.

ONE BLOT

There were six free evening performances on the outdoor stage at Assiniboine Park and they drew a total audience of not less than 25,000 persons.

The only blot on the Winnipeg record is a piece of blatant press-agentry which issued fluorescent red decals proclaiming, "I've Got Culture—I've Seen the Ballet."

Apart from that gaffe the six nights of dance and our five weeks of symphony music may turn out to be the greatest trend-setters yet in the story of Canadian arts and leisure.

On Stage Next Week

Tonigh, Tuesday and Thursday and next Saturday, the boistrous comedy, Tom Jones, will be seen. On the intervening nights, except Sundan and Monday, the show is the entrancing French musical melange, Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris.

In the final week, Sept. 5-9, Jacques Brel will be seen Sept. 5, 7 and 8, Tom Jones, Sept. 6 and 9.

At McPherson Playhouse, Jerry Gosley's Smile Show enters its final week of a successful 20th season, playing nightly through Sept. 2.

Curtain times are 8 p.m.

Bible, Modern Jazz Sustained Hampton

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "Everything has a guideline," said Lionel Hampton, the bandleader.

"Once we find that guideline, we have to adhere to it."

Religion and music have been the two guidelines of "the Ramp." Together they inspired him to rise from the bleak future of a black slum kid to recognition as "King of the Vibraharp" and one of the dominant figures in modern jazz.

They came to the musician's rescue last year when the crippling death of his wife of 35 years almost drove him into retirement.

"I idolized Gladys since the days we were childhood sweethearts," he said, at a luncheon here during his engagement at the Rainbow Grill.

"She was everything a woman could be to a man. She was my wife, my friend, my inspiration and my business manager. I could come to her with any problem, big or little.

"She set up things for me so well that I'll never have to go to a breadline whatever happens.

"When she died—her heart just blew out—it was like the end of the world. I didn't want to play another note. I just wanted to quit everything."

BIBLE HELPED

It was his daily reading of the Bible, Hampton said, that convinced him he should resume his lifework of "making a joyful sound for the Lord."

"I'm a great believer in the Bible. I get substance out of it. It is meaningful in my life.

I came up in a religious family, which was headed by my grandmother. She led us in reciting the Ten Commandments three times a day."

Not too long ago when an elderly hotel chambermaid returned to Hampton an envelope containing $500 which he had carelessly left in his room, he was so impressed by her honesty that he hired her for life as his cook.

Hamp said he developed his marvelous sense of rhythm by beating with spoons on pots and pans as a child on a tenement floor. His first drumming lessons were given him by a nun at the Catholic school he attended.

She rapped my knuckles when I started to give the beat with my left hand," he said.

Benny Goodman and Louis Armstrong helped him up the ladder when he was playing in sawdust-floored Los Angeles night spots at $3 a night. Later, Hampton and his band earned up to $10,000 for a single concert.

This year Hampton and his men, busier than ever, will make more than 200 appearances. And now, at 58, he can still play them into exhaustion.

Nanaimo Man Hired by N.B.

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Richard Hatfield has announced the appointment of W. A. Farlinger of Montreal and Alan Field of Nanaimo to study the operations of the New Brunswick tourism department.

Farlinger is a partner in the Canadian accounting firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Co., while Field is a former director of the Canadian Travel Bureau.

Premire Hatfield Aug. 16 dismissed Tourism Minister J. C. Van Horne because his department overspent its $3.9-million budget by nearly 60 per cent during the first five months of the current fiscal year.

Rock and Roll Resurrection, Courtesy of Hawkins

By PAUL VASEY

TORONTO (CP) — Ronnie Hawkins eases his 240 pounds onto a sofa in the living room of his $180,000 house near Toronto and says in a broad Arkansas drawl "I'm not gittin' excited this time."

"This time" means the release of his newest album.

Canada's king of "rocky-roller" music might well get a little excited about it. He says it's a success.

The Hawk says: "We have a better chance of makin' it now than we ever had. I had a lot of heavy help on this one."

He rattles off a list of musicians such as Boots Randolph, Fred Carter, Grady Martin and Charlie McCoy who helped put the album together.

Rock and Roll Resurrection, a solid collection of oldies such as Lawdy Miss Clawdy; Maybellene; Memphis, Tennessee; and Bony Moronie, has just been released in Canada and was released one week earlier in the United States and Britain.

IN TOP BRACKET

"Hell, it's already in the top 40 in England, and that goes for all Europe," the Hawk says.

He drawls on about an upcoming U.S. promotional tour, including an appearance on the Johnny Carson Tonight Show, and a European tour this fall.

And you also stand to make some money.

The Hawk wrote only one of the songs on the album — Cora Mae — a fast, heavy old rock 'n' roll piece typical of the tunes he sang when he first came to Canada in 1958 from Arkansas.

For a man who "never made any of the really heavy bread" it could mean a change of tide.

OWNS 13 CARS

Ronnie already owns 13 cars, including a Rolls-Royce limousine which once belonged to Lady Eaton and which he is trying to sell.

"I guess I got about $85,000 tied up in cars," he says. "That's a sore point with the wife."

"Another sore point" with Wanda is a 163-year-old log cabin sitting in their back yard behind a cluster of trees, trees.

The cabin, now furnished in period pine furniture and featuring $10,000 worth of electronic equipment in the basement, was on a corner of Ronnie's "little farm" near Peterborough, Ont.

He had the cabin taken apart log by log and brought to his 10-acre property near Toronto for reconstruction.

IMPORTED ARTISTS

And the Toronto home, a two-storey, stone-and-stucco 11-room place, didn't come cheaply. Ronnie bought it for $90,000 six years ago and spent $90,000 renovating it.

"I was foolish but I like it," he says. "I could have got options on 200 acres of land around here for that bread, but I never thought about it.

"I can't hardly afford to keep the place up. Hell, the taxes and maintenance are $100 a week."

For the time being, though, the $3,000 a week Ronnie clears should keep things going. He says he clears about $1,000 from playing six nights a week in a Toronto nightclub and another $2,000 from his own nightclub in London, Ont.

HAS FRENCH TUTOR

Ronnie Hawkins Jr., a good-looking nine-year-old, walks into the den just as his French tutor is arriving.

"Now education, that's important," says Ronnie. He has both his boys, Ronnie and Robbin, 7, in private school, and hopes to send Leah Rachael, 2½, when she is older.

Ronnie answers the telephone. "Well hello, kid," and another business deal is on — one which contributes to the average monthly telephone bill of more than $500.

DOWN ON DOPE

He switched topics and says:

"I don't care what you say about dope — I know it wrecks you. It's wrecked 10 of my best musicians.

"After a while you just end up talkin' to yourself, and answerin'. Your mind changes.

"They need to line up all them dope pushers and give 'em the firin' squad thing. They better be glad I'm not ruler of the world."

But later, at the downtown club, the Hawk does become ruler of the world — or at least a small "rocky-roller" corner of it.

The band slams into a nearly-deafening barrage of yesterday's best music, and the Hawk sits on his stool, grins at the crowd, and drifts off into pulsating, driving din of his own sound.

The youngsters and the not-so-young are pulled onto the dance floor like metal to magnet, and the Rock and Roll Resurrection is happening, again.

"SORE POINT" with the wife, according to Canada's king of Rock and Roll, is his collection of cars including this Rolls Royce. Ronnie Hawkins, high-living and higher-earning Toronto star of the 1950s-style of rock music, has just released a new album, and he says its already a success. (CP Wirephoto)

Outport Music Preserved

HARBOUR BUFFETT, Nfld. (CP) — Amazed, the old man turned and said to anyone who would listen: "To watch them change instruments around like snuff at a wake and not miss a note has to be seen to be believed."

The old man was talking about the Wareham Brothers from this once-thriving outport on Long Island in the northern end of Placentia Bay.

Percy, Alfred, Wilfred, Baxter and Roy Wareham are really fiddling up a storm, not only in Newfoundland but to folk-lovers all across North American, as they let their natural rhythm carry them along in a sweet flow of music-making which is undeniably authentic folk.

Sometimes they sing, sometimes it's an unaccompanied ballad, sometimes it's accompanied by an amazing variety of instruments; fiddle, guitar, mandolin, four-string banjo, piano accordion, button accordion, tin whistle, mouth organ and tambourine.

And when the spirit moves him, Alf will drop his spoons and it's up on his feet for some fancy footwork, stepping it out as only a champion step dancer from Harbour Buffett can.

PRAISED GROUP

The organizer of the Mariposa Folk Festival held recently in Toronto, Shelley Posen, said: "The Warehams had the good fortune to grow up in an outport where they were exposed to many folk music traditions."

Posen, himself a performer, said: "They had music in their family, a mother who played the piano, a father who sang well, and who encouraged them to sing and play.

They know a wide variety of material . . . Irish, popular, Newfoundland ballads, the jigs and the reels."

"We're not too professional about our arranging," says Wilf. "I hope people aren't too disappointed with us."

Posen said the Warehams are too modest. "They're really good and have a stage presence which brings them across as warm, natural and witty."

FAMILIES SCATTERED

Although home to the brothers is Harbour Buffett, the impact of a government resettlement program in 1967 has scattered them around the province.

Roy and Baxter now live in Arnold's Cove. Roy is administrator at the Come-By-Chance hospital while Baxter is a vice-principal at the town's school.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leeland Wareham, Percy, Alfred and Wilf, live in St. John's. Percy is a comptroller at Swift Canada.

Percy says: "Dad's influence was strong. It was not too unusual for him to get me out of bed in the middle of the night to come down and play for some visitors when they arrived. Not that I minded, it was a real treat to me and I'd play away all night."

Percy and Alf learned to step dance in the family barn between turns at milking the cows.

"Once you put your foot on the dance floor in an out-harbor community, it was the same thing as making a formal announcement that now I'm a man, I can dance with the best of ye'," said Wilf.

MUSIC PASSED ON

Their music has been influenced by many things. There are songs which have been passed on from father to son along with the tunes and words that local fishermen picked up.

There's a strong Irish influence on the Warehams' music. Songs such as Rosin the Beau, Leaving Tipperary and Rose of Arnmore have filled many a community hall throughout the province.

Wilf, a graduate student from the folklore department at Memorial University in St. John's, is into the scene to the extent that he's off for the University of Pennsylvania in late August for his doctorate in folklore.

Mariposa was really a feather in the Warehams' hat. One Newfoundlander wrote the group and told them he was taking his vacation so he could go to the festival.

"That's great with us," Wilf said. "We're delighted to have an audience who join the square dancing held after each day's session."

CANADA-WIDE SURVEY

Premiers Differ on Quebec's Role

QUEBEC (CP) — Canadian premiers outside Quebec differ widely on this province's place in Confederation and whether Quebec should have special powers compared with those of other provinces, says a survey published today.

Premier William Davis of Ontario, one of seven premiers quoted in an article in Le Soleil by managing editor Florian Sauvegeau, appeared less definite on the issue of special status than the other six.

One premier, Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia, accepted "without condition the principle of a particular status for Quebec."

Two others, Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, gave qualified approval to the idea in interviews.

Three premiers rejected special status—Peter Lougheed of Alberta, W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Frank Moores of Newfoundland.

The interviews took place over a period of three months.

Mr. Sauvageau said Premier Davis criticized the centralizing tendencies of the federal government, but did not appear to like the idea of a particular Quebec society either.

"There is a great diversity in the country, even in Ontaro," Mr. Davies said. "A diversity of interests, of cultures. But there is a tie holding it together and I would like to think this tie crosses the whole country."

Premier Regan, however, said:

"I accept without condition the principle of a particular status for Quebec."

"I agree with the idea of one division of powers for Quebec with the federal government and another for the other provinces, with fewer powers for the other provinces," Premier Regan said.

Premier Blakeney says the special status of Quebec has been recognized since 1867, the year of Confederation.

"Here in the west, and particularly in Saskatchewan, we believe we need a strong central government to meet our economic and social problems, unfavorable freight rates, the question of markets for our products, etc., as problems which the provincial government cannot settle.

"However it is clear that the people of Quebec have legitimate aspirations of seeing its provincial government become a base of support for French culture in Canada. To do this, Quebec needs different powers from those of Saskatchewan."

★ ★ ★

Premier Shreyer said he does not agree with the two-nations concept in the judicial sense of two sovereign states.

On the other hand, he doubted English Canada would resist if a majority of Quebecers opted for independence.

"And after a 10-or 20-year period I have the impression that an effort would be made to reach a kind of European Common Market. We would orient ourselves toward a kind of working integration with the idea of a political union in the back of our minds."

Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta said that, aside from the language question, he did not notice a particular society in Quebec.

"There are differences in the way there will always be differences between east and west, north and south . . . but I really think they are exaggerated."

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, of British Columbia, said that if Quebecers were to vote today, 90 per cent of them would opt for remaining within confederation.

In his opinion, such a vote would settle the "Quebec problem" once and for all and "we could begin to build a better Quebec and a better Canada."

Premier Frank Moores of Newfoundland said he recognized there was a different society in Quebec and he hoped Quebecers recognized the existence of a different society in Newfoundland. But he did not think one could discuss two nations.

He said Quebec independence was "stupid" because it was an emotional act instead of a rational one. A strong central government was needed as a "catalyst," and as the only government which represents everybody and transcends the particular interests of each province.

AMERICANS PULL OUT OF CANADIAN ARCTIC

RESOLUTE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — The U.S. flag will be lowered for the last time at a special ceremony here Sunday, marking official withdrawal of U.S. civil service presence in Canada's most northern white settlements.

The flag-lowering ceremony terminates a 25-year joint venture by the two countries to study weather conditions at a base station here, and at four satellite stations in the high arctic settlements of Mould Bay, Isachsen, Eureka and Alert.

The Americans have pulled out of the satellite stations during the last year and the U.S. weather service will mark official departure from Canadian soil with the ceremony at the base camp here.

Wishing to curb their involvement in international weather operations, the Americans had asked to withdraw from the program. In 1970, the Canadian government agreed to take over complete operation of the stations.

Under international meteorological agreements, data gathered by Canadian weather stations is made avaiable throughout the world, so the U.S. will not suffer access to information as a result of the withdrawal.

The venture was first proposed in 1946 by a committee which recommended establishment of weather stations in the Arctic in order to study feasibility of schdeuled air operations, as well as to add to knowledge of the earth's air circulation.

The Canadian meteorological service, reluctant to shoulder the high cost of such stations on its own, invited the U.S. weather service to participate in the venture.

The program was launched in 1947 with the establishment of Resolute on Cornwallis Island and Eureka on Ellesmere Island. Isachsen on Ellef Ringness Island and Mould Bay on Prince Patrick Island were established the following year. A station was set up at Alert, 500 miles from the North Pole on the Northern tip of Ellesmere Island, in 1950.

Jack Labelle of Winnipeg, acting director of central region for the meteorological service, said the go-it-alone operating cost for Canada in the next fiscal year is expected to be $1.5 million.

EMPTY CINEMA HIT

PRAGUE (Reuter) — The Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo called Thursday for an analysis to discover why a cinema showing a Russian film next door is nearly empty.

"Certainly the question of politics plays a role here," the newspaper's film critic wrote, "but not that alone. Many spectators are convinced—and not without justification—that they will be able to see the Soviet films on television, while they do not expect any American films. . . .

"Many spectators go to the cinema above all in the search of diversion, excitement, tension, etc., and naturally a detective story is more enticing. . . ."

Sam Goldwyn Turns 90

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Samuel Goldwyn will be 90 years old Sunday, oblivious of the revolutionary changes in the film industry he helped found and develop.

The movie pioneer remains in his Beverly Hills mansion, victim of his advanced age. There will be no birthday celebration, his wife declares.

"Last year's was a fiasco," said Frances Goldwyn. "It was simply too upsetting and exhausting for Sam, and he was days getting over it.

"This year I have told the family not to mention the birthday, and I'm praying that he doesn't know about it."

A Comparison:

NDP promises and NDP performance

THE PROMISE
"Most Manitoba motorists will save 10 to 33 per cent on their auto insurance premuims."

THE PERFORMANCE
In a just-completed survey*, 60 per cent of Manitoba motorists say they pay as much, or more, under government auto insurance.

THE PROMISE
Government auto insurance will be more equitable.

THE PERFORMANCE
Seventy per cent of claim-free drivers report no savings with government insurance. But 44 per cent of higher-risk drivers say they save money under government insurance.

Manitoba motorists have paid for their first year's government car insurance. Now 79 per cent of drivers surveyed say they want competition . . . not a monopoly.

GEOLOGY KEY TO FOREIGN AID

MONTREAL (CP) — A Canadian geologist said Friday the Canadian International Development Agency is failing to utilize available geological expertise in its program of aid to developng countres.

Duncan Derry senior delegate for Canada to the 24th International Geological Congress here and past president of the Canadian Geological Association, said the agency should be training geologists specifically for foreign-aid work.

"One of the best ways to raise the standard of living of underdeveloped countries is through geology," he said in an interview. "We're not doing it in a very efficient way."

One part-time employee represents the agency's sole expenditure on technical geological advice within its organization, he sad.

"Too large a proportion of funds is being spent on such things as public relations and too small a proportion on technical expertise."

Geological aid is one of the keys to development in economically deprived nations, Mr. Derry said, "because geology is needed not only for mineral exploitation but also to find water sources."

Creditors to Divide Jailed Notary's Funds

The B.C. Supreme Court approved a plan under the Bankruptcy Act Friday by which creditors who lost money from thefts by conversion of a former Colwood notary public will receive some compensation.

The creditors are those of William Edward Williams who was sentenced to three years in jail in March, 1971, after pleasing guilty to 42 counts of theft by conversion.

Under the repayment plan the unsecured creditors will get back only about 13 to 14 per cent of what they lost, with some extra compensation coming from the Society of Notaries (the society is not legally obliged to provide funds).

The scheme provides that after the costs of the lawyer and the trustee had been paid the remainder of the assets would be distributed in equal proportion to each of the creditors after the preferred claims had been paid off.

Of this, $21,588 has already been distributed to trust creditors, $13,200 has gone into administrative costs and $1,152 to preferred creditors, leaving $15,060 more for distribution.

The total debt to unsecured creditors was $177,916.

COMPLETION DATE for a $5 million self-propelled truck and trailer ferry being built by Burrard Dry Dock Co. of Vancouver for C.P. Rail is May, 1973. The ferry, seen in artist's drawing, will have a service speed of 18 knots, travelling between Swartz Bay and downtown Vancouver in three hours. Larger than the Trailer Princess, which will also be kept on the run, the 380-foot newcomer will carry 50 freight trailers and have limited passenger accommodation, primarily for truck drivers, and a small cafeteria.

Chamber Weighs Nuclear Power

Addressing the chamber meeting Sept. 13 will be Lorne Gray, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

Gray said a nuclear plant was feasible for the island and he outlined problems and the potential value on an N-plant.

Shrum has also advocated a nuclear power plant for Vancouver Island, although he has said he is interested in a site near Duncan rather than Nanaimo.

He is expected to participate in the question period following Gray's speech.

Shrum's campaign for nuclear power has been vetoed so far by Premier Bennett who said there would be no nuclear plants in B.C. as long as he headed the provincial government.

Victoria chamber secretary-manager Brian Small said the chamber has taken no stand so far in the controversy although some members were known to be urging a resolution calling for nuclear power on the island.

"It is obviously a case of nuclear power or damming some other river. And no one I know is in favor of the Moran Dam being built on the Fraser River," Small said.

"But the chamber can not take a stand until we have more facts. That is why we are looking forward to this September meeting."

Small added that there was no reason why only east coast sites should be considered for an island nuclear plant when there were so many good sites on the west coast.

"There is an invironmental problem of disposing of hot water from a nuclear plant but that would not be a problem on the west coast. It would take a lot of hot water to heat up the Pacific Ocean."

Information Needed

REGINA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ed Tchorzewski has called for extension of consumer education into all segments of society, particularly in the field of education.

In an address to the profession exchange seminar sponsored by the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation, Tchorzewski said recent consumer legislation could lose all effectiveness "if the public is not made aware of the protection available for their benefit."

Drug Raid Closes Camp

WASHINGTON (WP) — Dawn was barely breaking over the Children's Fresh Air Camp 35 miles north of Baltimore when 22 Maryland state troopers swooped in and arrested 16 camp counsellors and the camp director for possession of drugs.

"They had been smoking marijuana all summer," said state trooper Daniel Moore, who led the 6 a.m. raid at the 261-acre camp for underprivileged children.

Moore said the raid was conducted early in the morning to avoid disturbing the 150 youngsters at the camp.

The camp closed Thursday.

Moore said no drugs were found in the children's tents and none of the children was involved in the raid.

OAK BAY P.C. ELECTION CORNER

No. 16 in a Series

G. SCOTT WALLACE

DRUG ABUSE MUST RANK AS ONE OF THE MAJOR PROBLEMS IN SOCIETY TODAY.

PARENTS, like my wife and myself, with teenage children in the schools in Oak Bay, are deeply worried by the knowledge that drug abuse is prevalent, and that inevitably our children will be exposed to the wiles of the pusher. As a family physician, I view with alarm the misery and human suffering brought to many families by drug abuse.

WHAT CAN THE PARENT DO?

THE OVERWHELMING EMPHASIS MUST BE PLACED ON PREVENTION, since a person once addicted to, or damaged by drugs is extremely difficult to cure. Thus clinics to provide free drugs to addicts, in order to eliminate the pusher, serve some useful purpose, but do nothing at all to protect maturing young people from the advances of the pusher, seeking new clients.

PARENTS must be encouraged to consider not so much the use of drugs but THE CONDITIONS WHICH LEAD TO DRUG USE. The only environment which parents can control is the atmosphere in the HOME. The best atmosphere for a child is a happy parent, who demonstrates not only love and concern, but also an awareness that the child is growing up in a world far different from the one the parent knew as a child.

An attitude which is too repressive is as damaging as one which is too permissive and the secret seems to lie in developing frank and intimate lines of communication between parent and child and in reassuring the child of parental support through whatever problems may erupt while growing up.

YOUNG DRUG USERS frequently tell me they take drugs because they are BORED and seek EXCITEMENT. It is the role of PARENTS and SOCIETY to show young people that real life can be more exciting and fulfilling than the SHADOWY PHONEY DRUG SCENE. Yet children seeking kicks and release from boredom and tension by turning to drugs, can hardly be blamed when they all too frequently see their parents gobbling tranquilizers and consuming alcohol for exactly the same purpose.

THE EXAMPLE SET IN THE HOME HAS AN ENORMOUS INFLUENCE on whether or not children experiment with drugs and they are NOT IMPRESSED WITH OUR HYPOCRISY.

We must involve our children in challenging projects, whether it be Junior Achievement, or as Candy striper at a local hospital, or by some service to senior citizens, or by a host of similar community projects.

PREVENTION OF DRUG USE depends on exciting and challenging our youngsters to become deeply involved in the society of which they are a vital part.

WHAT IS THE ROLE OF GOVERNMENT?

PREVENTION IS THE CORNERSTONE in the form of REALISTIC EDUCATION IN SCHOOL AND SOCIETY about the dangers and futility of drug use.

A PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT WILL NEVER SUPPORT LEGALISING THE USE OF MARIJUANA OR ANY OTHER DRUG ON THE FALSE PREMISE THAT THEY ARE NO WORSE THAN ALCOHOL, which is legal.

TWO WRONGS NEVER MADE A RIGHT.

Treatment of addicts is like closing the stable door after the horse has gone. TREATMENT MUST BE MADE AVAILABLE AND TO HAVE ANY SUCCESS MUST BE MEDICAL, NOT CRIMINAL.

DETOXIFICATION CENTRES must be established and every facility provided for the REHABILITATION of the addict. LOCAL CLINIC EFFORTS BY DR. JIM LANG MUST RECEIVE MORE ASSISTANCE.

THE LAW MUST BECOME MORE EFFECTIVE IN FINDING AND PUNISHING ALL WHO PEDDLE DRUGS. HEAVIER PENALTIES ARE REQUIRED.

Parents often seek heavier penalties against pushers, even the death penalty for pushers of hard drugs. It is relevant to note that IRAN has executed 150 drug offenders in the past two and a half years yet still has a serious problem of drug abuse. Executions may mollify the wrath of parents but really do little to solve the basic problem.

THE ANSWER LIES IN PREVENTION AND PREVENTION LIES MAINLY IN THE FUNDAMENTAL UNIT OF SOCIETY, THE FAMILY IN THE HOME.

What do you do with a government that has had 20 years to solve B.C.'s labour problems, and has done nothing but create utter chaos?

For 20 years they've had the power to work constructively to create better labour-management relations.

For 20 years they've had a clear mandate to do whatever was necessary to solve the problems.

And in 20 years, what have they accomplished? They've passed Bills 43, 42 and 33 – all designed to bring labour to its knees. They've created and maintained an atmosphere of hostility resulting in constant confrontations and strife.

20 years is too long to work on a problem without coming up with any solution.

So what do you do about it?

You vote them out.

Plant Cuttings As a Philosophy

GARDENING
jack beastall

Few gardeners can push aside the urge to root a few cuttings of a favorite plant. It is a natural desire that goes with pulling weeds and cultivating the soil.

While hundreds of so-called cuttings are taken every year, few amateurs reach the stage when they can point with pride to a specimen plant of their own propagation.

To be successful one needs first a few suitable facilities for handling the young rooted cuttings until large enough to take care of themselves; secondly, shrub material that is in proper condition to produce roots; thirdly, a sufficient number of cuttings of each kind to allow for the normal percentage of failures.

Facilities in the home garden can be quite simple, just a small coldframe with a glass cover, and a sheltered, well prepared bed where the cuttings can be planted and tended for the one, two, or three years necessary for growing into a garden plant.

Right here is a good time to stress that a cutting does not develop into a large flowering shrub over winter. If a large shrub is needed immediately it can only be obtained by purchase from a grower.

The whole idea behind the rooting of cuttings in the home garden is the immeasurable satisfaction from co-operating with nature to produce a living thing of beauty, plus the increased knowledge and better understanding of plant growth and care.

The coldframe for cuttings is best filled with fine builders' sand in which clay pots of suitable size are embedded to their rims.

In each pot will be placed a mixture suitable to the cuttings being grown. Most shrub cuttings will root in a 50-50 mixture of coarse (not builders') sand and well dampened peatmoss. Good drainage (stones or crooks) is necessary in every pot.

As soon as we have this much preparation ready we can collect shrub material which is in a proper condition to produce roots.

The longest cuttings ever taken are about eight inches, and they are limited to plants which root easily such as laurel for hedges. Most other cuttings are taken about six inches long and reduced to four inches when prepared for insertion in the rooting medium.

Past weather and conditions under which the plants are grown (excess or lack of water; too much fertilizer) have a pronounced effect on the rooting potential of all cuttings. There is no set calendar date for the collecting of cutting material.

We are looking for young shoots which started in the spring and are now at the approximate state of maturity considered best for root production. This condition is usually reached in August through early September, but the exact time varies from year to year.

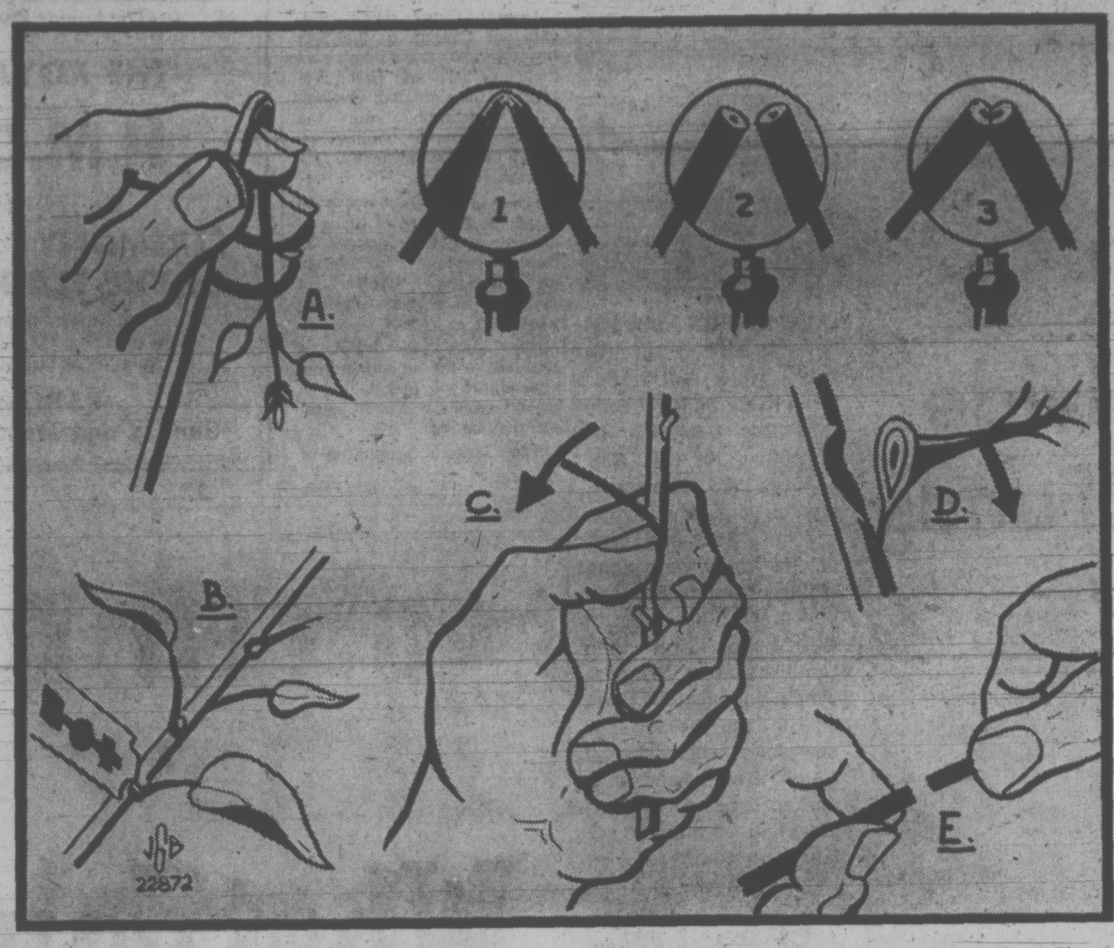
A simple test is to collect about three shoots on the sunny side of the plant and bend each one over the finger at a point about four or five inches from the tip as shown at A in the illustration. For clarity the leaves are not shown in the sketch.

If the stem flattens (detail 1) the shoot is not sufficiently mature; if it snaps apart (detail 2) it is likely to be too hard or overmature.

The condition considered to be ideal is when the stem breaks on the tension (or upper) side but remains attached on the lower side as shown in detail 3. Frequent tests through August into September are necessary.

The cuttings are then trimmed with a clean cut directly below a leaf node (at B). The older teaching that certain cuttings must be trimmed above a node, or half way between nodes, has been disproved.

The next step is to remove the leaves from the lower part of the cutting to have a bare stem for insertion into the rooting medium. This is where the amateur can ruin a good cutting by tearing off strips of the outer skin with the leaves.



The safest method is to hold the cutting in the left hand pressing the thumbnail against the base of the leaf petiole (sketch C). A sharp pull outwards and downwards over the thumbnail will sever the leaf without damage to the stem.

Your gardening reference book will mention certain plants from which "heel" cuttings must be taken. A heel cutting is a current year growth detached with a piece of older wood on the rooting end. Such a cutting is shown at D, obtained by pulling the growth downwards so that a shield of the parent branch remains attached. The strip of bark at the base of the sheild is cut off.

One other type of cutting is sometimes called a "piping" and applies to all dianthus (pinks and carnations). This is obtained by pulling out the top three inches of a side growth that has not borne flowers. It is depicted at E, the foilage being omitted for clarity.

Pipings can be taken any time from mid July to early September without need for the bending test which is necessary for shrub cuttings.

Hormone rooting powders are not essential. While their use will lessen the rooting period on cuttings considered difficult, the rooting of the easier cuttings can be inhibited or prevented if the powders are not used correctly.

Rooting hormones are similar acids to those used for killing weeds, one-half of one per cent acid to 99 and one-half per cent talcum powder.

The talcum is water resistant, preventing moisture from reaching the cutting to keep it alive until roots form, therefore after dipping, all loose powder must be shaken off. The rooting hormones in liquid form do not present the same problem.

WORK FOR WEEK

Check the deeply rooting perennials and the shrubs with spreading foliage to see whethether soil is damp enough at root level. Recent heavy shower was fine for surface dampening but may not have reached where needed.

If a greenhouse is slightly heated in winter, fuchsia and geranium cuttings taken now will root and grow into fine new plants for early flowering next summer.

Check fruits on trees for ripening. Peaches, nectarines, figs and Bartlett pears are a superb flavor when picked to eat fully ripened on the trees, but will not keep more than a few hours.

Lift garlic bulbs if not already out of ground. Dry in airy warmth before storing.

'Stress Enjoyment' Urban Strain Cure

MONTREAL (CP) — Relief from the strains of city living lies not in shorter working hours and more leisure time but in taking on stress with enjoyment, says Dr. Hans Selye, director of the University of Montreal's Institute of Medicine and Experimental Surgery.

"People suffer as much from boredom and lack of activity as they do from concentrating energy on something from which they derive no satisfaction," he said in an interview.

"Man is made to work, to do something that makes demands on him," Dr. Selye said said. "With the decline of so many other values such as religion and nothing new to replace them, work is one of the few areas where man can find a sense of worth and enjoyment."

But too often work is a source of frustration and insecurity, just something else to put up with like traffic congestion, pollution and violence.

The root of this frustration is the depersonalization of the individual and the loss of pride in individual accomplishment.

"Sure, we're technologically more efficient but in the process we have lost personal contact," Dr. Selye said. "What's the good of the end product—efficiency—if everyone's unhappy?

"I don't know my students any more. With audio-visual aids and bigger classes today, students are only faces whereas when I started teaching I knew everyone by name."

Efficiency in industry also took its toll.

"Formerly a craftsman would make a table from beginning to end and get a great deal of satisfaction," Dr. Selye said. "Today, one person makes the legs, another the top and still another paints so that no one person has made the article and no one is gratified."

Dr. Selye said the most important thing is to avoid the dulling monotony of such jobs and to determine what you really want to do.

"Too many people blindly accept status symbols such as owning a car and put up with a job they probably don't really want to do to gain them. They may get the car but also years of pent-up tension and no real feeling of accomplishment."

Dr. Selye said people should do what is natural to them and carefully choose an outlet for whatever creative talents they have.

"There's just as much satisfaction in being a brick-layer and building walls well as there is in being a scientist," he said. "Everybody, no matter how low he may be in the scale of mental development, has something to give, something that he wants to express, some valve for letting off his steam."

The key at every level was to know your own limits and not create mental obstacles on which you would only waste energy.

"You can't cheat yourself by doing less than you are capable of," Dr. Selye said. "But you also can't take on more than you can handle with satisfaction because you think society or someone else expects this of you.

"Do what you think is worthwhile—that is enough."

BATS IN BELFRY ROUT PARISHIONERS

APSLEY, Ont. (CP) — There are bats in the belfry at Apsley.

Parishioners of St. Andrew's Anglican Church in this community, about 30 miles northeast of Peterborough, have been forced out by bats.

Rev. Warren Banting tried burning sulphur but hundreds of bats have refused to leave the upper reaches of the building.

There is little money and few hands to clean out the bats and services now are held in a school house.

"Actually we don't mind the bats," said Mrs. John Mace, local historian and member of the church. "It's the smell."

THE GALLUP POLL

U.S. Domination Concern Growing

by the Canadian Institute Of Public Opinion

Evidence of the impact being made on Canadians by the current concern over U.S. domination of this country is highlighted by seeing how the people felt on the controversy about a decade ago, as compared to today's point of view.

Back in 1963, the nation split almost equally, with just under half (48%) thinking Canadian dependence on the U.S., was a good thing, and almost as many (44%) denying it, and saying it was not a good thing for us.

In less than a decade attitudes have changed dramatically. Today more than half the adult population (53%) consider dependence a bad thing for Canada. Only about a third (34%) now think it is beneficial.

There is, however, a striking divergence among those involved in the main occupational segments. Those in the homes of executives or professional men and women, are very much of the opinion that it is harmful to this country, as almost seven in ten hold this view (68%). This is almost three times the proportion who approve of it (22%).

The argument narrows in strengths in other spheres of work. In the homes of those in sales or clerical work, as well as in skilled and unskilled labor, or farm and other occupations, about five in ten believe it is harmful to Canada to be dependent on the U.S. — but close to four in ten disagree and hold that it is good for this country.

The question, as put to a national sample of about 700 adults in 1963, and again for today's report:

Do you think dependence on the U.S. is a good thing for Canada, or not a good thing?"

Saddler Plies His Vanishing Practical Art

MINTO, Man. (CP) — Within the confines of a bright white building on the main intersection, the only visible addition to this sleepy town halfway between Brandon and the International Peace Garden, Don Gardiner plies his trade of 60 years —the vanishing trade of a saddler.

Any day of the week Mr. Gardiner and Gertie, his tall, silver-haired wife of 48 years, can be found working the skins from eight in the morning, often until 11 at night.

The shop is clean and bright, along one wall saddles, bridles, halters, blankets, bits and buckles as well as a few potted plants.

He sits down and waits as Mr. Gardiner and his wife put the finishing touches on the matching saddlebags. The last thing he does is tool the customer's initials into the leather.

"I'm proud of that one," Mr. Gardiner said later. "It was as perfect as possible. But it must be perfect. If it satisfies me, it should satisfy anyone."

MADE THOUSANDS

He said he doesn't know how man saddles he's made during the last 60 years but "it must be in the thousands."

Nor does he know how long it takes to make a saddle.

"I have no idea.I don't look at the time. I just concentrate on the work and when it's done, it's done."

Mr. Gardiner began learning his profession in Stroud, England,entering his father's shop at he age of 13 as an apprentice. In 1921 he moved to Canada, settling in the Minto area. Three years later he met and married Gertie snd raised two boys, one a geologist now in Tucson, Ariz., the other a farmer near Minto. Neither have shown much interest in the saddlery business.

"I suppose it's a vanishing trade but both my wife and I love it.

"I'd be lost without my wife. She knows the business as well as I do and we work well together. I don't even have to ask her to hand me a tool . . . she knows which one I want by watching me work."

As he talks, the skilled hands work the leather. He even cuts his own laces.

"Can do it with my eyes shut," he says with an air of confidence.

Everything he does, including the stitching, is by hand and he ships his finished products, bearing a small flower and leaf trade mark, throughout Canada and the U.S.

Land for Elite, McGovern Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator George McGovern said Friday President Nixon had turned the economic structure of the United States into "a palace for the privileged few."

The Democratic presidential candidate, in a statement issued after a four-day, cross-country campaign swing, criticized the speech Nixon gave Wednesday night when he accepted the Republican party nomination for a second term.

"Mr. Nixon said Wednesday night that since our economic structure has some broken windows, we Democrats want to tear it down and start again," McGovern said.

But, he said, "we're tired of Richard Nixon turning it into a palace for the privileged few. Rather than tear anything down, we want to join Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson and restore that temple to the ancient truths."

The South Dakota senator gave two speeches Thursday in Minneapolis-St. Paul—to the American Federation of Teachers, which received him warmly, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which greet almost all he said on stony silence.

The AFT, representing some 300,000 teachers, broke a 56-year tradition to endorse McGovern's candidacy and pledged $250,000 to his campaign.

Portuguese Colonials Adapting to Winds of Change

BANGUI, Central African Republic (NYT) — In the heart of independent black Africa, the Portuguese loyally consume codfish and heady green wine, listen to fado music and dream of Lisbon but are engaged in prosperous occupations and have every intention to stay where they are.

One runs into the Portuguese all over West and Central Africa, nicely adapted to the winds of change — perhaps better than other Europeans — and wishing that their own colonial problems were over. There are about 30,000 Portuguese in independent black Africa, mostly in Zaire but also making up important colonies in the Central African Republic, the Congo Republic and Malawi, and a sprinkling of Chad.

The Portuguese have shown a remarkable gift for adjusting to the new conditions of independent Africa — this despite more than a decade of bitter colonial wars in Portuguese Africa, the multitude of United Nations resolutions against Portugal and the threats of the Organization of African Unity.

The observer may well question why Portugal has enmeshed herself in long blood-letting colonial wars when the Portuguese cope so well with African independence. Premier Marcello Caetano has declared that one of the main reasons Lisbon must hang on to her African territories is that the Portuguese settlers there have nowhere else to go. There are stimated to be 700,000 white Portuguese in the troubled colonies of Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea.

But many Portuguese in surrounding independent African states feel that the fate of the settlers is a false issue.

"The Portuguese will stay on in independent Angola as we have everywhere else," said a Lisbon man in his early twenties who had come to Bangui to avoid the wars in Portuguese Africa.

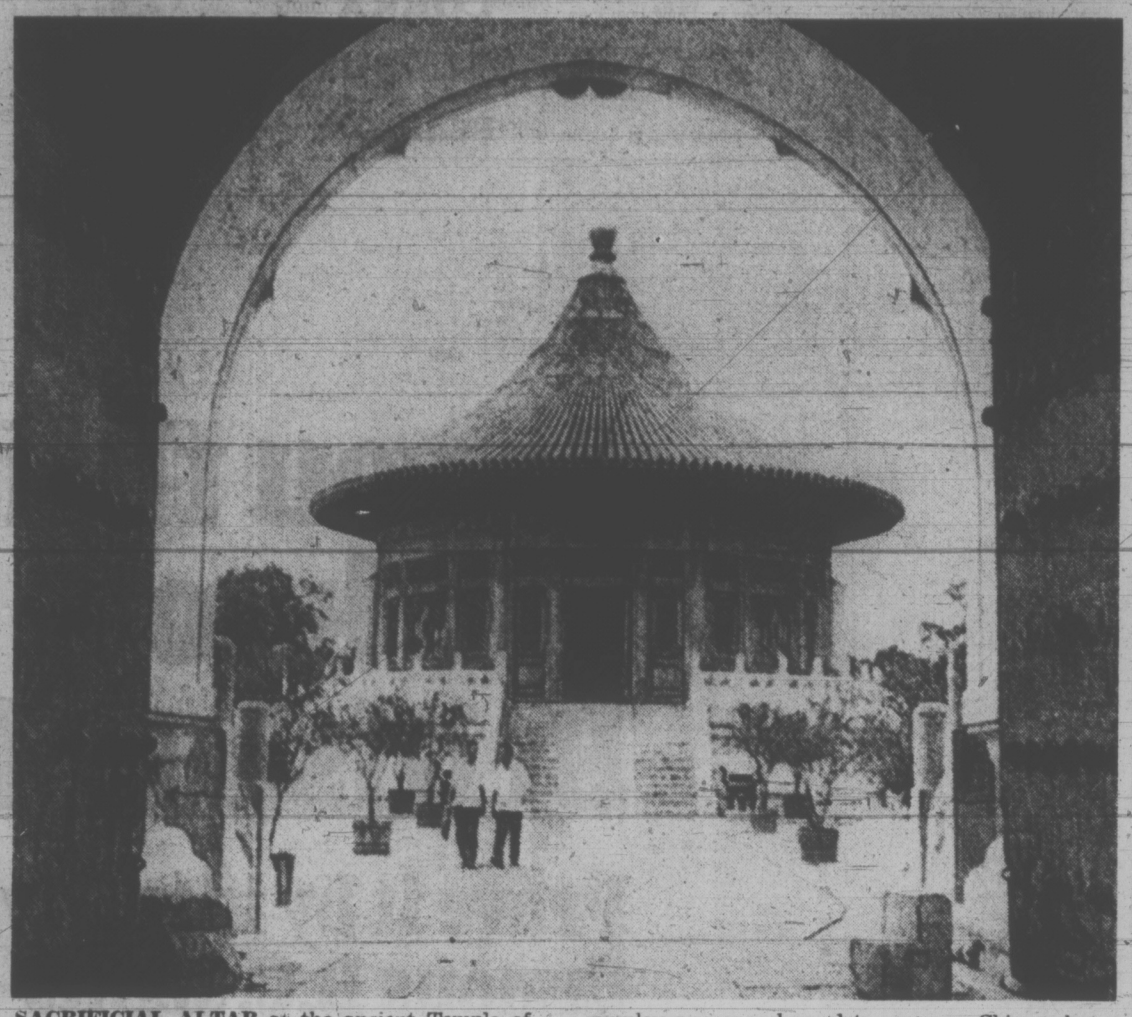
Most Portuguese have come to Central and West Africa because some distant relative settled here and prospered. The Portuguese traders sailed up the Congo and Ubangi Rivers for centuries and many of them are still there in bush settlements upriver.

There are basically two types of Portuguese in independent Africa — bush and urban dwellers. The country traders are thoroughly integrated in the local life. They generally possess modest living quarters over their shops, often take African wives and rarely move out of their villages even to visit African cities, let alone return to Portugal.

City Portuguese are inclined to stick to themselves and keep close contacts with the motherland, taking holidays there every year or two, or more often, if their income allows. There are a number of wealthy businessmen in Kinshasa, the capital of Zaire, and Brazzaville, capital of the Congo Republic, but most of the Portuguese are middle-class general shopkeepers, garage owners or restaurateurs. Many old-time residents still live in the large, square tin-roofed colonial homes but the younger generation prefers roomy, comfortable apartments.

Most Portuguese in the area showed no fear for their personal safety. However, they openly expressed the hope that Premier Caetano would soon reach a political settlement with the nationalists in Portuguese Africa.

"An end to the fighting in Angola would make life much easier for us," said the manager of one of Kinshasa's main office-supply stores. "You get awfully tired of insults after a while."



SACRIFICIAL ALTAR at the ancient Temple of Heaven in Peking's southern suburb was built during the 15th century Ming Dynasty. The temple complex was once barred to common Chinese but today tourists walk where once emperors hesitated to tread. (AP Wirephoto)

Altar of Heaven Reflects Gap Between China's Ages

PEKING (AP) — The awesome distance between the Chinas of yesterday and today is keenly felt at the mystic Altar of Heaven, in the southern suburbs of Peking.

From its triple terrace of carved marble, the emperors of two dynasties conversed twice a year with the heaven under whose mandate they ruled. With sacrifices at summer and winter solstices, each emperor confirmed himself as the sole intermediary between heaven and the world at large.

The Temple of Heaven was the architectual platform on which the mystical structure of imperial power rested.

Today the temple has become a park for the common people. Visitors don't seem to stand in awe of the superhuman powers and position of the emperors of old China. All that is left is an architectural masterpiece, built during the early decades of the Ming Dynasty in the 15th century and kept in repair up to now.

The peasants and soldiers of modern China don't hesitate when they step over the marble stones where once even the emperor had to kowtow — knock his forehead on the ground in a spirit of homage.

Among the wonders of the temple's architecture is the Hall of Prayers, rising to a triple roof with blue tiles and topped by a golden lotus bud. Inside are tablets denoting dead emperors.

Carillon Concerts Acknowledge Visitors

If your ears are tuned, a musical education in national anthems can be had in Heritage Court any Wednesday at noon in the summer.

Starting with O Canada, Bergink makes a point of honoring tourists in the tower at that time. While most of them are of the Star-Spangled Banner variety, they're sometimes from as far away as the Netherlands or Australia.

Bergink explains that he also honors various countries by playing their anthems on important days.

If you listen near Sept. 7 you will hear his homage to Brazil's Independence Day while at the recital nearest Sept. 18 it will be Chile's turn.

Should you want to bone up on other countries' anthems the solution is simple.

Co-Op Sold

PENTICTON (CP) — Kenyon and Co. Construction Ltd. of Penticton has bought the 120,000 square-foot packing house formerly owned by the Penticton Co-operative Grower's Association. Company president Al Kenyon made the announcement Wednesday but did not disclose the purchase price. The co-operative went into liquidation last March after 59 years in the packing house business.

Trials of a Reporter at Miami Beach

By SALLY QUINN
The Washington Post

MIAMI BEACH — A reporter wandered up to a giant peanut who had been stationed for several days in the lobby of the Fontainebleu Hotel.

"Excuse me, sir," said the reporter to the peanut.

Taking out her notebook and pencils, the reporter asked: "Whom do you represent?"

The peanut man stiffened.

And the reporter was not alone, either, in somehow finding herself — as a member of the dreaded media — an Alice in Wonderland.

Trekking through a maze of bizarre images — a victim of suspicion at best, abuse at worst — she found herself constantly dismayed at the rapidity with which the world changed size and color and rabbits, red queens anc Cheshire cats came in and out of focus.

The mediums? A media? An media? The medias? — They didn't even know what to call us.

Art Linkletter, in his duties as the master of ceremonies at the "See How She Runs" breakfast with Pat Nixon, called us, "all those people out there who will be watching you from now on, morning, noon, and night."

It was reminiscent of George Wallace on the race issue, telling white voters, "you know what I mean."

The press badges read "limited access." Press schedules were handed out with strange advisories such as "media availability."

"I'm sorry, ma'am," said the security guard, "but you can't go in there."

"Why not? It's a press briefing and I'm press."

"Well, your badge says 'limited access.'"

"I see."

On the floor of the convention hall, up and down the aisles with notebook in hand, staring at delegates, delegates staring back, is the official place for the press to be.

"Why? I'm allowed to be here."

"You heard what I said," his little face reddened and contorted.

"Get going. I'm in charge here. Who do you think you are, big shots all of you, media big shots, think you're so swell dont' you, well I'm in charge here."

And sputtering, speechless, he pushed a stunned reporter all the way down the aisle.

"Go ahead, write that I pushed you. I dare you." And he disappears.

At the other end of the convention hall at right angles to the speaker's platform (not underneath the press platform where it had been during the Democrats) was the VIP stand.

It had a high, white, beveled shield in front of it and a red carpeted platform between that and the floor — not too accessible.

The box was a Norman Rockwell still life executed by Salvador Dali.

Yes, there were Tricia and Sammy Davis Jr. and his Eddie and Julie and David and Judy and Kim and wife, Algodis.

Boy, did they look uncomfortable. All of them.

(At a women's brunch earlier in the week, GOP co-chairperson Anne Armstrong had announced to Davis that "we were so proud that your ancestors came over from the old country to make this country a better place for all of us in which to live.")

"Sammy is about as comfortable being a Republican as a whore in church," said one high-ranking Republican.

Staring down at the press the way the Romans stared down at the Christians, they would pit them against one another with a thumbs-up or thumbs-down for an interview.

Back out on the streets where the demonstrators were making some noise, a reporter stood taking notes.

An elderly man approached and, shaking a finger, yelled: "This is all for your benefit, you know. If it weren't for you people, this sort of thing wouldn't happen.

Few would give anyone with a pad and pencil his or her name. "What's it to you?" or "What for?" they would blurt out, and then move away quickly.

"They tell us to talk openly to the press; then they tell us what to say," said a Nixon youth.

Shortly before the convention, the "hippies," as they were to be baptized, staged a "throw-up" in front of the Fontainbleau.

They were inscribed, Your Nausea Bag for the '72 Republican Convention.

At 4 o'clock on the evening of Day One, a group called "Celebrities for the President," held a press conference.

At the conference were John Wayne, Jimmie Stewart, Ethel Merman, Terry Moore, Ruta Lee, Mary Ann Mobley and other less noteworthy.

Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr., who were in town for the entire convention, did not attend.

Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin, who had lent a wonderfully surreal quality to the Democrats, did attend.

This time they were outclassed and they knew it.

They never appeared again after the celebrities' press conference.

Each celebrity, stood up and told why she or he was for Nixon.

"I'm here because I want Nixon to be re-elected," elucidated Wayne.

"I'm a card-carrying, devout, California Republican," said Mary Ann Mobley, a former Miss America.

"You know why I'm here," said Glenn Ford.

"I'm one of those patriots who choke up over the flag and cry over the Star-Spangled Banner," said Ethel Merman.

The floor was then opened to questions. The celebs waffled on the Watergate bugging, Mick Jagger, bombing dikes and Jane Fonda, although Wayne did say that everyone had a right to his own opinion and Terry Moore allowed that if Jane didn't love her country she should leave.

On Sunday night was the big party for the 3,000 "young voters for the president."

Such familiar performers as Danny and the Juniors, the Coasters and the Five Satins entertained them for hours with oldies but goldies.

There was a moment where one could have been in a time capsule, hearing the music and seeing the happy youngsters in their bermudas, buttondowns, brushcuts and loafers.

"Gimme an N," said the D.J. and they knew what to do.

"Whaddya think of Nixon" he asked.

Shoo Wa Doobie, Doobie Do. "He the's the greatest for '72."

A word should be said about Tricia's hair. Tricia's hair is more platinum, longer, more teased, more bouffant and stiffer than ever.

The young Nixon kids demonstrated for Tricia.

Their signs read Nixon Is Good For Children and Other Living Things, Nixon Cares, This Is Dick-Xie Land, and Nixon Knows Captain America.

While all this was going on, the millionaires were having parties on their yachts by invitation only. (the only signs of them were at 8:30 in the morning when they would return to the hotel suites in black tie) and the "hippies" were slashing tires outside.

"Will you look how they ruined all those beautiful Cadillac tires," deplored one woman.

It was all too much.

One man complained in the elevator that he had planned to stay a week but was leaving a day early.

McGovern Cools $1,000 Gift Plan

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern is close to abandoning his controversial plan to give every American $1,000 a year in the form of a federal tax credit or "demogrant."

What he is going to come up with in its place is not yet clear.

A team of his economic advisers has presented him with a new plan that is more orthodox than the old and would affect fewer people, but still has as one of its basic objectives the redistribution of income from rich families to poor.

But the senator himslf has not made the decision yet to adopt the plan as his own, at least not in its entirety.

Beyond that, he and his political advisers face the tactical question of how best to dig out of the difficulty in which the demogrant idea left them.

McGovern's demogrant idea has been a source of trouble for him ever since his emergence in late spring and early summer as a leading contender for his party's nomination.

Hubert Humphrey attacked the idea in the California primary in June, and used it to suggest that McGovern was "radical" on economic issues generally.

President Nixon did much the same in his speech accepting the Republican presidential nomination in Miami Beach Wednesday night.

The trouble was that there was no way to raise all the money the plan called for at the lower end of the income ladder without raising taxes to impolitic levels in the middle-income brackets.

What the team has proposed now is that the demogrant be junked in favor of what amounts to some tax reform at the top and some generous welfare reform at the bottom of the income scale.

The big difference between their new plan and the earlier demogrant idea is that the new one would not disturb the tax rates, tax payments and incomes of families in the broad middle income brackets.

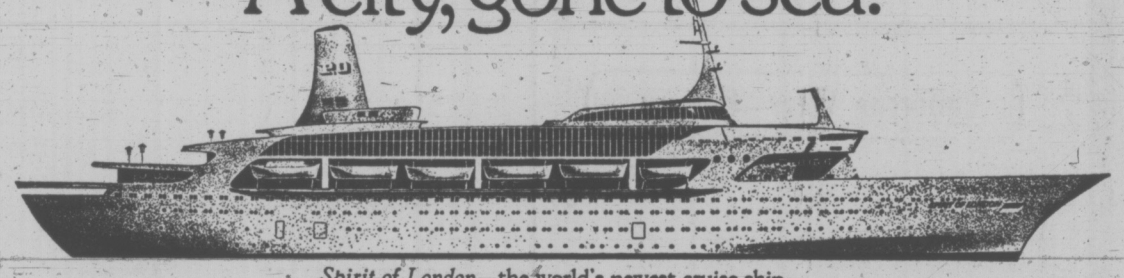
Introducing P&O's new Spirit of London. A city, gone to sea!


Spirit of London—the world's newest cruise ship—begins 10- and 11-day Mexico Cruises from Los Angeles on January 17. From $370 to $1075.

1. Like a luxury yacht, P&O's brand-new Spirit of London is designed for fun; ultra-modern, a compact 17,000 tons with sunny decks, a sky-high nightclub, swimming pool, a theatre, great shows, entertainment and dancing in the largest showroom on any P&O ship.
Plus cabins with private facilities for 740 passengers.
2. To her rakish good looks, we've added the very essence of friendliness and service—the spirit of London: openness and warmth, cheerful professionalism, charming accents, legendary place names, cozy shops with British goods at duty-free prices.
And a mood of shipboard life unlike anything else afloat.
3. You'll get a choice of continental breakfast in your room or poolside at the Union Jack Bar.
4. Or traditional English Breakfast in The Thames Restaurant, where the menu includes English muffins, scones, kippers, broiled tomatoes, English jams and marmalades, even eggs with bangers or gammon (translation: sausage, sliced English ham).
5. If you'll leave your shoes with your room steward aboard Spirit of London, they'll be shined for you, as in a first-class London hotel.
6. In the Greenwich Room —named after the great observatory—you'll actually be above the Captain's Bridge, in a gallery of windows with a 280-degree sweep of sea. And a Cutty Sark scotch and soda costs only 50 cents.
7. The Churchill Room, located amidships, is the largest showroom in West Coast cruising, with stage and sound facilities comparable to a London nightclub. There'll be topflight professional music for listening and dancing, as well as specialty cabaret performances.
8. Spirit of London will pack the social whirl of an ocean voyage into a few exciting days: the Captain's Cocktail Party, Gala Nights, parties, a Mexican Fiesta, feature movies, music, dancing, deck games, bridge, Calcutta sweeps, even midnight buffets in The Thames Restaurant.
9. Though by all means a lively ship, Spirit of London is also quiet. She's stabilized for smoothness and fully-carpeted throughout, so a little peacefulness is never hard to find.
10. You can spend from $370 to $1075 for Mexico cruise accommodations aboard Spirit of London and, at every price, get an outstanding value.
Individual cabins are furnished to the standards of a first-class hotel, with private shower or bath, multi-channel radio, even pushbutton telephones—no dial!
11. On March 10, April 7 & 11, Spirit of London will sail from Los Angeles on three- and four-day Fiesta Party Cruises—full-tilt London parties to Ensenada and back. Party Cruise fares run from $155 to $320.
12. All in all, Spirit of London adds an entirely new experience to Mexico, Alaska, and Party Cruising: the ongoing traditions and the animating spirit of the most liveable city in the world.
13. To find out how you can sample the Spirit of London, see any travel agent, or send in the coupon below.
I'd like to sample the Spirit of London. Please send me your free full-color brochure.

They All Have One Goal

—Irving Strickland and John McKay photos

A little music brightens up Liberal Party gatherings

. . . TO SEE THEIR CANDIDATE WIN

NDP campaign manager Margaret Hobbs studies literature

Whether operating out of a trailer on a busy highway or jammed shoulder to shoulder into a former taxi dispatch office, every campaign worker has one goal: to see his candidate win when British Columbia goes to the polls Aug. 30.

But although committee rooms are jammed with all kinds of people these days, it's not often you'll find candidates hanging around campaign headquarters. They're out beating the pavement and attending social functions and meetings, drumming up more votes.

As one campaign manager explained between a gulp of coffee and answering a telephone: "He's not going to win any votes sitting around headquarters — out there, meeting the public, well that's another thing."

There are 15 central headquarters, representing four political parties in the same number of ridings in the Greater Victoria area. And many of the candidates in the constituencies of Esquimalt and Saanich and the Islands have set up branch committee rooms, called drop-in centres in modern political terms.

Most of these drop-in centres serve as places to distribute literature and stage occasional workers meetings But the real action is taking place at central headquarters, where workers hand address and stuff envelopes, man phones and do the usual "joe" jobs necessary at election time.

Youth figures prominently in many of the campaigns, especially in those of Liberal candidates Davd Anderson (Victoria) and Don Joy (Esquimalt).

At any time of the day there are at least a dozen young strategists milling about Liberal leader Anderson's headquarters on Douglas St. But Joy can probably claim the youngest campaign manager in the province — 18-year-old Rob McGee.

"Some of the older people seem to find it hard to see I mean what I say because of my age," McGee said. "But I was chosen by the candidate because I had previous experience in federal campaigns."

There is definitely a "rah rah" aura at Joy's headquarters. Hand-painted snoopy dog posters cover the walls and McGee boasts that 45 per cent of the workers are under 19 years of age.

Another party that's taking advantage of the enthusiasm of youth is the Conservatives, especially in their committee rooms at 1672 Douglas St. Michael Hare, a 19-year-old University of Victoria student, is office manager.

Besides assigning work to volunteers, Hare spends a lot of time greeting curious passers-by. But he says there aren't that many young people involved in the Conservative campaign: "I'd guess the NDP would attract more of the youthful types."

But up at Victoria NDP offices on Blanshard Street, the youngest people involved would appear to be the three candidates — David Hobson and Kathleen Ruff in Victoria, and Gordon Neuls in Oak Bay.

However, Hobson claims more than half his workers are in the 19 to 25 age bracket.

It appears the report of the royal commission on the status of women has had an impact on the kind of work women are doing at election time. They're not just licking envelopes and making coffee — at least three of the local candidates have female campaign managers.

A former MLA for Revelstoke — Mrs. Margaret Hobbs — is in charge of the NDP campaigns in Victoria and Oak Bay. A veteran campaigner, Mrs. Hobbs was in charge of her late husband's bids for election in the B.C. interior and then her own in 1963.

"I didn't exactly go looking for the job," she admitted. "It was a matter of conscription when nobody else would volunteer."

Housewife Molly Phillips figures she's working at least 12 hours a day, six days a week, for NDP candidate Eric Sherwood in Saanich and the Islands.

Because her former taxi office headquarters are so small, Mrs. Phillips has most of her workers doing jobs out of their homes.

Her office is one of four situated along "headquarters strip" on Douglas St., between Hillside and Tolmie Avenue. Socred, Liberal and NDP candidates often get one another's mail because of these locations.

Oak Bay Liberal headquarters looks like an extension of a meeting of the Lady Laurier Club because, as manager Bob Hutchison puts it: "These women — and there are about 95 of them — are the real workers in this campaign for Mel Couvelier."

A brief tour through the rented seven-room house on Foul Bay shows how a residence can be used for political purposes. Back-room strategy can be relegated to back rooms away from the main traffic.

Next door, Dr. Howard McDiarmid, Social Credit candidate in Oak Bay, runs a similar campaign, although his rented house is a bit smaller.

Said Ron Burley, McDiarmid's official agent who came down from the candidate's former riding of Port Alberni to help campaign: "We figure we're in a pretty strategic spot being right across the road from the Oak Bay liquor store."

Burley, a boisterous young real estate and insurance man from Ucluelet, has injected some of the logging camp, backwoods fun into the Oak Bay campaign by driving a truck complete with loudspeakers blaring out raucous rock and country music.

NDP headquarters in Esquimalt has had a more unwelcome noise to deal with during the past days. A construction crew arrived outside Jim Gorst's headquarters on Esquimalt Road early in the week and began to dig up the road.

"We can't hear ourselves think or carry on a phone conversation," complained Mrs. Gorst, who spends most of her days manning the office.

"The only time the din quits is when the guys stop for coffee. Well, at least they know where they can come for that," she said, as two husky roadmen walked in to spend their coffee break at headquarters.

PENSIONERS

Inflation is the cancer of our time ask any pensioner or person on a fixed income. What will your nest egg be worth in 15 years?

Your Social Credit Gov't moved strongly to curb inflation by limiting to 6.5% salaries of teachers, M.L.A.s, Doctors, Nurses, Civil Servants, hospital workers and others. What reaction?

Teachers tried to raise a million dollar war chest to defeat us. PROTECT YOURSELF.

Doing The Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

Peter Church opens new Design Studio in Oak Bay . . .

Just learned that Peter Church . . . that enormously talented interior designer we've told you about previously . . . is in the process of renovating an old house at the corner of Oak Bay Ave. and Oliver and turning it into a design studio and showroom whose likes we bet you've never seen . . . unless you've visited some of the best of their kind in New York or other metropolitan cities! . . . Plans are for the new Oak Bay Design Studio to be ready next weekend . . . Meanwhile, their phone is working, so if you'd like to consult Mr. Church on any interior (or exterior) design matter, large or small . . . just call the number below . . . Getting back to the studio . . . it will offer a complete design service . . . The physical set-up is an entirely new concept in design studios . . . Not a store, though you'll be able to buy things, or order them . . . everything will be displayed in proper surroundings . . . co-ordinated in such a way as to set a mood . . . Furniture, lamps, draperies, carpets . . . absolutely everything related to a home . . . and this includes garden and patio furniture . . . will be found in the one location . . . Mr. Church, whose great passion is turning old and undistinguished houses into oases of charm and beauty . . . is doing just this for his new studio . . . If you're familiar with the building as it was . . . you'll soon be seeing a really good example of what can be done with an old place! . . . Oak Bay Design Studio, 2295 Oak Bay Avenue, 592-9322.

Leather is a city material now. Made up into fashions for day, cocktail and the evening hours.

For your winter cruise wardrobe . . .

Are you planning a cruise this winter? . . . A holiday in Hawaii or Mexico or some other balmy spot? . . . Then clothes are going to be important . . . and here's your opportunity to pick up an imported dress or suit now . . . at a quite substantial reduction! . . . Starting on Monday, Eaton's Import Room will be selling all their summer clothes . . . many of them imports from French Riviera designers who make such madly attractive cruise and resort fashions . . . at considerably reduced prices . . . There are dresses, both short and long . . . 2-piece cotton suits . . . Cotton knits . . . a few pure silks . . . Givenchy cotton and denim pant suits . . . Blouses and tops . . . to give you a broad idea of what's available . . . We saw several of these beautiful bargains when we visited the Import Room earlier this week . . . A blue denim suit from Tiktiner of Nice . . . A black fibran sun dress with big colored stylized flowers forming the pockets . . . a real fun dress! . . . A lovely silk shantung shadow plaid suit in shades of blue ranging from pale to navy . . . A yoked dress in white pique with printed flower trim . . . There's a good range of sizes in all these imported cruise clothes . . . so if you'd like something terrific . . . do go and do some browsing at . . . Eaton's Import Room, 382-7141, local 242.

A fine selection of Girard-Perregaux watches . . .

Girard-Perregaux is such a prestigious name among makers of fine Swiss watches that we find ourselves even writing it with a kind of awe! . . . Naturally enough, you'd expect to find Girard-Perregaux watches at de Goutiere Jewellers . . . who sell nothing but the best . . . and last Wednesday Mr. de G. showed us some beauties! . . . For men . . . an "engineer's" watch . . . a chronometer with a new high frequency movement and special shock proof and anti-magnetic gold filled case . . . $185. A "railroad" watch with 24-hour dial . . . extremely accurate movement . . . in a stainless steel or gold filled case . . . (Most of the major railroads run on Girard Perregaux time!) . . . The ultimate in a man's watch is the 18k solid gold watch with a very nice clear dial . . . $395 . . . and another attractive man's watch has a brown dial like Tiger's Eye . . . $150 . . . As for the ladies' watches they're perfectly beautiful! . . . One 18k gold square fits into a textured gold bracelet less than an inch wide . . . $595 . . . An adorable little watch with a green dial has a narrow textured white gold bracelet . . . $175 for this . . . and a more traditional shape . . . 14k solid gold oval with textured bracelet . . . clear, easy-to-read dial . . . is priced at $425 . . . If you're looking for a fine watch . . . you simply can't beat . . . de Goutierre, Jeweller, Ltd., 2524 Estevan Ave., 592-3224.

A world shortage of hides means that shoes, gloves, handbags and all leather good will cost more this year.

Skirts and sweaters with real style . . .

There's certainly nothing dull about the Jaeger skirts and sweaters which arrived at Wilson's this past week! . . . Even if you're a woman who doesn't particularly fancy herself in a sweater or blouse and skirt . . . we urge you to look at them and maybe try on a couple . . . you may just get the surprise of your life . . . We love the very lightweight black wool sweater which hugs the waist and has the very new dolman sleeves . . . Looks terribly chic when teamed with the little black doubleknit gored skirt! . . . Other new Jaeger skirts include a camelhair A-line buttoning down the front, finished with a narrow tie belt . . . Two different styles in charcoal flannel . . . one buttoning down the side, the other an A-line with stitched detailing . . . There's a well-fitting . . . and slenderizing . . . brown and beige tweed skirt cut straight in the back and on the bias in front . . . Another tweed in blues and browns with narrow suede belt . . . Camel color cardigans have little collar and fasten to the neck with pretty rose-shaped buttons . . . Pullovers include one style with small buttons on one shoulder and trimming the wide cuffs . . . A collared pullover buttons part way down the front for either a high or V neck . . . These are just the first of he Jaegers . . . more are expected and may even be here by now . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7171.

Foot flatters by D'Antonelli . . .

We think the new fall models of D'Antonelli shoes we saw at Munday's this week are real winners! . . . Smart, foot-flattering . . . very well-fitting and comfortable . . . (most models have elasticized top lines to grip the arch and prevent sagging) . . . these Canadian-made shoes are designed by an Italian . . . with the well-known Italian style flare . . . and moderately priced as shoes go nowadays . . . ($28 to $39) . . . A classic suede pump in navy, black or brown suede piped with leather, has higher, slimmer heel to accentuate graceful ankles . . . A genuine cobra slipon in a patchwork design . . . multi-color shades of brown and beige . . . delighted us . . . Matching handbag for this as well as some of the other D'Antonelli shoes . . . There's a smart suede and patent kid walking shoe with spectator toe and Gucci trim . . . brown and beige or all black . . . Two very pretty and dressy black suede shoes . . . one with nylon lace on the vamp . . . the other with a wide embroidery strap across the instep, gently rounded toe and lower heel . . . Finally, a lady-like kid pump with side trim . . . in black, brown and navy . . . with the slimmer heel you're going to be seeing much more of this fall . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

A romantic Italian evening dress is a light blue and white kaleidoscope chiffon, accented by a little ruffled sleeveless jacket, in fine white wool.

Buy your tablecloths by the yard! . . .

Dining with friends a few nights ago, we couldn't keep our eyes off the beautiful colored tablecloth . . . Seldom have we seen a more attractive table! . . . Turned out our friends bought the tablecloth material by the yard at the Lighthouse . . . It's a drip-dry, acrilic fabric from Norway which looks and feels just like linen . . . and is a cinch to launder . . . Comes in perfectly beautiful colors and patterns . . . All you do is buy the length you need and hem the ends . . . We saw a lot more of this tablecloth-by-the-yard when we visited the Lighthouse yesterday . . . They have 18" wide place mat material too . . . and another type of permanent press linen and cotton fabric . . . as well as some lovely round and oval cloths, edged in the same color as the pattern . . . All these are unbeatable for color fastness . . . look like new after repeated washings . . . and never need even the touch of an iron . . . Know what looks wonderful on these table cloths? The Ruska dinnerware from Finland . . . same stoneware as the Mediaeval Inns use . . . and now available at the Lighthouse . . . It's deep brown in color . . . fits well into any decor . . . Do be sure and see it at the Lighhouse . . . And by the way, don't climb those stairs . . . take the elevator . . . much easier on the legs! . . . The Lighthouse, 1005 Broad St., 383-6633.

When a woman is shopping for a perfume, she would rely on her subconscious, her intuition . . . and buy what she likes.

Eaton's playing Santa Claus to newlyweds . . .

We hear that Eaton's have been handing out literally dozens of free gifts . . . not to mention Bridal Shower gift packs worth over $18 . . . to brides-to-be and happy couples during the past month . . . but we also hear that some people just can't believe all this largesse is really being given away free, . . . Well, we'll repeat it once again . . . and swear on a stack of bibles if necessary . . . There are absolutely NO strings attached to these gifts . . . Nothing to buy . . . nothing to sign! . . . If you're getting married . . . or know someone who is . . . just fill in Bridal Shower coupon and deposit it in one of the boxes you'll find in the linen, housewares, china and electrical departments . . . The bride will then receive an invitation to visit Eaton's Bridal registry where she'll be given two free gifts . . . and invited to fill in a preference list of wedding gifts she'd like to receive . . . Once the wedding's over, the newlyweds will get a further invitation to go together to the Bridal Registry to pick up their Bridal Shower gift pack . . . a big box containing more than 40 top quality name products worth over $18 . . . They don't have to buy a single solitary thing . . . much less place themselves under any sort of obligation to Eaton's . . . So don't procastinate . . . get that coupon in and put yourself on the receiving end of some mighty nice gifts! . . . Eaton's Bridal Registry, 382-7141, loc. 373.

Old Jokes, Songs With Pub Therapy

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

When it comes to elderly patients, some medical authorities believe a pint a day keeps the doctor away.

Several nursing homes and hospitals giving long-term care to the elderly in eastern Canada are now offering beer and wine to patients in the convivial atmosphere of an English pub.

Part of a lounge or sunroom is set aside and decorated in the traditional old-English style familiar to Victoria residents.

Nurses act as bar maids and encourage social activities such as group singing, cards and darts. So far, doctors and nurses are pleased with results.

Dr. Mary MacDonald, head of the geriatric unit at the Nova Scotia Hospital in Dartmouth, wrote a report on the introduction of pub therapy in her hospital for the May edition of the Canadian Nurse.

She writes: "The model is supposed to be as close as possible to the English pub, where socilaization, rather than drinking, is emphasized.

"Edlerly people in institutions tend to become lethargic and withdrawn, and spend much time just sitting. If there is a set time of the day for a small group to go to the pub for drinks and talk, there is then more interest in living.

"Old jokes, old songs, and social graces are remembered. People revive interest in past events and become involved in the present. Wits are sharpened and depressions lifted. A group spirit emerges."

Dr. MacDonald reports that at first patients would gulp their drinks and "sit and look at one another." But after two or three weeks, patients lost their apathy and were joking and laughing together.

The doctor says a romance flourished and a joke-telling competition developed.

"However, as these activities can get out of hand with 80-year-olds as easily as with 18-year-olds, dampeners had to be applied as needed."

Results of pub therapy in her hospital have led Dr. MacDonald to recommend "controlled pub sociotherapy with no reservations for all institutions for the aged."

So far, no nursing homes or hospitals in Victoria have introduced pub therapy, but many serve drinks to patients on an individual basis.

Mrs. K. D. Greenhalgh, acting superintendent at Glengarry Private Hospital, says certain patients are supplied with alcoholic beverages by their relatives.

"We give it to them if they wish it, but it's not routine for everyone," she said.

Mrs. Greenhalgh says the staff sometimes asks a doctor to order a drink before meals or at bedtime to give a patient an appetite or help him sleep.

Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, administrator at Sandringham Hospital, says liquor is given to patients with the doctor's permission.

She thinks a glass of sherry or port at the end of the day relaxes elderly patients and helps them sleep.

"I'd rather give this than pills anytime," she said. "We certainly don't let it get out of hand."

Mrs. Reynolds says patients are served a nightcap in the living room while they watch television.

An official of the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service says that so far none of the hospitals in B.C. have suggested pub therapy.

He said there was not much research on the subject of alcohol as a socializer, but thinks "it would perk up appetites."

An official of the Veteran's Hospital says sherry is served at monthly joint birthday parties and some patients are allowed to visit the legion hall for drinks two or three times a month.

Herbert Cumberbirch, a retired teacher living at Sandringham Private Hospital, always has a bottle of beer first thing in the morning at about 6 a.m.

"I pour the beer into the glass quickly so the gas escapes and drink slowly," Cumberbirch said.

He has another pint last thing at night.

"Alcohol can be a food if you treat it properly," he said. "If you obley the commandment — 'be ye temperate in all things' — then you can't go wrong. "It's idiotic to say there is evil in alcohol or drugs. The evil is in the creature who can't control himself."

Dennis Johnson, 86, also a Sandringham resident, still likes a glass of beer once in a while, usually in the evening before bed. Johnson, who farmed 2,000 acres on the prairies, says: "I've had my share of beer in my time."

A local physician, who sometimes orders a drink at bedtime or before meals for elderly patients, says he supports the use of alcohol by the aged in moderation.

"Elderly people often don't tolerate barbituates well," he said.

The doctor would support pub therapy for nursing home and rest home residents provided participation was voluntary.

Bell Circuits Overloaded

TORONTO (CP)—Bell Canada is considering reducing or doing away with the long distance discount on Sundays because of a problem it has caused.

A Bell spokesman said Friday that so many people call at the same time that circuits become overloaded, making it difficult for the calls to be completed.

The peak hours, he said, are from noon to 2 p.m. "just after people have returned from church or have gotten up after sleeping in."

Bell is looking at ways of making callers more aware that the three-quarters discount on direct dial calls is in effect from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Failing that, the discount may have to be "altered," the spokesman said.

Hitting Back Helped

DEAR ABBY: I had the same problem as the wife whose husband kicked or slapped her when he lost his temper. I compare that problem with that of a puppy who developed the habit of messing in the house because he got away with it. Any attempt to discipline him on the following morning was useless because by then he had forgotten what he'd done.

I decided that the next time my husband struck me I would pick up the nearest heavy object and let him have it. Unfortunately for him, the last time he hit me I was frying eggs in a cast iron skillet, I'll admit, it was awfully drastic, but as I said, that was the last time he ever laid a hand on me.

How would you have handled it? —"L".

DEAR L: I don't approve of violence. I'd have hit him with something lighter but more lasting. Like a divorce decree.

□

DEAR ABBY: I have caught my ten-year-old child stealing cookies and candy in the grocery store. I have immediately made her return the stolen items to the store-clerk or manager.

On these occasions I have been completely floored when the managers and clerks smile and say, "Oh, that's okay!"

Abby, please print this letter and point out the possible damage done when adults assume an attitude of acceptance under such circumstances. Discouraged.

DEAR DISCOURAGED: Here's your letter with my added plea: Don't minimize the seriousness of stealing. Today a cookie . . . tomorrow a car!

□

DEAR ABBY: You recently published several letters on the question of whether a child should call a stepmother "Mother."

Most were against it. I think this is worth mentioning: If I am not mistaken, when Abraham Lincolns said, "All that I hope to be, I owe to my angel mother," he was referring to his stepmother.—Reader.

DEAR READER: Right on! And thanks to the Cinderella fairy tale, what happened to the stepmother image shouldn't happen to a stepdog.

□

DEAR ABBY: I recently read an article stating that there has been a tremendous increase in wives requesting prescriptions for tranquilizers. I wonder if there could be any connection between that and this new four-day work week the men are going in for?

I wish some efficiency expert would figure out how much more work a wife has to do on the days her husband is home all day. Including the picking up after all the projects he starts but never finishes.

And maybe Women's Lib will get a law passed making it legal to kill a husband who says, "Ah ha, just as I suspected. You women have nothing to do but sit around all day."

DEAR GAIL: Ha! That will be the day. You could never keep the men out!

Impotency Found

ROME (AP) — There are about 2,000 electromagnetic machine tools in Italy which may be causing impotency to workers handling them and authorities are investigating, a recent government official reported.

"Our technical and medical offices have found a certain degree of impotency in workers who have to work near these machines," said Flavio Vignudelli of the office for the protection of workers' health.

Vignudelli acknowledged he had no conclusive evidence that electromagnetic machine tools were to blame.

Papers 'Keep Her —In Her Place'

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Organization for Women cited a diaper manufacturer Friday for advertising a "positive image of women." But elsewhere, there were pans among the plaudies in NOW's annual survey of the media's portrayal of women.

The feminist group, in a study of advertising, television, magazines and other media, issued Positive Image of Women awards, Keep Her in Her Place awards and favorable citations.

No awards were given to newspapers, which N.O.W. said "continue to reflect stereotyped women through men's eyes."

Among the favorable awards were:

Advertising — To Procter and Gamble Co. for a diaper ad showing a small girl over the caption: "The future president of the United States deserves a drier bottom."

Magazines — To Ms., the new feminist magazine.

WOMEN'S MARCH ATTRACTS MEN

NEW YORK (AP) — College students, engineers, husbands and fathers, and some self-declared homosexuals joined several thousand marchers down New York's Fifth Avenue on Friday in the third annual celebration of Women's Equal Rights Day.

"As a management consultant, I have seen what is in essence the under-utilization of one-half the people of the world—women must get their share of power in business and government," said Dr. Harold Lazarus, a professor at New York University.

Dr. Lazarus, standing under a sign that read "Restore Matriarchy" was one of the first men to assemble with hundreds of women before the start of the march. Lazarus, a member of the National Organization for Women, explained that his wife was unable to attend because she was watching their children perform in a play at camp.

Henry Wherry was one of the few male marchers in a conservative business suit. "I've always believed in women's rights," he said. "I think the women in the movement are the most attractive of all women. They're vibrant, intelligent, and interesting. I don't understand why more men don't support their cause."

New Twist Added to Mystery of Crabb

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — When Commander Kenneth Crabb began his fatal dive under the hull of a Soviet warship, he may have been surprised by six heavily-armed Russian frogmen awaiting him in the depths of Portsmouth harbor.

Crabb, a crack naval diver with an outstanding war record, was assigned by the British intelligence services to examine the vessel which brought Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev and Marshall Nikolai Bulganin to Britain on a state visit in 1956.

At 7:30 a.m. April 19, he dove into the chill water about a mile off the starboard bow of the destroyer Ordzhonikidze anchored at Portsmouth.

It was the last time he was seen alive by the British.

His body, still clad in a rubber diving suit but with head and hands torn off, was found by fishermen in a small river not far from Portsmouth June 9, 1957.

The examining coroner was unable to say how Crabb met his death but many assumed he had been caught in the ship's propeller. Others contended that the body was not that of Crabb.

A spate of books and articles since have argued that he is alive and well in Russia. Articles appear intermittently predicting his imminent return to Britain.

But convicted spy Harry Houghton, in the latest book dealing with the mystery, says Crabb was captured by Soviet frogmen as soon as he reached the Ordzhonikidze.

He was taken aboard ship by his captors and died of a heart attack during questioning, says Houghton in his book, Operation Portland, published here by Rupert Hart-Davis.

Reviewers generally have attached major significance to the account given by Houghton, a close friend of Gordon Lonsdale, a fellow spy for the Soviets who masqueraded as a Canadian.

Both men were convicted in 1961, along with Houghton's friend, Ethel Gee, and Peter and Helen Kroger. The Krogers and Lonsdale were exchanged later for British agents captured in Russia. Lonsdale has since died and Houghton and Ethel Gee, now married, were released in 1970.

Houghton, 67, says the Crabb expedition went wrong because of a casual conversation overheard by himself and another agent shortly before in a Devon pub.

CASUAL TALK RELAYED

He says the wife of an off-duty naval officer from Portsmouth spoke of her husband's distress when he had learned that his superiors might call off an extremely important diving mission.

This conversation was quickly reported to leading Soviet agents in Britain who immediately suspected a British plan to sabotage or spy on the Ordzhonikidze.

Khrushchev, says Houghton, hoped to capture Crabb, hold him aboard the Russian vessel and humiliate the British by demanding that they come and retrieve him. Instead, when Crabb had been taken aboard he suffered a heart attack and died almost immediately.

The Russians then decided, says Houghton, to tie Crabb's body to the ship's hull with a light rope which they believed would wear thin and break a mile or so from Portsmouth, releasing Crabb to the sharks.

But the body became entangled in the propeller almost immediately and drifted back toward shore, Houghton contends.

That Funny Little Noise Could Be Key to Savings

VANCOUVER (CP) — There are two people every motorist hates to see.

One is the policeman who waves you to a halt after a driving infraction and the other is the man who stands in the entrance to the auto repair shop, making cryptic notations on a clipboard and muttering a litany involving obscure automobile parts and impossibly high repair bills.

There's no way to avoid the policeman except by safe driving, but Brian Strothers says it's simple to avoid car repair headaches, using a little common sense and some preventive medicine.

Mr. Strothers, a service manager for a local auto repair company, said most car owners are surprisingly knowledgeable about how their cars operate but persist in abusing them until any repair job is a major one, with consequent high bills.

"Too many times I have seen customers come in here with a giant-size problem and I ask them, 'How long has it been making that noise,'" Mr. Strothers said.

"And they say 'Oh, about three months but now it's really bad.' If they'd come in three months ago when the noise first started, it might have cost them a couple of bucks. Now they're looking at $50 or $100 or a lot more.

Also worth attention, Mr. Strothers said, are the warning lights on the dashboard—and the motorist who ignores them is asking for trouble.

"They see the generator light's on or the oil warning light and they see the car's still running so they just keep on driving because they figure nothing's wrong," Mr. Strothers said.

"They're the ones who are wrong."

He also has difficulty in figuring out the owner who purchases a new car and observes the manufacturer's specifications for maintenance only until the warranty expires.

"Then he just forgets about maintenance, or only has it done when the car is in such bad condition that it will hardly move. That's not terribly bright because the car still needs the maintenance whether it's in warranty or not."

Mr. Strothers' advice is for car owners to read and pay attention to the owner's handbook for their particular car.

And each week, he said, motorists should perform a 10-minute check on their car.

"Lift up the hood, check the water in the radiator, the brake fluid, the oil and the water level in the battery cells.

"You can't rely on the service station attendant to do it for you. Too many of them don't. And it doesn't take long for a battery to run down. You can save a lot of dollars for only 10 or 15 minutes a week."

Mr. Strothers' least favorite customer, however, is the do-it-yourself diagnostican. This is the man who doesn't allow the mechanic to assess what's wrong with the car but prescribes the cure himself.

"A customer comes in and says, 'Replace the wheel bearing.' So we replace the wheel bearing and he drives his car away. Ten minutes later he's back.

"He's mad. He says the squeak is still there and we haven't fixed his car. What we've done is exactly what he told us to do. If he'd told us it was the squeak that was bothering him we'd have looked for the cause of that and not been fooling around with the wheel bearing."

The way to trouble-free car repairs, Mr. Strothers said, is to find the name of a repair shop people trust, by talking to friends and acquaintances, and then sticking with that shop.

"Also always remember that a car, after your house, is the second most important and expensive purchase you'll make in a lifetime. It should be worth a few minutes out of your time each week to take care of it."

WORLD CRIMINAL COURT SET

BOSTON (UPI) — An international criminal court will be in full operation within two years to try crimes that individual nations find politically sticky — such as skyjackings, drug smuggling and kidnapping of foreign officials.

"An international approach is the only alterntive to getting countries off the hook in these situations," said Dr. Robert Woetzel, a professor of international politics and law at Boston College who is the president of the Foundation for the Establishment of an International Criminal Court.

"If you have an international criminal court," he said, "then the countries need not take a position on the political ideological aspect." This, he said, allows them to save face and diffuses the political problems.

Last fall, 35 scholars and lawyers gathered at the first international criminal law conference at the Johnson convention on international crimes which will open Sept. 1 at the Rockefeller Foundation on Lake Como, Italy. Another conference will follow in Wingspread, Wis.

The drafts for international criminal guidelines and for the establishment of an international criminal court will be presented for analysis and revision at the Lake Como conference, Woetzel said.

Focus of the conference will be on new offences such as skyjacking, kidnapping of diplomats, criminal pollution endangering the health and safety of manking and internationally organized drug traffic as well as the more classic crimes of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and crimes against peace.

"Right now," Woetzel said in an interview, "countries don't know what to do. We're dealing here with probably the most crucial problem in the international sphere today in deterring individuals who are upsetting the balance of relationships in one form or another."

These individuals, he said, "are spreading terror and disease, drug addiction, etc., and in this respect the corporate entities which are known as states and governments find themselves relatively helpless.

"Essentially, what you have here then is a kind of a vacuum where countries are unable for one reason or another to act concerning the most heinous crimes," he said, "and when they do act —if they do act — they get themselves caught and they are accused of being unfair or partial or politically prejudiced."

Woetzel said Bangladesh will send its chief prosecutor to the conference to defend its plan to try captured Pakistani officers for war crimes growing out of the December war in which the new nation won its independence from Pakistan.

"There is also a very good possibility that allegations regarding war crimes in Vietnam, committed by both sides, will be solved" through the international court.

The International Airline Pilots' Association was looking to the conference for action to deter hijackings, which often involve criminal extortion for allegedly political purposes, he said.

"These political aspects make the situation almost insoluble at this time," he said.

"There must be some options whereby individuals can be treated fairly, receive humane treatment and at the same time there must be a uniform standard of justice that is administered everywhere."

Woetzel, who has been working towards the goal of an international court for 20 years, said he anticipated that by 1974 its mechanism would be in full operation. "We anticipate also that complaints will be received as soon as the guidelines are finalized," he said.

Sierra Club Puts Victoria Area Candidates on Spot

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The Sierra Club has surveyed the 20 Greater Victoria candidates in the provincial election to determine their stand in five regional environment issues.

Gordon Price, Tom Gibson and Mrs. Eve Howden, who undertook the poll, conclude that Mother Nature, like motherhood, has just about unanimous support on the "easy" issues.

But when environment problems present "crunch" questions for candidates, "old mother earth takes a back seat to the almighty dollar," says Sierra chairman Rick Careless in summary.

Of the candidates — five each from the Conservatives, Liberals, NDP and Social Credit — only one, Howard McDairmid, Socred candidate in Oak Bay, declined answering.

★ ★ ★

McDiarmid explained Friday that questions asked were far too involved to be answered briefly. He said there was no way, for example, he was going to comment on what the future should hold for the Gulf Islands without going to talk to the islanders.

The Sierra survey's first question:

Eighteen of the 20 candidates gave "yes" answers, most of them emphatic. Some, like Liberal leader David Anderson and Hugh Curtis, Conservative candidate in Saanich and the Islands, pointed out they had been working on it for some time.

★ ★ ★

Waldo Skillings, one of the Socred candidates in Victoria, said being a cabinet minister prevents him from commenting on what is a policy issue. These issues take time, he added.

McDiarmid, while he did not answer questions, referred the survey team to his previous press statements. They chose this one from the Alberni Valley Times of Feb. 3, 1971:

"The recreational potential of the three lakes (in the Nitinat Triangle) are zero. The trees on the lakes' watershed should be cut down."

Question: Should forest companies, holding land under a tree farm certificate, be allowed to sell their land for real estate? (Note: under a tree farm certificate, the forest company's private land is assessed on it's timber crop, not the market value of the land.)

Candidates were almost unanimous in saying "no." They felt, most of them strongly, that no timber company should have had the advantage of a tax break on land for logging and still have the profit potential in that land for real estate development.

★ ★ ★

Some suggested payment of a penalty, perhaps the total of back taxes, if land use was to change.

But Don Joy, Liberal candidate in Esquimalt, said if the law of the land says the company owns the land, the rights of the owner must be respected and there should be no retroactive legislation. Proper zoning should give sufficient protection, he said.

Question: What should be the eventual goal of a greenbelt program?

The survey team found all candidates agreed with the need for preservation and expansion of the greenbelt program, particularly within urban areas.

Herb Bruch, Social Credit candidate in Esquimalt, emphasized three categories: leaving land as it was, putting it into trees and keeping farmland as such.

Jim Gorst, NDP candidate in Esquimalt, emphasized protection of shoreline and adjacent upland while Edith Gunning, Conservative candidate in Victoria, laid stress on protecting stream and river banks.

★ ★ ★

All NDP candidates favored strong control by the provincial government to prevent exploitation of land prices by private speculators.

David Anderson and Curtis said greenbelts were primarily for recreation. Greenbelts and preservation of farmlands were two separate but equally necessary matters.

Social Credit candidates maintained that greenbelts should not supercede the parks program but should just retain open space close to built-up areas.

Question: What role do you think the province should play in a recycling program?

All candidates strongly agreed some form of provincial assistance was desirable in support of recycling. Differences emerged when they considered the degree of involvement.

On one hand, John Williams, the Conservative candidate in Esquimalt; Gorst, Kathleen Ruff, NDP candidate in Victoria, and Eric Sherwood, NDP candidate in Saanich and the Islands, proposed recycling be paid for and run by the province.

Foster Isherwood, Socred candidate in Saanich and the Island, looked further to the national level and suggested both federal and provincial governments contribute to a recycling program.

Question: There has been considerable talk recently that growth (economic, population, use of natural resources, etc.) be stabilized and / or controlled. In your opinion, what effects could this policy have on the economy of B.C.?

Here is how the survey team summarized each candidate's answer:

In Esquimalt riding:

Bruch (SC): If we cut growth we would remain just a resource exporting province. We need a balance among growth, population and economic need.

Gorst (NDP): The people themselves will have to demand such a program of zero growth. Such a program will require a different economic system, one not based on profit.

Jiy (Liberal): Planning is the essential thing and the only thing we can do about growth.

Williams (PC): I could not say what effect (zero growth) would have but all people will have to come to grips with it sooner or later or we will cease to exist.

In Oak Bay riding:

Couvelier (Liberal): We have enough land mass to handle more people. Rather than zero growth we must look at population dispersion, increasing service and technological industries rather than resource industries.

McDiarmid (SC): I decline to comment.

Neuls (NDP): It's not feasible as long as the population increases. We must have zero population growth before we restrain the economy.

Wallace (PC): Zero growth is not possible. Modified growth and intelligent use of resources should slow the whole thing down and help solve the problem.

In Saanich and the Islands riding:

★ ★ ★

Malcolm Anderson (Liberal): I don't think you can have a zero growth rate. Natural resources are job-creating and on balance I am probably keen to see those resources being utilized.

Curtis (PC): I do not have an easy answer. There already is in society at least an awareness that unrestricted uncontrolled growth is damaging.

Isherwood (SC): Not to grow is to die and our economy would die if we do not have growth. Sensible controls should preserve our heritage.

Sherwood (NDP): I don't think you can legislate against human growth. But I don't think the progress we have now is real progress.

In Victoria riding:

David Anderson (Liberal): Growth for growth's sake is an absurd proposal, especially unrestrained growth. The effect of zero growth will be tremendously complex on our economy, resource use and transportation.

★ ★ ★

Gunning (PC): I don't know whether you could really impliment it. The attempt should be to direct growth.

Hobson (NDP): With the unemployment situation, a program opposed to growth would have detrimental effects. But we should encourage less consumption of electricity and stop building dams.

Morrison (SC): I don't see how we can limit growth. As westerners we have been very short-sighted by nature. We've got to face the problem of growth but I don't know how we're going to do it.

Ruff (NDP): The government must answer the individual needs of people who require independence, jobs and income. But this can be done without tremendous stress on increased growth.

Savage (PC): There is no way you are going to stop growth. It's controlled growth we have to look to.

★ ★ ★

Skillings (SC): My personal view is that I'm totally opposed to the zero growth proposition. We must grow because as the population grows, so must the economy.

Careless makes this point at the conclusion of the survey summary.

"All the candidates, regardless of party, showed their interest in environmental issues. Yet only in the upcoming session will those elected be given a chance to show if their commitment is more than hot air.

"The public, with help of groups such as the Sierra Club, must be ready to ensure that these promises, as stated now, are carried out by those who make the grade."

PARENTS SUED BY DYING MAN

VAN NUYS, Calif. — A 21-year-old man who is dying of cancer has filed a restraining order in a court here to keep his parents from saving money meant for his medical expenses.

Michael Strabac, who, doctors testified, is suffering from an incurable form of cancer, stated in the temporary order filed Thursday that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Strabac, have taken $60,000 from Strabac's $100,000 settlement damages received in a lawsuit last February. Strabac's father is an unemployed truck driver.

Strabac, in the five-day malpractice suit before Judge William Rea in Van Nuys, had charged he consulted Dulian in February, 1971, for a diagnosis of a dark, infected bleeding mole on Strabac's right shoulder, and the malignancy was not diagnosed until November, 1971.

During the ensuing suit a doctor testified that the mole, a malignant melonoma, has spread, and that Strabac has only a few months' life expectancy.

A hearing has been set for Tuesday, Sept. 5, to see if the temporary restraining order against Strabac's parents will remain in effect until a trial can be held.

Pill Popping Curbs Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Doctors and advertisers need to show more responsibility in curbing the worrisome North American phenomenon of a "pill-popping population," says Dr. J. D. Wallace, secretary general of the Canadian Medical Association.

In an article in the association's Journal, Dr. Wallace says advertising promotes the idea that people can take a "pill, potion or beverage," then "sail through life on a euphoric pink cloud without a care in the world."

"Many of those who have attempted to achieve that perpetual happy state on a do-it-yourself basis have suffered disastrous consequences."

Dr. Wallace said that a great majority of the products are relatively safe but there are two factors that introduce complications.

One was a tendency for individuals to experiment with a variety of medications at the same time. For example, a person might take a pep-up pill, then later another to go to sleep, another to "keep regular," and another for something else.

"Heaven only knows what confused physiological messages are transmitted throughout the body by some of these self-administered medicinal conglomerates."

FALL INTO TRAP

But another, equally dangerous complication is that some doctors help people to "fall into the pill-popping trap," he said. This may happen because people now come expecting to get a prescription or because the doctor now has such a wide variety of useful drugs available.

"We now have at our disposal, on prescription only, a wide variety of emotional, psychological and physiological crutches that will at least temporarily relieve the symptoms that trouble a patient and perhaps improve his capacity to function as an effective member of society."

To control the over-the-counter preparations, Dr. Wallace recommends a code of ethical advertising and control over the quality and quantity of promotional exposure.

And he urges doctors not to "drift" into a situation where the use of drugs is harmful.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

Pastor's Critical Rerun

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

A few weeks ago I officiated at a church service that was televised, and a few days later I was able to view the tape of it, all in vivid, living color.

It was an instructive experience, and a little humbling. I appeared somewhat fatter than I had been assuming myself to be, especially in the jowls, which seemed to swing just a little when I got excited at one place in the sermon. And I noticed that I displayed, here and there, a bit more pomposity than I thought myself capable of.

But most of my blushes were caused by some of my little voice flourishes, particularly during the sermon. I don't think I have a pulpit drone, like the parson in Gray's Elegy who "hums his droning flight."

My flat Prairie voice came through — well, flat. I enunciated quite clearly — and a minister should strive for clarity in enunciation if he is to be readily heard by the worshippers.

But here and there I put in some curious little precocities and liquidities of enunciation, as if this former student at the collegiate in North Battleford, Saskatchewan, was trying to kid the customers that he had gone to a fancy private school in the sophisticated east.

Perhaps speech affectation is an occupational affliction of the clergy. I have been told that in some of our theological colleges speech instruction encourages a certain preciousness in modes of speech. Some curious vocal confections came out of this. One of my friends, a native of Manitoba and educated there, begins the Lord's Prayer with "Owah Fawthuh".

We ministers do unwittingly slip into speech habits that seem rather precious and elocutionary. (Bernard Shaw once wrote, "the elocutionary man is the most insufferable of human beings." But, if I may judge from a recording, Shaw himself was inclined to elocutionary preciousness in public speech.)

For a long time I have been amused by some of my minister friends whose pulpit mode of speech is conspicuously more refined than their mode in ordinary conversation.

Some of the younger ones go in for those marshmallow tones which, I suspect, they learn from academics in the literary disciplines. One of my friends displays a strange, sharp hooting when he reaches the high points of a sermon: He reminds me a little of the actress described by Kenneth Tynan as "shaking her voice at the audience like a tiny fist."

Another, when preaching, has what perhaps can be called soap-opera stammer — but, then, he was active in amateur theatricals when he was younger.

I do hope that you churchgoers will not judge us ministers too harshly when we show our vocal confections. Not many of us are trying to do a con-job with them. Perhaps we're overcompensating for personal and professional deficiencies — and surely you can be as kind with us as you are with others who suffer disabilities.

COLLEGE STANDARD VITAL

By WILLIAM V. SHANNON

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Throughout history, the old and the middle-aged have tried to reach across the generations and share the benefits of their hard-won experience with the young. It is an effort which can never entirely succeed. Not all of yesterday's wisdom exactly fits today's problems. Each of us has to make some mistakes on his own. Yet not all of the mistakes of the past have to be repeated. Indeed, human progress, if it is possible at all, is possible only because we benefit from the incremental wisdom of the past.

★ ★ ★

In that belief, I recently attacked the unhealthy trend toward the intellectual devitalization of higher education. I argued that if this trend is not reversed, colleges may be producing not educated men and women but a swelling tribe of new barbarians.

The column evoked emphatic agreement from many professors across the country who feel themselves beleaguered by colleagues, administrators and students, all clamoring for what is seemingly new, innovative and relevant. But some younger readers took particular exception to my statement that college students "rarely know what is in their own intellectual best interest for the whole of their lives."

Determining what should be taught in college requires perspective and a measure of wisdom. The opinions and desires of undergraduates should be taken into account, but they cannot be decisive. As philosophper Ralph Barton Perry used to say when he was arguing against the unrestricted elective system at Harvard, "Students do not know what it is that they do not know."

My defense of required courses in a range of different fields is based in part of my own experience. When I was an undergraduate, my dominant interests were literature and history. If I had been asked to vote on abolishing two years of laboratory sciences as a requirement, I would have been first in line to vote "yes." How was I to know at 17 that nuclear scientists were then harnessing atomic energy? Insofar as I understand nuclear power, radar, television and other technical forces which shape our world, I owe much today to that year spent studying physics.

How was I to know that as I grew older I would develop an interest in conservation? Much of what I know about the physical environment I learned in a year studying geology, another course I thought tedious at the time. Now, in my 25th reunion year my regret is not that I was required to take two years of science by a faculty which knew more about what was good for me intellectually than I did. Instead, I regret that I did not also study biology to gain a better understanding of the biosphere.

Yet one academic writes that "forcing students to learn things has been shown to have a stultifying effect on their individual growth and development." When professors make intellectually irresponsible statements of this kind, no one can blame young students for wanting to do what is fun and avoiding courses which are difficult or not immediately appealing.

"One could as well argue that it is "stultifying" to earn one's living or to fulfill one's family responsibilities or to care for the sick and the aged. Each of these human necessities involves doing much that is not "relevant" to what a person might really like to be doing.

This destructive educational trend is part of a more widespread and corrosive hedonism. Through most of history, only the idle rich could devote themselves to seeking pleasure. Now in this richest of nations with its private swimming pools, its two-car and three-car families and its rising standard of living, millions of people can envisage lives given over wholly or in large part to pleasure.

Moral philosopers have always observed the empitiness and ultimate frustration of lives which are lived according to the hedonistic principle. Work which taxes one's highest intellectual or physical powers, sacrifice for one's ideals and sharing with others, these are much more likely routs to personal fulfillment than the direct pursuit of pleasure.

The young with their instinctive and admirable idealism know that best of all. In their best moments, they can do prodigious amounts of work, sacrifice themselves and share unreservedly. But they also have the freedom to be hedonists.

Thus, it is all the more tragic when coleges are afriaid of holding students to rigorous standards of exact knowledge, of inculcating in them a respect for the past and a knowledge of its wisdom and requiring of them civility and discipline. If colleges become a fun-filled fantasy world where students only study what interests them where grades disappear and standards go slack, then colleges are conforming to the worst of the larger society rather than preserving and encouraging the best. The young who should be challenged and tempered are the losers.

Rim Park Cost Soars

Cost of acquiring land for Pacific Rim National Park has doubled in two years, says Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan.

In addition, federal attempts to persuade Indians to leave a number of small reserves have not proved successful. Some of the reserves have not been used permanently for years, others are empty.

Kiernan said cost of acquiring private land for the park, mostly in the Long Beach area, has climbed to $8 million from $4 million since negotiations began two years ago.

He said the problems are not insurmountable and with patience and perseverance he expected they could be overcome and compromise reached "in a couple of months."

Realtors In Seminar

The Vancouver Island Real Estate Board has announced it will stage a four-day seminar for its members in Parksville this fall.

More than 160 real estate salesmen are expected to attend the sessions, co-sponsored by the Victoria Real Estate Board, at the Island Hall Hotel between Oct. 30 and Nov. 2.

Wonderful World of Animals

By FRANK MILLER

Dear DR. MILLER: When it gets really hot my angora mice really seem to suffer with it. I have found that if I put a wet towel for them they'll immediately climb onto it and seem to feel more comfortable. Then I worry because they have wet feet and wet undersides a lot of the time. Will they catch cold from this? —T. J.

DEAR T. J.: That danger of their collapsing from the heat is undoubtedly more critical than the possibility of catching cold. The water evaporation does provide an air conditioning of sorts which is certainly worthwhile. If the temperature drops markedly at night, providing a dry carpet and bedding during that period would be prudent and, of course, they should be protected from drafts.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Green Green, my parakeet, seems thin to me even though he eats a lot. Lately he has acquired a taste for my wine, so at dinner time we share a little. I figure this will be good for him, for the vitamins it contains and as an appetite stimulant. It has been proven so for humans so I don't see why it wouldn't apply to him too. —D. R.

DEAR D. R.: A small amount of wine before meals could possibly perk up a parakeet's appetite. However, consider that a parakeet eats off and on all day long. Thus the appetite would take some rather constant perking and he could end up at the end of the day a plastered parakeet, instead. Unfortunately, the grape loses most of its vitamin content in the processing. Consequently, wine is not a loaded nor even a reasonably good, source of vitamins.

A READER'S TRAVEL TIP

DEAR DR. MILLER: Because our car doesn't have air conditioning and because we take our dog or cat or both traveling with us a lot, we have had to figure out some way to keep them in the car and still keep the car windows open. The best way we found is to use an all wire cage on the back seat. With a comfortable bottom in it our pets don't mind riding that way and we can leave all the windows open for plenty of air circulation. Of couse, the wire cage itself allows air to flow freely through it. We never have to worry about them getting tangled up in leashes and we know they are safe and get their fair share of whatever air might be available. —K. P.

Road to Mandalay Smugglers' Joy

By PETER O'LAUGHLIN

MANDALAY, Burma (AP) — The paddle steamers are still chunking along the Irrawaddy River on the road to Mandalay.

Seat of the last Kingdom of Burma, and an important administrative town of the British who toppled the Burmese monarch, Mandalay now is a major trading point for smugglers. They are doing great business under chairman Ne Win's "way to socialism."

"Smuggling keeps this country going," said a veteran observer of the Burmese scene.

It is easy to believe. The nationalized People's Shops are almost bare of goods. But walk down to Zegyo market and you can buy almost anything you want, from imported cigarettes to black market Coca-Cola.

Rice, cattle, teakwood, metals like tungsten and gold and precious stones are smuggled into Thailand and sold for hard currency for a fraction of their value.

With this currency, the smugglers buy goods unobtainable in Burma—quality cloth, watches, plastic products, soaps, perfumes, radios, spare parts.

They sell these in market towns like Mandalay at 100-percent profit to finance the next cycle of the smuggling.

The smugglers run risks, mostly from Burmese army troops who may stop them, seize the contraband to sell it themselves later on.

The Burmese smugglers hire security guards from the Karens and other ethnic minorities who are in rebellion against the central government. The Karens charge five-per-cent tax for goods crossing the Thai border into Burma. For an extra fee they provide pack elephants, ponies and protection through their territory.

Mandalay is a relay point for goods coming from India, Laos and northern Thailand. Moulmein in lower Burma is another major smuggling town.

The smuggling has given Mandalay an atmosphere of prosperity that the capital Rangoon lacks. There are few motor vehicles, but transportation is provided by horses and buggies equipped with handsome tassled harness and oil lamps.

Mandalay is also a Buddhist centre of some importance. The peak of Mandalay Hill is one giant hive of temples and monasteries. It takes an hour and a half to climb the steps.

The walled and moated royal palace now is military headquarters for the region.

The big stern-wheel paddle steamers, some of which date back to the pre-war days of British administration, take three weeks to go from Rangoon to Bhamo near the Chinese border.

Heat Rising, Costwise . . . But Prairies Get a Break

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — A chilling thought on a hot summer's day: It will soon be time to light the furnace again for the winter, and the cost of heat is going up.

Statistics Canada has reported the results of its first study of differences in home heating costs among 11 principal cities. In a word: Even the cold, windsweept Prairies get off rather lightly.

Variations in heating costs because of differences in climatic conditions across Canada have always made it difficult to compare living costs between one city and another.

The general consumer price index is based on a set quantity of goods and services purchased in various cities, but always of equivalent quality.

Because of variations in the type and quantites of home-heating fuels involved, such comparisons are not as easily made. Natural gas is used in 95 per cent or more of the homes in Regina and Edmonton, but only about 10 per cent of the homes in Montreal and Ottawa.

So the statisticians tackled the problem from the angle of the amount of heat required, in British Thermal Units or BTUs, to heat a 1,400-square-foot detached house, considering the severity of the winter in various cities.

This severity was measured in degree-days, the same way the oil compay knows when to refill a householder's oil tank.

The statistics bureau also based its comparisons in heating costs in 10 cities with the cost in Winnipeg. The city was chosen arbitrarily as a basis for comparisons because of its central location between east and west.

The survey found that last February, it cost 10 per cent less to heat a 1,400-square-foot house in Regina than it did in Winnipeg, and 41 per cent less in Edmonton.

It cost 58 per cent more to heat the same house in St. John's, Nfld., and 67 per cent more in Charlottetown than in Winnipeg. It cost 26 per cent more in Halifax and 38 per cent more in Saint John, N.B.

Montreal heating costs were 24 per cent more than Winnipeg's, Ottawa 13 per cent more, and Toronto five per cent more. Vancouver costs were three per cent more than Winnipeg's.

A similar survey was done for May, 1971, but the results of last February's survey showed little change in most cities except Charlottetown and Ottawa. In May, 1971, home-heating costs in Charlottetown were 53 per cent higher than Winnipeg, and Ottawa's were eight per cent higher.

Morocco's Hassan Cutting Wide Third-World Swath

By JIM HOAGLAND
The Washington Post

RABAT — The short, handsome man in front of the cameras might well have been a member of Europe's social elite caught up in a minor but newsworthy scandal.

Dressed in an expensive English-cut, dark-blue suit, and speaking flawless French, he fended off questions from French journalists, singling them out by name and chiding them for past articles.

He met newsmen earlier this week in a palace surrounded by Arabic arches and splashing fountains.

Preceded by sword-carrying guards singing hymns of praise to Allah, Hassan quickly made it clear, however that his Morocco looks West, not to the Arab or African worlds.

While speaking disdainfully of Arab leaders and organizations, he held up the U.S. and France as models of civilized behavior.

To illustrate points, he used U.S. golfing terms, French song titles and a reference to the Sharon Tate murders.

The remarks would have seemed strangely disconnected from reality if they had come from another leader of the Third World, but the imprint of the West is strong not only on Morocco's youthful monarch but also on its cities, its educated elite and its armed forces.

Hassan's survival of last week's air-borne assassination attempt has brought into sharp focus the important French, U.S. and British interests that converge in this country, which the king proudly noted "guards the Mediterranean."

Whether it will affect these interests is still not clear, but it has certainly made the heavy foreign involvement in Morocco subject No. 1 for Rabat's rumor mills this week.

A summary of the events of the past week reads like a contrived script designed to disclose mutual dependencies that Hassan and the west have encouraged:

As Hassan returns from a vacation in France — which still exercises a strong economic and cultural hold on its ex-protectorate 16 years after independence — his U.S. jetliner is strafed by three jet fighters supplied to Morocco by the U.S. under a $15 million-a-year military assistance program.

Two of the plotters flee to Gibraltar, but are hustled back by the British, who apparently co-operate with the Moroccans in interrogating the two rebel pilots.

Like the king, many of his educated subjects seem to regard the firm links to France and the U.S. favorably, especially since both have provided huge amounts of aid to Morocco.

Even opposition political parties, which bitterly criticize every aspect of the king's domestic policies, tread softly on the potentially emotional issue of neo-colonalism.

"We are too strategically-located to be able to make enemies," an opposition leader said when asked if he would radically change the king's foreign policy.

"We must protect ourselves by remaining friends with everyone."

For their part, the big three Western powers seem to feel that Morocco is too vital for them to engage in a pitched rivalry for influence.

The traces of competition and mutual undercutting seem to be slight in comparison to other areas where Americans have attempted to replace a faltering French position, such as Lebanon, other parts of French-speaking Africa and, at one time, Vietnam.

Diplomatic sources estimate that France has about $3 billion invested here. U.S. investments, spread across a spectrum ranging from a large tire factory to an olive canning plant, is about $50 million.

U.S. officials deny there is any competition for influence between Washington and Paris.

Some Moroccans seem unconvinced.

For those seeking the ubiquitous hand of the CIA in the attempt to oust Hasaan, there seems to be a definite pattern of the French being closer to the place, while the U.S. has built their strongest ties to the armed forces that have staged two mutinies against the king.

Kosygin 'Obstructor' Appeals

EDMONTON (CP) — An Edmonton man was fined $125 for obstructing a policeman during a visit last year by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin is appealing his case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Edgar Knowlton, 29, was convicted in the appellate division of the Supreme Court of Alberta last October after a not-guilty ruling by Provincial Judge G. R. Rennie.

The case is scheduled to be heard in Ottawa during Supreme Court sittings which begin Oct. 3.

Knowlton was charged after police said he ignored orders not to walk down a sidewalk on a hill near Kosygin's hotel.

Literary Giants Draw New Attention

★ ★ ★

Canadian Content

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Two writers with conspicuous Canadian connections are winning wide attention here with their new books about a pair of 20th-century literary giants.

Canadian-born Hugh Kenner, with a vast study of the role played in modern literature by Ezra Pound, has added an extra dimension to the controversy about the 86-year-old American poet.

Philip Toynbee, son of the historian Arnold Toynbee and a leading reviewer for The Observer, considered the new work "long, interesting and impressive."

Kenner called his mammoth essay The Pound Era and The Economist magazine asked whether this will seem an appropriate designation 50 or 100 years hence for the epoch now thought of as "modern."

"Mr. Kenner's brilliantly written book establishes an excellent case for supposing the answer to be 'Yes,' " said The Economist.

BEST YET

Meanwhile the fifth and final volume of Leon Edel's biography of novelist Henry James has just been published in Britain and has drawn praise from a variety of British reviewers.

One of them, Anthony Powell, called Edel's biography "magnificent" in its entirety.

Powell, himself a well-known novelist, termed Volume Five of the Edel series — called Henry James: The Master, 1901-1916 — "the best of the lot."

"It is so varied, so packed with material of interest in all sorts of different ways, that any analysis of its qualities is difficult," Powell wrote in The Daily Telegraph.

Edel's huge work inevitably drew reservations from some quarters.

"The biography has a tone that is a long way from James' own and that often seems inappropriate to its subject," complained Stuart Hampshire, a philosopher as well as a student of literature, writing in the New Statesman.

But Hampshire conceded that "even if some central core of the story is missing, a mass of information about James is made available with great skill."

The 64-year-old Edel was born in Pittsburgh but grew up in Yorkton, Sask. He won a Pulitzer Prize for an earlier section of his James biography.

He graduated from McGill University, Montreal, in 1928 and, after obtaining a doctorate from the University of Paris, he returned to teach literature at the college level in the same Canadian city.

Edel was on the editorial staff of The Canadian Press from 1938 to 1942. Since then he has become the highest-ranking authority on Henry James, whose influence as novelist, playwright and critic is a major element in the contemporary literature of his native America as well as in Britain.

For his part, Kenner, now 49, won a similarly-distinguished status among students of Ezra Pound after graduating from the University of Toronto in the 1940s.

Born in Peterborough, Ont., Kenner visited Pound in 1948, while the poet, a broadcaster on Rome radio during the Second World War, was still detained in a Washington mental hospital.

A few years later came the Canadian's first book about Pound's poetry along with Kenner volumes about James Joyce, T. S. Eliot and other dominant men of modern letters.

He currently is professor of English at the University of California in Santa Barbara.

But his teaching there has been interspersed with detailed work on the new book, a project of research beginning in 1962.

The Pound Era is more than 500 pages long and is crammed with footnotes and illustrations.

IDEAS TRANSFORMED

Martin Dodsworth in the New Statesman called Kenner's book "brilliantly accomplished."

The New Statesman critic described the work as "a study of the transformation of late 19th-century ideas which Pound with his few companions of genius . . . brought about to make English literature once more testify to the living force of art."

Kenner in fact builds a history of the modern age in English literature around the figure of Pound, a major literary impresario as well as an avant-garde in his own right.

"I am not certain of Prof. Kenner's value judgements," commented another Daily Telegraph reviewer, Walter Allen, "but there can be no doubt . . . he has performed a valueable feat of elucidation."

In The Guardian, Prof. Frank Kermode of the University of London found that Kenner "often presses too hard" in trying to make the new book a masterpiece.

"But as the almost ideal reader of a great poet, he should be forgiven much," wrote Kermode.

Victoria's Valdy Hits Big Time

By RON ROBINSON
CJVI Program Director

A folksinger many Victorians have grown to appreciate over the last few years is now making national impact. Valdy is featured on a newly-released album, "Country Man," recorded at the A and M studios in Los Angeles, and it's good!

At 26 Valdy is a little older than most people making their record debut, but his eight years of singing professionally obviously enhance his chances of "making it big." After university Valdy worked for the city of Victoria designing sewage and drainage systems, but has chucked this for a small farm in the country where he raises chickens and cats and grows enough vegetables to keep him going.

Valdy says the life of a farmer inspires him on his hunt for the right lyrics for the right music. His "Rock and Roll Song," which is from the album and is also a single being played on stations across Canada, is one example:

"Play me a rock and roll song
I've had it to here with your flowers and beads;
Play me a rock and roll song
Or don't play me no song at all.
Well if I played you a rock and roll song.
It wouldn't be fair cause my head isn't there;
So I'll leave you with your rock and roll songs
And make my way back to the country."

Of the twelve songs on the album, nine are Valdy originals. He makes some interesting points in the liner notes: "Music is a vehicle in which you drive around a feeling. A performer is a catalyst; and axis for the listener's energies." "Canada is a fine country, still fairly free; with care we can keep it free. We are not being careful now." "I've been at this for eight years . . . writing, playing, winning, losing. Looks like it's my life!" Should be a good life for a talented Victorian.

The Ferry system is really part of our Trans Canada Highway system which has never been recognized by the Federal Liberals. Nevertheless I believe a commuter pass should be available at a cheaper rate to frequent users. To me this is just as important as a night ferry.

The Kelowna Charter

A commitment-not a promise

A special session of the Legislature in October will confirm these benefits for all British Columbians

Higher pensions for senior citizens

British Columbia's supplementary allowance to the federal Old Age Pension is already the highest in Canada — and this allowance will be further increased by the end of the year. This new benefit, included in the Kelowna Charter, will be in addition to the $50 annual grant instituted this year for all home-owners and renters aged 65 years and over.

Increased social assistance allowances

This province provides the highest social assistance allowances in the nation . . . and this year, the benefits will again be increased for citizens who are handicapped through age, mental or physical disability.

Increased minimum wage standards

In most areas of employment, British Columbia's minimum wage levels are already the highest in Canada . . . but this Government accepts its responsibility to provide increased minimum wage standards. This, too, will be acted upon at the special Legislative session.

An end to the gift tax

The gift tax affecting individuals, charitable organizations and foundations will also be cancelled at the special session.

Subsidies for youth during job training

British Columbia's youth of school and university age will be given special aid in gaining on-the-job training through a new social assistance program. Under this plan, the Provincial Government will subsidize the youthful employee by sharing in the payment of wages and salaries.

An end to succession duties and probate fees

At the special Legislative session, succession duties and probate fees will be cancelled. This will allow British Columbians to build up capital in their own hands . . . for investment in enterprises which aid provincial growth and create new jobs.

Loans for new secondary industry

An expanded range of secondary industries can mean thousands of new jobs for British Columbians. This is the main idea behind the British Columbia Development Corporation. This Crown Corporation will provide loans at extremely low rates — only one percent interest during the first year — to new industries engaged in food processing or other secondary manufacturing.

These humane, job-producing policies are worthy of your support.

'Bastard Socialism' Governs Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is governed by a "bastard kind of socialism" where public funds go to big companies rather than working people, New Democrat Leader David Lewis says.

The socialist leader, interviewed on the CTV television network program Question Period pre-taped for Sunday showing, continued his attack on the corporate welfare system he says has been built up by successive governments.

He opened the barrage during a recent visit to Toronto and has continued it in other swings through the country, the latest in southern Ontario and Manitoba.

Mr. Lewis said he is speaking out against tax laws that are weighted in favor of large corporations because it is a "pocketbook issue" that affects the bulk of Canadians. His party intends to concentrate on this and other similar issues—rising food prices, housing, unemployment, and regional development—in the expected election.

Mr. Lewis said that it is meaningless to talk about capitalism and socialism in Canada.

"What we've got now is a bastard kind of socialism where the public funds go to the large corporations.

"They don't pay their share and we give them huge grants and the ordinary wage earner and salary earner has to carry the load of financing the country."

But the 63-year-old party leader, who will fight his first election as leader, said the New Democrats are not opposed to assistance to industry. The party "strongly supports" financial help in disadvantaged areas or where it is needed to maintain or create jobs.

Crosby Girl Slays Killer Crocodile

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Bing Crosby went on safari in the wilds of Kenya this week — but the old crooner was upstaged by his 15-year-old daughter Mary Frances, who shot a killer crocodile which had been terrorizing local people, Crosby said Friday.

The Crosby family was on safari in the bush in the Tana River area of Kenya's coast province, where the shooting took place.

"We were told the croc had been terrorizing people for some time," Bing reported. "It had killed a native and a couple of Somalis. The croc measured 12 feet, 7.9 inches.

"The croc was lying on the Tana River bank. Mary has never done any shooting before.

Crucifixion Ploy Fails

BUCKEYE, Ariz. (Reuter) — Eugene Austille, a 45-year-old carpenter, had two young women nail him to a home-made wooden cross apparently to persuade his estranged wife and four children to return home, police said Friday.

Sherrif's deputies said the man hung by a nail through each hand and one through his right foot for nearly an hour Thursday. His wife had fled home with their children after he fired a shot at her, she told deputies.

Doctors removed three rusty nails from Austille's limbs at hospital and released him to police who persuaded him to commit himself voluntarily to the state mental hospital.

Weddings

Cornfield — Mackay

The Esquimalt United Church was the scene of a beautiful candlelight double-ring ceremony at 7 p.m. on Saturday evening, July 8th, when Heather Elizabeth, only daughter of Supt. (ret'd) and Mrs. George M. Mackay of Victoria, B.C., exchanged wedding vows with Charles James, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Cornfield, of Victoria, B.C. Officiating at the ceremony was Reverend Wm. Taylor. Pink mauve and white flowers suitably decorated the church. Accompanied by the organist, Mrs. Carey Lee, Mr. Jock Dunbar sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "My Love is Like a Red, Red Rose."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in an elegant Victorian styled wedding gown of silk organza over taffeta. Alencon lace threaded with satin ribbon adorned the empire bodice, high neckline and deep cuffs of the long full sleeves. Lace threaded with satin ribbon also bordered the deep flounce of the full skirt entrain. A full length veil misted from an "Ann of Cleves" cap of matching lace threaded with satin ribbon. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of pale pink pompom Mums surrounded with stephanotis and gypsophilia with white bows and streamers. The bride was attended by her cousin Miss Linda Cant of Regina, Sask., as Maid of Honour, and Mesdames Penny Viewig and Patricia Jones of Victoria, and Mesdames Jody Biassetti and Diane Beattie of Calgary, were bridesmatrons. They were attired in identical floor length gowns of pink nylon organza flecked with white, over pink taffeta, fashioned in slim princess lines, with high necklines and puff sleeves. They wore large brimmed hats with pink ribbon and bows to match their dresses. Their bouquets were white marguerite daisies and gypsophilia with pink ribbon loops and streamers. The mother of the bride was attired in a slim full length multi-coloured crepe gown of mauves, purples, and pinks. Her corsage was brides' white Sweetheart roses. The mother of the groom chose a full length gown of purple chiffon dotted with white and pink flowers over taffeta. Her corsage was pink Verona roses. Mr. Richard Buxton, cousin of the groom, acted as best man, and ushering the guests were Mr. Donald Carey, Courtenay, B.C., brother-in-law of the groom, Mr. Ian Mackay, brother of the bride and Messrs. Bob Sperling and Robin Milligan. Miss Linda Carey, niece of the groom, attended the Guest Book.

At the reception, which was held at the Carlton Club, Insp. H. Robertson (Ret'd) proposed the toast to the bride. Supt. (Ret'd) Wm. Taylor assisted the Guests. Dancing followed the reception, music being supplied by Mrs. Dennis Williams, Comox, and Mr. Dennis Gibbs.

Payne — Day

A double-ring ceremony took place August 5, 1972, at 1:15 p.m. in Cadboro Bay United Church, when Reverend Bob McLaren united in marriage Sharon Winnifred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Day, of Victoria, and Keith Gordon Payne, son of Mrs. Gwen Payne, and the late Mr. Charles Payne of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a floor-length fine white crepe dress with lace panel front. Her full length veil misted from a lily-of-the-valley headpiece, and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink baby rosebuds, pink daisy mums, and showers of baby's breath. The maid of honour Donna Anderson, and bridesmaids Sheila Currie and Gayle Day, sister of the bride, wore full length gowns of pink floral and white strain picture hats. They carried bouquets of pink daisy mums and showers of baby's breath. Best man was Ralph Payne, brother of the groom, and male attendants were Russ McDowell and Dave Pierce, Gerry Payne, brother of the groom, and Terry Myles were ushers. The groom and his attendants all wore white dinner jackets and raspberry dress shirts.

Mr. Jack Anderson gave the toast to the bride at the reception held at the Faculty Club, University of Victoria. Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Payne left on a honeymoon trip to Island Hall.

A very special guest attending was Mrs. H. Adams, the bride's grandmother, who looked charming in a lovely mauve dress and a yellow rosebud corsage. Other out of town guests were from Winnipeg, Unity, Assiniboia, Tyvan, Prince Albert, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Penticton, and Vancouver.

Ashford — Bevis

A double-ring ceremony was solemnized on August 19, 1972, at 2 p.m. in the Cadboro Bay United Church, when Lesley Ann, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bevis, exchanged vows with Malcolm, son of Mrs. Elsie Ashford, and the late Mr. John Ashford.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mrs. Kathleen Maynes was matron of honor, and bridesmatron was Mrs. Sharlene Ball, Mr. Robert McLaren attended as best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Bill Bevis and John Bevis, brothers of the bride.

A reception was held in the garden at the bride's parents' home. Mr. Jack Moore gave the toast to the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashford will make their new home in North Vancouver.

Smith — Bigelow

Mr. and Mrs. Neal William Bigelow, Agassiz, B.C. (formerly of Victoria), are pleased to announce the marriage of their elder daughter Janice Elinor, to Mr. Barry John Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Fay, London, England. The wedding took place in St. Jude's Parish Church, West Croydon, Surrey, England on Saturday, August 5, 1972. The bride's attendant was Mrs. Christine Naden and best man was the groom's twin brother, Colin. A close friend of both bride and groom, Mr. William Redford, gave the bride away.

The happy couple spent their honeymoon in Devon, England and returned to London where they will make their new home.

Nash — Slater

A double-ring ceremony was solemnized at 8 p.m. on August 12, 1972 in St. Michael and All Angels' Church, when Reverend R. Wilkes and Reverend A. Leonard united in marriage Lynn Patricia Slater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Slater, 346 Arnold Avenue, and Mr. Frank William Nash, son of Mrs. Clifford Nash, 2842 Adelaide Avenue, and the late Mr. Clifford Nash.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a long empire-line sheath gown of Ingoda silk with puffed sleeves of Chantilly lace. The sleeveless coat with floor length train was of matching Chantilly lace. She carried a cascade of pink roses, white daisies and baby's breath. The matron of honour Mrs. Susan Lum, attendants Mrs. Virginia Price and Miss Tammy Slater wore identical gowns of pale mauve crepe with lace sleeves. They carried white baskets of pink carnations and white daisies. The best man was Mr. Gary Hart, and ushers Edward Price and John Slater, were attired in black tuxedos, same as the groom, and wore mauve shirts.

Skaalrud — Mutter

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. F. Mutter of 1030 Government Street, Duncan, B.C., wish to announce the marriage of their daughter, Susan Joan, to Mr. Anthony Daryl Skaalrud, Victoria, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Skaalrud, Balzac, Alberta. The wedding took place Saturday August 5, 1972, at 2 p.m., in the Church of St. Andrew, C.F.B. Naden, Esquimalt, with Reverend Hugh Mortimer officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by Mrs. Michelle Jacobson, and sister of the groom Miss Beverley Skaalrud. Mr. Kirk Jacobson was best man.

Penny — Ovcharick

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ovcharick, 9326 Ardmore Drive, Sidney, B.C. are pleased to announce the marriage of their younger daughter, Marnie Doreen, to Mr. William Henry Penny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Penny, Vancouver, B.C.

The wedding took place August 12, 1972, in Holy Trinity Church, Patricia Bay, Reverend R. Sansom officiating. Mrs. Denise Ashmore of Portland, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. Terry Penny was best man for his brother.

Hughes — Logan

Mr. and Mrs. W. Logan of Brisbane, Australia, announce the marriage of their daughter, Janice Mary, to Alan Benjamin Hughes, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hughes, 946 Forshaw Road, Victoria.

The marriage took place on Sunday, August 13th in North Vancouver. The Reverend J. M. Elrod officiated.

North — Rickinson

A double-ring ceremony was solemnized on August 19, 1972, at 7:30 p.m. in All Saints' Anglican Church, View Royal, when Raynette Kathleen, daughter of Mrs. S. Rickinson, 288 Stewart Avenue, and the late Mr. Stanley Rickinson, exchanged marriag vows with Mr. David Lawrence North, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence North, of 176 Sims Avenue. Reverend C. E. Lonsdale officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle Mr. E. R. Rickinson, the radiant bride wore a gown of her own design and make. It was chiffon over sparkle organza and featured Victorian neckline and sleeves, with ruffles of Chantilly lace on bodice and hemline. She wore her twin sister's cathedral veil of illusion and Chantilly, and a headpiece of Guipure lace and pearls, highlighted with a sprig of orange blossom from her mother's veil. She carried a shower bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, white stephanotis, baby's breath, and leather leaf fern. The bride was attended by Mrs. Dayle Drouin as matron of honor, her cousin Mrs. Laura Macdonald and Mrs. Carolyn Hodson, sister of the groom, as bridesmatrons, and her niece Shannon Rickinson, as junior bridesmaid. All were dressed alike in floor-length gowns of turquoise green crystal sheer over taffeta featuring Victorian neckline with short ruffled sleeves and pink rosebud trim at the waist. They wore tiny green flowers in their hair to match their dresses. They carried colonial bouquets of dusty pink carnations, white stephanotis, baby's breath and leather leaf fern. The junior bridesmaid carried a basket of similar flowers. Little Tommy Rickinson, nephew of the bride was ring-bearer, Best man was Mr. Brian Weatherill and Messrs. Rick Hodson, Ron Macdonald and Tommy Randall ushered the guests. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Rickinson wore a turquoise green ensemble with pearl trim, pink hat and corsage of pink carnations. Mother of the groom, Mrs. North wore a pink ensemble with white trim, hat entone. Her flowers were white carnations.

The reception was held at All Saints' Parish Hall, Stewart Avenue. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Les Entwistle. For travelling, the bride wore a pink coat dress with a navy mohair picture hat and navy accessories with a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white feathered carnations.

After a honeymoon in the Okanagan, the young couple will reside in Vancouver. Miss Margaret Joyce, cousin of the bride travelled from Spennymoor, England, to attend the wedding. Other out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Smith, Miss Marion Dey, Mr. Tommy Randall; Mr. and Mrs. J. Hodson, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Weatherill, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mann, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Robert North, Miss Sandi North, Mr. Jim Moore, Burnaby; Messrs. Gordon and Gary Weatherill, Vernon, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Roy McLeod and Robert, Miss Jacqueline McLeod, Ottawa, Ont., Messrs. Lehman, B.C.

Manson — Bowes

St. Michael and All Angels Church near Prospect Lake was the scene of a charming wedding on August 19th between Stephanie Prescott Bowes of Vancouver, widow of Gordon Emerson Bowes, and Norman David Manson of Victoria, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Manson.

Given in marriage by her elder son, Edward, the bride chose a pink knitted dress and lacey Italian straw hat in beige. The ensemble was completed by a delightful Colonial bouquet of pink rosebuds, carnations and heather. The matron of honor was Mrs. Brenda Mathews of Sidney. Mr. Harold Haynes was the best man, while Mr. Gregory Bowes was the usher.

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served in the lakefront garden at the home of the bride and groom. Mr. Christopher Robson of North Vancouver proposed the toast to the bride. There were a number of out-of-town guests.

Mitchell — Moyer

On July 22, 1972, Jane, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. F. Moyer, 1020 Mina Avenue, Victoria, became the bride of Christopher John Mitchell, third son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. L. Mitchell, Duncan, B.C. The ceremony was performed by Reverend C. Lonsdale, assisted by Canon R. Howell, in St. Columba Church, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by Mrs. Genevieve Singleton, maid of honor, Mrs. Ann Hyggen and Mrs. Gail Mitchell, sisters of the bride, acted as bridesmatrons; Mr. Douglas Best was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Norman Yanno, and Mr. Dave Stewart.

A reception was held in the garden at the Olde England Inn and Mr. Jack McClure proposed the toast to the bride and Mr. Gerry Walker acted as master of ceremonies.

Dangerfield — Mahon

The marriage is announced of Kathy Mahon, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mahon, Victoria, to Mr. Dennis Dangerfield, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dangerfield, Lumby, B.C.

The wedding took place Monday, August 21, 1972, in The Church of Our Lady Queen of Peace. Father J. McNamara officiated.

Heat Didn't Halt Santa Claus

DETROIT — While everybody else was trying to beat the heat, Chris Hunt showed up Friday at the Detroit zoo in the Santa Claus outfit he normally saves for Christmas time to bid a fond farewell to his reindeer.

"I always wanted to go to the zoo in my outfit," said Hunt, 20, of suburban Berkley. He will be donning a navy uniform next month. "Before I go into the service, I wanted to say goodbye to the reindeer." The mercury reached 85 degrees Friday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — A Nashville police officer said meter maid Helen Copeland looked "kind of shocked" when she found a parking ticket on her scooter outside the police station.

Officer Jack Merlin issed the citation Thursday, the day after Mrs. Copeland slapped one on his police vehicle.

"What's good for the goose is good for the gander," said Merlin. Mrs. Copeland parked her motor scooter beneath a no parking sign in front of the police station.

NEWARK, England — Postman Andrew Boggie resumed his sit-in Friday among the branches of 200-year-old elm tree. Town workmen once again threatened to chop it down because, they say, it is unsafe. Boggie said he is holding out for the result of appeals to the government.

NEW YORK — President and Mrs. Nixon are throwing a party this weekend at the Western White House, and they asked lyric soprano Lucia Hawkins to attend. But Miss Hawkins, who works at the Lord and Taylor department store to pay for her singing lessons, had to turn down the invitation because she couldn't afford the plane fare to California.

Her co-workers collected the money for the fare. Store executives chipped in with an evening gown. Miss Taylor leaves for San Clemente today. "I have always found most people to be loving, generous and well meaning," she said.

Libby, 63, director of the UCLA institute of geophysics and planetary physics, was arrested Jan. 22 after his car was involved in a collision which injured the driver and a passenger of the other car. He won the Nobel Prize for physics in 1960.

NEWHAVEN, England — Cafe owner Tony Griffiths did not like the new yellow no parking lines on the road outside his restaurant. So he covered them with thick black tar.

Town workers scraped off the tar and repainted the lines. Griffths blackened them again. He says the lines are ruining his business and he will black them out as long as the workmen paint them. The East Sussex county council says it will repaint the lines as often as necessary — and send Griffths the bill.

NEW YORK — Gregory Bitzakis, a Greek food stand operator, has come up with a tangible way of celebrating the renomination of Vice-President Spiro Agnew. He has invented the "Spiro Hero," a sandwich modeled after the Italian hero sandwich but which contains Greek ham, goat cheese, lamb, onion, red peppers and spices.

WRIGHT—In Victoria, B.C., on August 25, 1972, Mrs. Leona Marie Wright, aged 36 years; born in Saskatchewan and a resident of Victoria for the past 34 years, late residence, 2745 Fifth St. She leaves her loving husband Bryan, and son, Allan Joseph, at home; her daughter Linda Janet Wright; mother and step-father, Stenna and Reginald Kingsland; sister, Mrs. Boo (Sylvia) Caley, and brothers, Owen R. Hawkins and Glenn C. Hawkins, all of Victoria, B.C.; aunts and uncles. Mrs. Wright was a member of the A.M.O.R.C., The Rosicrucian Order.
Service will be held in the Sands Mortuary Limited, "Memorial Chapel of Chimes," on Tuesday, August 29, 1972, at 4:00 p.m. Rev. Dr. Emma M. Smiley officiating, followed by the service of Mr. A. G. Eburne of the Rosicrucian Order. Cremation. Flowers gratefully declined. Those so desiring may contribute to the Victoria Cancer Clinic, 1900 Fort St., Victoria, B.C.

9 IN MEMORIAM

CLARKE — In loving memory of a very Dear Husband and Dad, Reg, who passed away August 26, 1968.
"Beautiful thoughts of one so dear
Treasured forever with love sincere,
Deep in our hearts your memory is kept;
We all loved you too deeply to ever forget."
—Ever very lovingly remembered, by loving wife Emmie, and dear sons and daughter June.

CLARKE — In loving memory of Mr. Reginald A. Clarke, who passed away August 26, 1968.
Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him dear.
—Lovingly remembered; Emmie, Jack, Jim, Reg, Ken, Herb, June and Families.

CLEGG — In loving memory of my friend Marion Clegg, who passed away August 26, 1970.
They say that time will ease the pain.
And help me to forget.
But time so far has only shown
How much I miss you yet.
I miss your smile, your voice, your talk;
The things we used to do.
I miss the happy times we had.
But mostly I miss you.
—Sadly missed by her friend Leona.

EADE — In loving memory of my dear Husband, Geo. Eade, also loving Dad of Edwin and Granddad of Tom—and George and Larry Eade.
I watched you suffer, and also sigh,
And all I could do was just stand by
But you never deserved what you went thru
Then God took your hand and we had to part
Altho I smile and seem carefree
God only knows how I miss you.
—Your loving wife, Ena.

MAYNE — In loving memory of my husband Roy L. Mayne, who passed away suddenly August 26, 1971.
God took him home, it was his will.
Within our hearts he liveth still.

RAE—In loving memory of my beloved husband, David L. Rae, who passed away August 27, 1968.
In my heart your memory lingers
Always tender, fond and true,
There is not a day goes by
That I do not think of you.
—Your loving wife, Eileen.

MOVING BONUS DAYS
The greatly appreciated patronage of Vancouver Island trailerites has forced us to move a short distance out of town in order to SERVE YOU BETTER.

OCTOBER 1
will see us located on a 5 acre site at 1080 GOLDSTREAM AVE. in LANGFORD where SALES and SERVICE plus WINTER STORAGE will provide the most up to date R.V. centre on VANCOUVER ISLAND.
To simplify the move, our stock of new and used trailers, campers and hardtops must be reduced. That's why we're offering MOVING DAY BONUSES.

FOR EXAMPLE
72 SCAMPER model 180, fully self-contained including shower. Sleeps 6. The price — $3795. As a bonus, we'll pay sales tax and supply licence, mirrors, jacks and full propane tanks. You save $233.65.
72 TERRY 17', fully self-contained including shower. Sleeps 6, $3895. The bonus — SALES TAX, spare wheel and tire, licence, chrome mirrors, jacks, full propane tanks. You save $300.
TWO ONLY, 1971 SPORTSCRAFT hardtops in excellent condition, $695 each. They sold new at $895.

WHAT'S MORE
We'll provide free storage until April 1st on any unit sold during MOVING BONUS DAYS. Don't delay, visit our present sales lot and select your new trailer or camper from the greatest selection on Vancouver Island.

Pollen Raps Cable TV Hike

Pollen said Friday he would ask his council to protest an application to the Canadian Radio-TV Commission by Victoria Cablevision Ltd. to increase its rates from $4.50 to $5 a month.

Pollen said he would also ask council to protest the Oct. 3 CRTC hearing being held in Edmonton since it would deny public representation at the hearing.

He said the company's profits had gone up faster than any other corporation in Canada, its stock prices were rising, and, with its monopoly position in the city, he felt there was even justification for a rate decrease.

"That just represents public acceptance of the stock issues," he said. "And I couldn't say about our profits being the highest."

Charlish said their was a number of reasons for raising the rate.

A CRTC ruling says the cablevision company must have its own local programs. The company therefore built a studio which has since proved inadequate and must be expanded.

Also, Charlish said, licensing fees have gone up and much of their equipment is becoming obsolete and must be replaced.

"And we have no jurisdiction over the place of the meeting," he said, "if he (Pollen) has a problem he should take it to the CRTC, it was their decision."

Pollen had also charged that since the company utilized easements of the city of Victoria it should have notified the city of its request for a rate increase.

Charlish said his firm has no easement agreements with the city but leases space from B.C. Telephone.

"There wasn't any point in notifying (the city)," he added, "we've done what we're required to do."

Firebrand Cardinal In Brussels

BRUSSELS (AP) — Jozef Cardinal Mindszenty, who was Hungary's living symbol of opposition to Soviet rule during the Budapest uprisings in 1956, arrived here today for a three-day private and pastoral visit.

"I have come to commemorate the millenary of the birth of St. Stephen, Hungary's first king and patron saint, with thousands of Hungarians who have established their homes in other countries," the 79-year-old Roman Catholic cardinal said at Brussels airport.

Invited by refugees in Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, the firebrand cardinal came close to tears as young Hungarians dressed in national costumes presented him with flowers and sang their national anthem.

Police Check Man's Bones

Bones found Thursday on a beach at Saturna Island have been identified as the remains of a man between 20 and 40 years old who has been dead for no more than a year, Marine Division RCMP at Ganges Harbor said today.

The bones were covered with the remains of clothing and wearing a belt, RCMP said.

Swedish Star Picks Cougars

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Swedish hockey veteran Ulf Sterner said Thursday he will attend the training camp of Chicago Cougars of the new World Hockey Association.

Sterner, 30, became the first Swedish player in National Hockey League history when he played a few games with New York Rangers in the '60s.

Evacuation Ends

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Residents of a 16-block area, evacuated following the derailment of seven Penn Central railroad cars of which one was filled with ammonia, returned to their homes today. The residents were not ordered evacuated until Friday, several hours after the derailment, when wrecking crews began attempting to get the 80-ton car containing 33,000 gallons of the toxic fertilizer back on the track.

Sidney Buildings Soar

Sidney has doubled construction records this year in comparison with figures for the same period in 1971.

Last month, Sidney's building permits totalled $358,190 compared with $122,698 in July, 1971 and the cumulative figure this year is $3,363,436 compared with $1,527,394 in 1971.

In North Saanich, construction permits issued in July totalled $190,985 compared with $328,702 the previous year. Total for the seven-month period in this municipality is $1,273,298 and for the same time last year, $1,289,418.

Central Saanich building inspection department reports a total of $249,195 permits issued for July, 1972, bringing the cumulative construction figure to $1,348,919. Last year at this time, the municipality issued $157,005 worth of permits with a seven-month total of $1,656,923.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS
TREE PLANTING PROJECT 92F3-9 KENNEDY RIVER (EAST) SITUATED: APPROXIMATELY 35 MILES WEST OF ALBERNI

Contractors are advised that the British Columbia Forest Service intends to let a planting contract in the fall of 1972 for the planting of 68,000 trees on 171 acres, more or less, situated on Timber Sale X92952 and X99024.

In order that prospective bidders may have an opportunity to view the planting site and acquaint themselves with conditions on the ground, the Forest Ranger at Tofino will conduct interested parties to the area on September 8, 1972 leaving the Ranger Station, Tofino, B.C. at 9 a.m. Transportation, if provided by the Forest Service, will be at the prospective bidders' risk.

Sealed tenders for this contract will be received by the Chief Forester up to 4 p.m. Wednesday, September 13, 1972, except that for specific reasons the Chief Forester may extend such time.

Tenders will not be considered unless made out on the tender form supplied, properly signed and witnessed, and accompanied by a deposit in the form of a certified cheque or money order in the sum of $50, payable to the Minister of Finance.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted, and the Forest Service reserves the right to limit the number of contracts held by any party at any one time.

Prospective bidders are advised that this contract will be awarded only on proof that the successful bidder has arranged with the Workmen's Compensation Board for the necessary coverage of all employees and/or partners who will be working on the contract.

Note that prior to commencement of planting the successful bidder will be required to submit a deposit in the total amount of five per cent of the bid price.

Planting stock required for the contract will be supplied free of charge by the Forest Service f.o.b. at a place designated by the Forest Service.

Particulars may be obtained from the Chief Forester, Parliament Buildings, Victoria; the District Forester, Vancouver; or the Forest Ranger at Tofino, B.C.

TREE PLANTING PROJECT 92H9-10 SITUATED ON TRETHEWAY CREEK

Contractors are advised that the British Columbia Forest Service intends to let a planting contract in the Fall of 1972 for the planting of 79,000 trees on 143 acres, more or less, situated on the North-West side of Harrison Lake.

In order that prospective bidders may have an opportunity to view the planting site and acquaint themselves with conditions on the ground, the Forest Ranger at Harrison Lake will supply directions to interested parties to the area. Interested parties are advised to examine the contract area for themselves before submitting bids.

Sealed tenders for this contract will be received by the Chief Forester up to 4 p.m. Wednesday, September 13, 1972, except that for specific reasons the Chief Forester may extend such time.

Tenders will not be considered unless made out on the tender form supplied, properly signed and witnessed, and accompanied by a deposit in the form of a certified cheque or money order in the sum of $50, payable to the Minister of Finance.

Tenders must be submitted in the envelope marked "Tender for Tree Planting".

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted, and the Forest Service reserves the right to limit the number of contracts held by any party at any one time.

Prospective bidders are advised that this contract will be awarded only on proof that the successful bidder has arranged with the Workmen's Compensation Board for the necessary coverage of all employees and/or partners who will be working on the contract.

Note that prior to commencement of planting the successful bidder will be required to submit a deposit in the total amount of five per cent of the bid price.

Planting stock required for the contract will be supplied free of charge by the Forest Service f.o.b. at a place designated by the Forest Service.

U.S. Eyes Wheat Subsidy Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government wheat export subsidies, soaring along with farm prices because of huge grain sales to the Soviet Union, will be brought under control beginning next week, the agriculture department announced Friday.

The move is basically to remove exporters from automatic subisdy increases. It also could mean higher prices for U.S. wheat in world trade and possibly some curb on further price rises in flour for bread making.

Officials said the department "may no longer be able to hold U.S. export prices at world market levels that have prevailed . . . if domestic prices increase further."

The Soviet Union is currently buying about 400 million bushels of wheat, a fourth of the U.S. crop, and farm prices have risen sharply from $1.57 a bushel in early July to about $1.90 now.

FUTURES PASS $2

Wheat futures in Chicago rose this week above $2 per bushel for the first time in six years.

Subsidies have risen accordingly, from 11 cents per bushel six weeks ago to 38 cents this week. The goal of the subsidy program in recent years has been to make wheat available at Gulf of Mexico ports at $1.63 to $1.65 a bushel.

That price no longer will be guaranteed to exporters, the department said.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll Brunthaver said the removal of automatic subsidy assurance means that in the future grain exporters themselves will have to bear the risks.

Message From Mel Couvelier

As the campaign reaches the final stages before the August 30 provincial election feelings rise and debate grows more heated, more personal. I have tried and shall continue to try to conduct my campaign for election in the Oak Bay riding without descending to personal attacks.

At this stage in the election certain old themes are being heard again designed to lull and gull the electorate. The Bennett cry of "Socreds or socialism" is being heard again. It worked in past elections. I do not think it will in this one.

In Port Alberni recently, Bennett put the choice in terms of doors. "If you want to let socialism in the front door, vote NDP. If you want to let socialism in the side door, vote Conservative or Liberal," he is quoted as saying.

To this I can reply, "The aging Bennett government will creep back into office by the back door if you vote Socred."

The choice offered by Bennett is phoney. He creates a straw man and then huffs and puffs to blow it down. The real choice in the election is between an old tired group of politicians who have been in office more than 20 years and a young, aggressive party moving with the times, prepared to offer solutions and implement them.

Two members of the Bennett Cabinet decided not to run on account of age. A number of Socred MLAs did not stand in this election for much the same reason. Some of these non-candidates were actually younger than Bennett. If returned to office in this election, Bennett could still be trying to lead this province at the age of 77.

A recent suggestion was made that Bennett be retired and made Lieutenant-Governor when John Nicholson leaves that post. Many people in this province would feel more confident of the future if W. A. C. Bennett were Lieutenant-Governor instead of Premier for the next five years.

I would like to hear from you. Phone, write or drop in to 1955 Foul Bay Road. Telephone 592-2478.

There Is More Than One Issue

Sincerely,

MEL COUVELIER

China Uses UN Veto

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Blocked by a Chinese veto of its application for UN membership, Bangladesh will attempt at the General Assembly debate this fall to revive its bid for admission.

China, in an anticipated action Friday night, cast the sole negative vote in the Security Council to prevent admission of Bangladesh.

Although 11 of the 15-member nations voted for the immediate entry of the former eastern region of Pakistan, a veto by one of the five permanent council members was sufficient to nullify the majority vote.

Bangladesh representatives said they would press in the three-month assembly session beginning Sept. 19 for the moral backing of the organization's 132 members.

The assembly cannot reverse a council decision. But an overwhelming expression of support in the assembly for Bangladesh's membership could result in a recommendation that the Security Council reconsider the matter.

Ambassador Huang Hua of China, defending his delegation's first use of the veto, told the council that since joining the United Nations last October China had decided "it must act according to its principles."

The principles at stake, Huang maintained, were those involving compliance with assembly and council resolutions of last December. Adopted following the India-Pakistan war, they called for withdrawal of troops and repatriation of prisoners of war.

Huang said India and Bangladesh colluded in the detention of 90,000 PoWs, 10,000 of them civilian detainees. He also charged that Indian troops were still in Bangladesh.

Taunting China over its first use of the veto, Soviet delegate Viktor Issraelyan referred to China's own exclusion from the world body for more than two decades.

"The irony is this," Issraelyan said, "Bangladesh's entry was opposed by the representative of a country that was a victim of a gross discrimination at the hands of imperialistic forces, some of which now are hastening to become one of the best friends of the Chinese People's Republic."

Barrett Urges New CS Deal

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett Friday night called for a new deal for civil servants — including the right to free collective bargaining — in a Victoria speech before 650 people.

He told an audience in Oak Bay Junior Secondary School civil servants also should have the right of vountary early retirement before age 65, consultation and participation in the administration of their pension funds and the right to run for political office.

There were no hecklers.

He removed his jacket before beginning his speech and by the time the question period begun he had removed his tie as well.

Barrett said the Social Credit government deliberately provoked confrontations with doctors, teachers and labor unions.

"The NDP," he said, "believes in love, trust and understanding instead of fight, fight, fight."

He said all parties agree that NDP plans for government car insurance and increased benefits for pensioners were good plans but where would the money come from?

Barrett said the NDP answer is to place royalties on export of raw materials, maintain gift taxes and succession duties and increase corporation taxes.

He said corporations had received a 10 per cent cut in taxes from 1970 when they paid a total of $86 million to the past year when they paid only $75 million.

Meanwhile, in the same period, general taxpayers paid $190 million in provincial income tax in 1970 and it rose to $300 million in the past year, an increase of 80 per cent.

Barrett reminded the audience he was fired as a civil servant in 1959 when he announced he would seek the nomination as a CCF candidate.

Meanwhile, in the 1960 election Esquimalt MLA Herb Bruch listed himself as a civil servant on his own nomination papers and Ray Williston continued as a civil servant right up to the night he was nominated.

Barrett said any civil servant under a deputy minister should have the right to a leave of absence without pay to run for public office and should be entitled to get his job back if he loses.

ELECTION ROUNDUP

WAC Unveils Bag of Goodies

Premier Bennett Friday night in Vancouver announced details of proposed pension increases including a maximum $34 more per month for the elderly and $31 more per month for the handicapped.

Bennett told about 700 persons jammed into the Point Grey Secondary School auditorium the proposals would be implemented at a special legislature session in October if his 20-year-old Social Credit government is returned to power on Wednesday.

Among the measures outlined by the premier:

A $34 monthly increase in the provincial supplement for pensioners, boosting the monthly income for some single persons over 65 to $225. Married couples will go from $337.20 to $385 monthly;

A boost in the minimum hourly wage to $1.80, an increase of 30 cents an hour;

An extra $31 monthly for disabled and handicapped persons, bringing their monthly incomes to $170;

—A "minimum" increase of $15 raise in the provincial homeowners grant to $200 will be one of the measures in his next budget;

Bennett said he was "pleased" to have a good turnout of hecklers and added that all of them "are invited to my rally in Vancouver East that will be a lovely meeting" tonight.

The premier also zeroed in on NDP leader Dave Barrett, predicting that Barrett will go down to personal defeat in the Coquitlam riding. Barrett had the biggest winning margin of any NDP candidate in the 1969 election.

Stacking one prediction on top of another, Bennett said the NDP's next leader will be Bob Williams, incumbent in Vancouver East, who ran unsuccessfully for the job in 1968.

Thursday night, the Social Credit leader told a rally in Coquitlam that Barrett would be succeeded by Williams' running mate, former deputy NDP leader Alex Macdonald.

"Those people who vote NDP on Wednesday won't be voting for Barrett, they'll be voting for Williams," said Bennett. "Say no, no, no next Wednesday. The great issue is socialists no, Social Credit yes."

Meanwhile in Victoria Friday night Barrett said only a very few pensioners would qualify for the $225 per month announced by Bennett, "only about 1,200 in all British Columbia."

He said to qualify, a pensioner had to have savings of less than $500.

The NDP, Barrett said, advocated $200 per month for all pensioners with savings under $5,000. He said this plan would cover a high per centage of B.C.'s pensioners.

MEANS TEST

Barrett added that Bennett's plan offered only a

Heavy Crop Failures Hit Russia

Times News Services

MOSCOW — With the spectre of serious wheat and potato shortages looming, Soviet officials have launched a drive to stop people wasting bread and have introduced new potato-marketing laws.

Early harvesting of wheat has fallen far below expectations, and grain buyers have placed order for wheat with Canada, Australia and the United States — where bakers, fearing the sale of 400 million bushels of wheat to Russia will raise domestic prices, have requested an immediate increase in bread prices.

Potatoes are the Soviet Union's second most important crop and most Russians eat them at least twice a day. Failure of both wheat and potato harvest could force Soviet leaders to revise their entire economic plan for the five-year period ending in 1976.

While there has been no visible effects of a grain shortage yet, Russian housewives have been complaining that potatoes have disappeared from state stores.

And prices charged at open markets where produce grown on private plots is sold have been reported to be up to 10 times the usual price.

Agricultural officials have been urging farmers to speed up harvesting and premium prices have been offered for potatoes sold to the state, rather than sold at open markets.

Newspapers, filled with reports on the grain harvest, also have been printing stories decrying the waste of bread and proclaiming, "It is necessary to respect every piece of bread.

Pravda, the Communist party paper, told of two men in the Ukraine each sentenced to a year in jail for trucking 1,000 loaves of stale and moldy rye bread to the garbage dump.

SIR FRANCIS DEAD AT 70

Few men in this century have caught the heart of this seafaring national more than Chichester who in 1967, at the age of 65, survived gales, mountainous seas, icebergs and near sinking to circle the globe in his 53-foot yacht Gipsy Moth IV.

Sir Francis, 70, had been in the hospital for more than a week, receiving blood transfusions. A cancerous growth on his spine had produced anemia.

Chichester was not the first man to sail around the world alone. Capt. Joshua Slocum, an American, completed the first solo circumnavigation in 1898.

But the Englishman was the first to do it with only a single stop, at Sydney, Australia. Chichester made the 14,100-mile journey from Britain to Australia in 107 days, and then sailed on 15,500 miles to Britain in 119 days.

Williston Cuts Triangle Rights

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Resources Minister Ray Williston has withdrawn logging rights around three wilderness lakes in the Nitinat Triangle in an apparent prelude to expansion of Pacific Rim National Park.

Lifting the tree farm licences of B.C. Forest Products on the watershed of Tsousiat, Squalicum and Hobiton Lakes is thought to be a government move without precedent.

Williston appeared surprised in a phone interview from Prince George Friday that the development was not generally known.

"I don't understand how the people are not aware of what has been done to save the lakes," he said. "I made the decision as early as May to stop logging in the area."

Williston said B.C.F.P. is fully aware of the situation. The problem now is to find a source of timber to replace what has been lost for the company's mill at Youbou.

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday the provincial government favors including the controversial wilderness lakes in the new national park but he made no mention of tree farm permits being cancelled.

Hobiton, Squalicum and Tsousiat Lakes lie 65 miles northwest of Victoria, near Nitinat Lake and north of the West Coast Trail. They have

GAGLARDI MUST SUE —BENNETT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Friday that Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi must take legal action to clear himself in connection with a report that he had attacked Bennett's leadership.

Gaglardi earlier in the day said the report in the Toronto Star was "trash." He said he planned to launch legal action against the Star and the Vancouver Province, which published excerpts from the Star story.

The minister was reported to have said in an interview with Star reporter Chris Dennett that Premier Bennett is an old man who no longer understands people, and that the premier would have stepped down after the 1969 election but did not want Gaglardi to take his place.

In an interview here, Premier Bennett said:

"As premier I know he did not say it. But Mr. Gaglardi has got to clear himself before the court. He must win the case."

20th Olympics Open

MUNICH (AP) — The president of West Germany officially opened the 20th Olympics today, turning them over to competition by the finest athletes of 122 nations after weeks of bickering over power, politics and prestige by the rich old men who run the Games.

President Gustav Heinemann said: "I hereby declare the Olympic Games celebrating the 20th Olympiad in the modern era to be opened."

The teams marched under skies sunny for the first time in more than a week.

The first official sounds of the Games was the mellow baritone of eight Alpine horns, the signal to start the parade. This was followed later by the rattle of old blunderbusses instead of the customary military cannon salute.

Guenther Zahn, a West German runner, carried in the Olympic torch accompanied by Olympic runners of four other world areas.

The Games opened before a crowd of 80,000 crammed into the stadium and uncounted thousands on surrounding hills that were built of wartime rubble.

Doug Rogers of Vancouver, judo heavyweight who won a silver medal in the 1964 Tokyo Games, was the Canadian flag-bearer, leading the largest Canadian team in Olympic history — 217 athletes.

There were 8,000 athletes in the march-past.

Absent from the parade were the 43 athletes of white-dominated Rhodesia, voted out of the Games when the International Olympic Committee yielded to the clamor of black African nations to reverse an agreement made a year earlier.

FROM THE HUSTINGS

The Times today looks at the election campaigns being waged in Victoria, Oak Bay and Burnaby. In Victoria, the Social Credit party is confident the "little old ladies in tennis shoes," as one campaign worker put it, will carry the riding.

The Oak Bay campaign revolves around Scott Wallace, the MLA who has switched from the Socred banner through the ranks of independent to Progressive Conservative. In the Lower Mainland riding of Burnaby, the young voters, with their problem of high car insurance, has become one of the major issues. See Page 5.

The Nitinat Triangle, timber companies in the real estate business, recycling, greenbelts and zero growth. How do aspiring politicians view their obligations to Mother Nature?

PORT TIE-UP THREATENS EXPORTS

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Future export sales of Canadian wheat are at stake in the B.C. shipping tie-up, warns R. M. Esdale, commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Esdale's concern is shared by many others as railway grain cars continue to stack up in B.C. and Alberta. Not one grain has moved from the port of Vancouver since Aug. 7.

About 40 deepsea freighters swing idly at anchor in Vancouver harbor. Twenty of them are waiting for grain, and every one of these is going either to Russia, China or Japan.

That scenario has the federal government, the governments of B.C., Alberta and Sakatchewan, prairie farmers, shipping agents, port authorities, railwaymen and ship captains biting their nails.

Russia faces the threat of a poor harvest and is bidding heavily on the world grains market; Japan will call tenders Nov. 1 for wheat shipments; China promises it will be a long-term customer for Canadian wheat.

When President Nixon announced in July that the United States expected to sell $750 million worth of grain to Russia over the next three years, a lot of Canadian saw some ominous handwriting on the wall.

When port officials at Seattle, Wash., just across the B.C. border, moved quickly to set up separate facilities to handle Canadian cargo diverted by the strike, it hurt.

Ottawa's concern was shown in the arrival 10 days ago of William Kelly, deputy labor minister, to act as an observer while the ILWU and the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association, representing about 50 companies, tried to settle their differences.

When negotiations broke off a week ago, Labor Minister Martin O'Connell got ready to move in. He arrived Thursday and got the two sides back to the bargaining table.

But O'Connell was not issuing any ultimatums. He agreed with the hopeful assessment of local observers that a settlement probably would be reached quickly.

The federal government, which takes responsibility because the biggest ports come under the authority of the National Harbors Board, was under intense pressure to legislate a return to work. That course was taken to end a dock strike at St. Lawrence ports in July.

Attorney-General Roy Romanow of Saskatoon flew in early in the week on a fact-finding mission and later demanded that Ottawa intervene directly. He said prairie farmers have had three years of recession and couldn't stand another blow this year.

Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Opposition Leader D. G. Steuart issued statements saying an emergency situation is fast approaching and that if the strike isn't settled within days, Parliament should be called back from vacation to deal with it.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of B.C. sent a telegram to Ottawa asking for the declaration of a national emergency.

Music in the Streets

Young musicians are filling Victoria streets with song and everybody approves. Whether it's an impromptu concert in Bastion Square or a lone guitarist on the street, tourists and locals, youngsters and pensioners, and even passing policemen, smile with approval and "drop a penny in the hat." Shirley Cox, Nathan Tinkham, David Cahill, Dale Brophy and Marjorie Cahill (upper left) have been playing in the streets throughout the summer and say as many as 500 passers-by a day hear their music. Smiling guitarists (left and right) identified themselves as just Children of God spreading their song.

SECOND SECTION

Candidate Sees Break In Heroin-Crime Cycle

Progressive Conservative Oak Bay candidate, Dr. Scott Wallace said Friday part of the drug addiction problem could be alleviated by providing heroin to addicts under clinical supervision.

Addressing a meeting at the Windsor Park Pavilion, Wallace said such a partial solution would help the addict avoid resorting to crime to raise the $20 for a cap of heroin.

"When money is not available, the herpin addict resorts to crime and embarks on the heroin-crime-jail roundabout," he said.

"From listening to young addicts, I am told that if psychiatric and counselling help were available, he might find it possible to fight the mental anguish, since he has proved he can withstand the physical pain."

Wallace cautioned that treating addicts with heroin as is being done in England wouldn't "by any means" solve the whole problem.

He added that the present methadone treatment method appeared to be of little lasting value since the addict merely becomes dependent on methadone.

"But an addict is a medical problem not a criminal problem, so that putting young addicts in jail to be exposed to hardened criminals and sex perverts only further destroys the victim's personality and further reduces his chance of achieving rehabilitation."

He suggested a program of prevention through educating children from the very early age about the hazards of drug use.

A director of the Victoria Convention Centre Foundation, and Liberal candidate for Saanich and the Islands, Malcolm Anderson suggested today that such a centre be built with hotel room tax funds.

During a talk at the Town and Country shopping centre, Anderson urged the provincial government assign its portion of the five-per-cent room sales tax collected in the Victoria area for the "immediate construction" of a civic centre.

"We have had good co-operation with the city in regards to a site. We can get a low-cost loan from the federal government and the addition of this money from the province should let us get started," he said.

"No one has acknowledged that Elk-Beaver Lake Park has been increased by approximately 70 acres through the widening of the Patricia Bay Highway," said Social Credit candidate for Saanich and the Islands Foster Isherwood today.

During a talk at a coffee party, Isherwood said the provincial highways department bought all the farms along the edge of the old highway back to the park.

"And all these farm lands and open spaces have been added to the park. This is a most important acquisition and it was given for nothing, just turned over to the regional board at the cost of many thousands of dollars."

Saanich and the Islands Conservative candidate Hugh Curtis said Friday that some campaigners for opposing parties had been saying it would be a pity to lose a good mayor by electing him as MLA.

But he made it clear in his statement that he would not run again for mayor whether he is elected to the legislature Aug. 30 or not.

Curtis said he had made the decision that this would be his last term as mayor before he decided to run provincially.

"I believe that all levels of government benefit from changes of leadership. This is what the Conservatives are saying at a provincial level and I think the same holds true municipally."

Curtis has been mayor of Saanich for nine years.

Criticizing the Social Credit government for delaying completion of bridge construction at Port Renfrew, NDP candidate for Esquimalt, James Gorst said Thursday, the government had promised it be finished by May, 1972.

Addressing an all-candidates' meeting at Langford, Gorst said the Socreds purchased the wood pilings to support the bridge in the United States.

"This is no way to create employment in B.C. or to support our own forest industry," he said.

HELPERS CAUSE HEADACHE

Deputy returning officers and poll clerks for the Aug. 30 election are creating a headache for at least one returning officer.

Elmer McEwen, returning officer for Victoria complained today that advance polls had been heavier this year because many people working election day at the polls were voting during the past three days rather than picking up transfer certificates.

These certificates are available for poll staff to enable them to vote at the poll they are working in Wednesday, rather than missing an opportunity to vote at their home polling stations.

The advance poll, which began Thursday and ends tonight at 9 p.m. has been unusually heavy with 800 voters the first day and 650 Friday.

"Most of our polling staff are new this election," explained McEwen, "and aren't aware they are entitled to transfers."

Commenting on a report from West Vancouver that a number of voters in that riding had lost their chance to vote Thursday when an advance poll ran out of ballots and hour before closing, McEwan said, "locally this is impossible."

Liberal candidate Allan Williams charged Friday the situation is the result of delays in institutions of election machinery revisions."

But McEwen said that even if the advance polling authorities had run out of certificates which voters must obtain before they vote in an advance poll ensuring they don't vote again on election day, "the returning officer can use the ballot envelopes as affidavits."

None of the returning officers in the four local ridings reported running short of certificates or ballots Friday.

Police Shoot It Out At View Royal Home

By DAVID CLIMENHAGA and LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

No one was injured in a gunfight between police and a group of men early this morning in View Royal.

Six men were charged with armed robbery following the incident and appeared in Victoria provincial court this morning.

Colwood RCMP said six men, each carrying rifles or shotguns were spotted entering a house at 211 Helmcken Road by drug squad officers watching the house.

The seix policemen, two from the RCMP, two from Victoria and two from the Saanich police, heard three shotgun blasts go off inside the house, RCMP said.

Moments later six men left the house and were confronted by the six policemen. In the ensuing moments six shots were fired, four by the police and two by the gunmen.

No one was hit or injured in the shooting, police said.

Five men were arrested by the police, the sixth escaped and was apprehended near the scene by an unnamed citizen.

RCMP said the three occupants of the house, Peter Durkworth and Craig MacIntyre, both of 211 Helmcken, and Ken Robinson of Vancouver were robbed of $275.

The police declined to name the six drug officers involved.

In court one of the Victoria police testified that six men were seen running up the gravel driveway of the house wearing stocking masks and each carrying a rifle.

They smashed a window to gain entry to the house, he said.

When the six ran from the house and encountered the police they fired two shots at them. The police then returned the fire.

The charges read that the men robbed Robinson of the $275. Police testified that one of the gunmen held a gun to Robinson's head during the robbery.

The six robbers held the three men inside the house by firing shots in the house, court was told.

A neighbor who stopped one of the gunman as he fled across his lawn, said he was awakened by the shots, saw a figure running on his property and convinced him to stop by telling him he had a gun. He kept him there until the police arrived.

The man said it was not the first time they'd had problems with shooting from the house below them.

"There's shooting going on there all the time," he said, "once my wife was hanging out the laundry and shot rang past her head."

He said he and other neighbors had complained to the police about the shooting on several occasions.

Other neighbors in the area reported hearing shots and shouting in the night but no one had seen the incident.

Four men—Kenneth Conarroe, 18, of 1848 Fairburn Drive, Ralph Brock Hare, 19, of no fixed address, Paul Warren Jarvis, 19, of 205 Island Highway, and Gary Dean Korble, 18, of no fixed address were remanded to Aug. 29 by Judge William Ostler for the crown to prepare a case against bail.

Richard David Moyes, 19, of 2512 Douglas, chose trial by Magistrate without a jury and pleaded not guilty, he was remanded to Aug. 29 to set a trial date.

A sixth man, Donald Lira Wickham, 22, of 3202 Douglas, pleaded guilty to the armed robbery charge. He was remanded to Aug. 29 for sentencing or to have a pre-sentence report made if it is found he has a previous criminal record.

All six are charged with armed robbery.

SCALP WITH IMPUNITY

By DOUG MacRAE
Times Staff

Scalpers will be able to traffic with impunity in tickets for the Canada-Russian hockey game in Vancouver Sept. 8.

There is no law in British Columbia prohibiting sale of tickets for more than their box-office value.

One winner of a pair of tickets in the draw for the Vancouver game already has offered the ducats for sale in the classified sections of two Victoria newspapers, for "best offer." Ads offering tickets for the Vancouver game also have appeared in papers on the mainland.

The sales are perfectly legal in B.C., a spokesman for the attorney-general's department said Friday.

Not so in Manitoba. A 26-year-old man who tried to sell two tickets to the Winnipeg game was fined $100 under provincial legislation called the Amusement Act, which prohibits scalping.

Dennis Parr had offered the tickets for "best offer" in the personal column of the Winnipeg Free Press and accepted an offer of $50 by police.

Victoria police chief John Gregory said that in the absence of any provincial law governing scalping, his department could act only on receipt of a specific complaint.

Sidney Asked to Take Over Crowded Federal Wharf

Commercial fishermen are petitioning Sidney council to assume control of federal wharf facilities in Shoal Bay where overcrowding is resulting in an "impossible situation."

The many pleasure boats moored at the protected government wharf take up valuable space which should be reserved for commercial fishermen, says Willie Egeland, 2215 Amity.

An emergency meeting was held aboard a fishboat in Shoal Bay Friday morning and the resulting petition is being circulated among 50 owners of commercal fishing vessels.

"We pay 40 cents per foot to moor here," said Sheldon Mooney, 10462 Resthaven "but we would pay more if the supervision and control was better."

WINTER WORSE

The situation is much worse in winter when the local fishing fleet are all at home. Sometimes, fishboats "nest" four and five abreast while small pleasure craft have wharf space to themselves, charged Mooney.

"All we want is a safe place to tie up," said Bud Rooke, 2426 Lovell, who has fished out of Sidney for 25 years.

A fisherman's boat represents a large investment "tied up on two pieces of rope," said Rooke. "On stormy nights, you have to keep checking your boat because of the crowded moorage."

Several months ago the Town of Sidney investigated chances of leasing Shoal Bay and Beacon Ave. wharf from the department of transport because public health authorities were concerned about crowded and unsanitary conditions.

NOT WILLING

Mayor Stan Dear explained this week that Council had shelved the idea because of possible problems although the transport ministry was willing to come to some arrangement.

Local fishermen say that Sidney owes them some protection in return for the money they spend locally. Willie Egeland estimates he spends $8,000 annually in Sidney and has done for 25 years.

Earlier this month, council, fishermen and the transport department officials met to discuss unsatisfactory loading facilities and the federal wharf.

Mayor Dear said on Friday that the whole question of Sidney taking over the federal wharves has been "revived" and will come under Council consideration.

Ask the Times

Q. You remarked about Canadian money across the line. Try cashing an old age pension anywhere outside of Canada. Our government prints on the back of the check, "not to be cashed outside of Canada." Why? — F.D.

A. If you inform the Health and Welfare department of your absence 30 days before you leave and provide a forwarding address they will send a special cheque negotiable outside Canada. Otherwise regular cheques, non-negotiable outside Canada, will be sent. The only reason given by the department for this is that it is an Ottawa ruling.

From Back of the Hall, a Single Boo

THIS WAS ALL CANdidates rally week at Campbell River, lively hub town of a high-stepping municipality, and we turned up early in anticipation of a hectic evening. Thunderous confrontations on the platform. Thrust and counter-thrust between candidates and hecklers.

Let me report that the facts were otherwise. I have never been to so mild and decorous a political clambake in my life.

At one point in the proceedings, these ears did catch a rather genteel "Boo!" from the back of the school auditorium. But the candidates went largely unchallenged and the questions put to them were not of a sort to raise a sweat.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, who quit smoking three long months ago, raised his voice above normal speaking level a time or two. Strongly-supported NDP candidate Mrs. Karen Sanford achieved a certain briskness when she criticized floor-of-the-house decorum. For the rest, the affair was well-nigh a love feast . . . kind of like Campbell River's annual salmon festival brought indoors and minus the salmon.

As ex-Victorians whose hearts occasionally yearn for the Capital, this calmness in the shadow of a provincial election strikes us strange. The grey heads that assembled in Cadboro Bay scout hall wouldn't let four candidates get off without a tousling, you bet!

But it was an interesting evening all the same. What made it so was the fact that grey heads were in the minority among an audience that left no seat of a roomy auditorium vacant, and lined three walls with its overflow.

All ages were represented, from babes in their mothers' arms to granddads. It was, in fact, a true community turnout of residents come to hear what their candidates might say.

I can only wish that those candidates had offered less duff and more relevant listening.

★ ★ ★

The new Courtenay-to-Campbell River expressway we so badly need remains pie in the sky. But just by the merest coincidence in this election season, the villainous old Island Highway is getting a few splats of fresh blacktop along these tortuous reaches. This cosmetic treatment subjects the hasting traveller to an occasional delay, and permits a more leisurely inspection of the vehicles that make up its traffic flow.

There are still plenty of recreation rigs heading north. But even with a bumper tourist summer still on the land, there are signs that a tide is turning. Each day now, we see more campers, trailers and travel vans posting south.

Because of those same swarming campers, trailers and vans, the holiday season runs longer than it did when the tent was king. Even so, tourist numbers decrease even before Labor Day weekend is past and the kids back in school.

The country is given back to the inhabitants. A resort operator, hellish busy for two months and more, may even get a chance to go fishing.

The rest of us are less directly affected, although we have our own comings and goings of welcome summer visitors. At our place, we now have a lineup of projects waiting for fall.

With one of these in mind, Win phoned the Busy B's Glass company of Campbell River today. She found herself listening to this recorded message heartily delivered:

"We are on holidays till Sept. 5. Sorry for any inconvenience. The competition will help you out till we re-open. Hope you will drop in to see us and say Hi. We specialize in glass insurance replacements for cars, trucks and houses . . . and God bless little boys with baseballs and slingshots!"

In the clear understanding that the Aug. 30 returns could make a monkey of me, here's how one ex-patriate Victorian picks 'em:

Esquimalt: Bruch (SC), worse luck!

Saanich: Hugh Curtis . . . Who else?

And when the voters of B.C. have had their day, these party standings: Social Credit, 29; New Democratic Party, 12; Progressive Conservatives, 10; Liberals, 4.

Portnoy—Anatomy of a Male Chauvinist Pig

A Film Review
By WAYNE HARDING

Ernest Lehman's film version of Portnoy's Complaint is a bit more than a long smutty joke as it may first seem.

It is true, of course, that when Lehman adapted Philip Roth's novel for his film, he made a point of not missing a single item of prurient or simply naughty value. At the same time, there is much of the book that he chose to ignore.

Stil, Lehman's film does make some contribution to the project founded in Roth's novel — to create an anatomy of the male chauvinist pig.

The story develops through the seldom resourseful confession of a sophisticated young New Yorker who balances the order of his career as an assistant human rights commissioner in the city government with an unchecked penchant for what used to be called "womanizing."

Lehman has developed this story as something of a social satire and in so doing he eliminates much of the uniqueness of the hero, Alexander Portnoy.

In the film, more than in the novel, the protagonist of the confession is a caricature of his peers. He is the epitome of the fraternity whose constitution is written in Playboy magazine.

Here is the plastic young man with his plastic sensibility and his plastic sexuality and the same sad plastic eyes that peer out from after-shave ads and campus fashion features each month.

This exaggerated character — hopefully it is still an exaggeration — is handled rather well by Richard Benjamin. He manages to create his character just as the admen have made the original mold — an ugly soul in a Botany 500 suit.

Unfortunately Benjamin isn't given much help from the rest of the cast. They are all weak but they vary in demension and satirical quality with little relation to the development of the protagonist's character.

Inconsistencies like these can only leave one wondering if we have here a satire by accident. Or have the playboys sabotaged the original plan?

Summer Mood Introduces Many to Symphony

audrey johnson

Popularization of the arts by using the mood of summer to bring their performance to the people at low cost is spreading around the country.

Taken into the open air, or into a more or less rustic setting from the formality of the regular concert hall, the manoeuvre has worked well in areas where it has been practised for some time.

People who have never ventured into a theatre or concert hall get to know that special feeling that comes when watching and listening to performances that are not electronically processed.

EASY ENJOYMENT

They find out for themselves what a symphony orchestra is all about. And they find out what some of us have always believed — that a lot of people who have shunned so-called classical music because they think they won't understand it find themselves enjoying it without effort.

(After all what's to understand? Music is for listening and enjoying basically with the emotions rather than the intellect. Although if intellectualizing music is your dish there is plenty of scope for the exercise of that enjoyment.)

But if one person appreciates a Bach suite on the intellectual level it doesn't mean that another listener lacking profundity, cannot experience a pleasurable "gut reaction" to the same music.

These are the truths within the fact that summer initiates to symphonic music are discovering how fallacious terminology can be.

That for instance, "good" music is not a to-be-shunned category, but that good, mediocre and bad exist side-by-side within all categories, from folk through jazz, rock, Broadway, baroque, romantic, contemporary.

There are great numbers of people all over this continent whose love affair with the living stage began when they came under the spell of some straw-hat theatre project.

No reason why the same thing should not happen in music.

There is nothing novel in barn theatres, nor in Shakespeare or symphony outdoors.

What is somewhat rare and tremendously encouraging at least on our side of the 49th parallel, is what has happened this summer in Victoria and Winnipeg, to name two instances where free performances have been made possible by government subsidization.

Three government levels — through the Victoria Summer Festival Society — took a hand in sponsoring five weeks of Victoria Symphony concerts with spectacularly successful results.

And in Winnipeg, dance took to the outdoors with similar success.

Dancing in the park was the Royal Winnipeg Ballet's contribution to Festival Manitoba, but the intention is that the experiment will be repeated next year.

Grants that made the free performances possible came from the Manitoba Department of Tourism, Recreation and Cultural Affairs and from Canada Council.

ONE BLOT

There were six free evening performances on the outdoor stage at Assiniboine Park and they drew a total audience of not less than 25,000 persons.

The only blot on the Winnipeg record is a piece of blatant press-agentry which issued fluorescent red decals proclaiming, "I've Got Culture—I've Seen the Ballet."

Apart from that gaffe the six nights of dance and our five weeks of symphony music may turn out to be the greatest trend-setters yet in the story of Canadian arts and leisure.

On Stage Next Week

Tonigh , Tuesday and Thursday and next Saturday, the boistrous comedy, Tom Jones, will be seen. On the intervening nights, except Sundan and Monday, the show is the entrancing French musical melange, Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris.

In the final week, Sept. 5-9, Jacques Brel will be seen Sept. 5, 7 and 8, Tom Jones, Sept. 6 and 9.

At McPherson Playhouse, Jerry Gosley's Smile Show enters its final week of a successful 20th season, playing nightly through Sept. 2.

Curtain times are 8 p.m.

Bible, Modern Jazz Sustained Hampton

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "Everything has a guideline," said Lionel Hampton, the bandleader.

"Once we find that guideline, we have to adhere to it."

Religion and music have been the two guidelines of "the Ramp." Together they inspired him to rise from the bleak future of a black slum kid to recognition as "King of the Vibraharp" and one of the dominant figures in modern jazz.

They came to the musician's rescue last year when the crippling death of his wife of 35 years almost drove him into retirement.

"I idolized Gladys since the days we were childhood sweethearts," he said, at a luncheon here during his engagement at the Rainbow Grill.

"She was everything a woman could be to a man. She was my wife, my friend, my inspiration and my business manager. I could come to her with any problem, big or little.

"She set up things for me so well that I'll never have to go to a breadline whatever happens.

"When she died—her heart just blew out—it was like the end of the world. I didn't want to play another note. I just wanted to quit everything."

BIBLE HELPED

It was his daily reading of the Bible, Hampton said, that convinced him he should resume his lifework of "making a joyful sound for the Lord."

"I'm a great believer in the Bible. I get substance out of it. It is meaningful in my life.

I came up in a religkous family, which was headed by my grandmother. She led us in reciting the Ten Commandments three times a day."

Not too long ago when an elderly hotel chambermaid returned to Hampton an envelope containing $500 which he had carelessly left in his room, he was so impressed by her honesty that he hired her for life as his cook.

Hamp said he developed his marvelous sense of rhythm by beating with spoons on pots and pans as a child on a tenement floor. His first drumming lessons were given him by a nun at the Catholic school he attended.

She rapped my knuckles when I started to give the beat with my left hand," he said.

Benny Goodman and Louis Armstrong helped him up the ladder when he was playing in sawdust-floored Los Angeles night spots at $3 a night. Later, Hampton and his band earned up to $10,000 for a single concert.

This year Hampton and his men, busier than ever, will make more than 200 appearances. And now, at 58, he can still play them into exhaustion.

Nanaimo Man Hired by N.B.

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Richard Hatfield has announced the appointment of W. A. Farlinger of Montreal and Alan Field of Nanaimo to study the operations of the New Brunswick tourism department.

Farlinger is a partner in the Canadian accounting firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Co., while Field is a former director of the Canadian Travel Bureau.

Premire Hatfield Aug. 16 dismissed Tourism Minister J. C. Van Horne because his department overspent its $3.9-million budget by nearly 60 per cent during the first five months of the current fiscal year.
